Air Lines To Fly?

Rejection Is Expected

United ticket agent . . . a bit early but in hopeful anticipation.

Washington (AP) — Local leaders representing more than a third of the 35,000 striking airlines mechanics indicated Saturday night the union would reject the White House contract agreement.

It was learned the mechanics had won a whopping 72 cents an hour hike in wages and fringe benefits. The three-year package is an annual increase of 6 to 7 per cent—about double the white house guidelines for curbing wage demands the government considers inflationary.

The hefty package, spread over three years, is an annual increase of 6 to 7%—about double the White House guideline for curbing wage demands the government considers inflationary.

But fears remained over whether the 35,000 strikers will approve the contract proposal in voting across the nation Sunday.

"This settlement will not be inflationary," President Johnson said.

Wage increases alone total 56 cents an hour over the three years for 19,000 mechanics—three cents more than demanded. But in return the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists gave up its insistence on a cost-of-living wage escalator clause and pension improvements.

The 16,000 other strikers — fuelers, gas-truck drivers, maintenance men, stock cleaners and janitors—will get the same percentage wage hikes but less in money because their pay scales are below the mechanics' current rate of $3.52 an hour.

Some 8,000 flight-line mechanics, inspectors and crew chiefs will get an extra 5-cent an hour pay differential on top of the 56-cent

The 5-cent flight line wage differential is viewed as the most costly fringe benefit in the contract proposal.

All the strikers will get up to $2 a week in added company-paid medical benefits to cover members of their families, virtually wiping out the health-benefit deduction that now comes out of their paycheck.

The union won improved vacations—four weeks after 15 years' service instead of the present 20 years, and three weeks after eight years instead of the current 10 years.

5 Airlines Set to Fly

New York, (AP) — The five struck airlines said Saturday they will have the first planes in the air within a few hours after ratification of a new contract by the machinists union.

Members of the striking union vote on the new contract at 70 locations across the country today. Results of the vote should be known late tonight.

The airlines said that full service on all routes, however, could not be restored until at least Tuesday.

The threat of a pilots walkout against Trans World Airlines in a dispute over pay for the time planes were grounded by a machinists strike was averted Saturday night by a court injunction.

The pilots agreed to return to work when the machinists strike against the line is settled.

TWA said it hoped to resume flights on its heavily traveled routes within three to eight hours after union ratification of the contract.

Eastern airlines said it expects to be 75% operational Monday and 100% by Tuesday.

Northwest said some passengers could be accommodated on military flights operated during the strike. The airline said it would be several days before schedules are normal.

United said it planned to dispatch its first flight early Monday, but did not expect its fleet to be fully operational before 36 hours after ratification.

National reported that it would have some flights on Monday.

(The UPI reported that national leaders of the IAM said they had urged the union membership to accept the new pact, but rank-and-file leaders in Washington and San Francisco said they would urge their locals to turn down the settlement).

Reds Apologize

Moscow (AP)—Soviet officials have apologized to American delegates for remarks made about Vietnam at an international scientific congress here.

The Soviet health minister had told the Ninth International Congress on Microbiology that the United States was using chemical warfare in Vietnam and said all microbiologists should work together to stop the "aggression."

PARADOX IN THE HOUSE

Open Housing Bill Has Problems

Washington (AP)—The fight over open housing now racking the House paradoxically pits the most important supporters of the bill against the civil rights groups that want it the most.

For their allies in a crucial vote due Wednesday, the civil rights groups will have Southern Democrats and anti-civil rights Republicans, but the prospect leaves them undismayed.

"If people vote the way we think they should, we don't question their motives," says one civil rights leader.

The proposal to outlaw racial discrimination in housing would have a tough enough time in any case, but a confusing legalistic side issue is compounding the difficulty in the house.

President Johnson originally proposed an outright ban covering everybody and every type of housing. It had no chance from the day it was offered, and everybody in Congress knew it.

A painfully worked out compromise in the House Judiciary Committee would cover only those in the business of selling or renting housing, leaving the individual owner untouched. There was no confusion in the minds of the majority of the committee that approved it.

But lawyers for the Civil Rights Leadership Conference a lobby representing more than 50 organizations, said the language could be interpreted to mean a homeowner was exempt only if he handled a transaction himself without using a real estate agent. That would make it almost as tough as Johnson's original proposal.

To clear it up, Rep. Charles M. Mathias Jr., R-Md., author of the compromise, prepared an amendment making his original intent clear — individual owner and his agent both would be exempt. He plans to offer it Wednesday when the House takes up the issue.

But the Leadership Conference calls the amendment a drastic weakening of the bill and is lining up liberals to vote against it. The effect of defeating the amendment would be to give House approval to the more sweeping interpretation of the proposal.

Negro Slain in Bogalusa

Trouble Areas Mostly Quiet

Compiled From News Wires

A Negro man was found dead in a wrecked car in a small Bagolusa, La., park Saturday, victim of a gunshot blast at close range.

Asst. Police Chief L. C. Terrell identified the dead man as Clarence Triggs of Bogalusa and said he died of a gunshot wound in the head.

Police quickly cordoned off the area and ordered an autopsy on the body.

The FBI at New Orleans said it was maintaining a close liaison with Bogalusa authorities to determine whether the death involved a violation of federal law.

Terrell said the wrecked car was registered in the name of Mrs. Lanell Seal, a white resident of Bogalusa. He said the auto had veered off the roadway and had struck a fire hydrant and a highway sign.

In Chicago, civil rights demonstrators demanding equality in renting and buying property marched from a Negro area to a predominantly white neighborhood on the Southwest Side.

About 250 men, women and teen-agers trudged two abreast on the sidewalks.

They carried signs reading "open city now" and "end apartheid in real estate."

Bottles were hurled from a crowd of jeering whites at Negro and white demonstrators. One Negro man was struck by a bottle but did not appear seriously injured. Eight persons were arrested.

The march is part of a drive of Dr. Martin Luther King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), for an open city.

Meanwhile, extra police patrols maintained their vigil on East Baltimore streets after a brief street battle between Negroes and whites kept racial tensions high.

The flare-up between rock and brick-throwing gangs of Negroes and whites was the second in two nights. Although it was far less serious than the previous one, two persons were injured and one was arrested.

The night before hundreds of white youths roared through a Negro section hurling bottles and attacking residents.

Militant Negro leaders have been urging residents to "save your dimes and dollars and buy guns" to defend themselves from white attacks.

The racial situation was eased somewhat by the courts. Five members of the National States Rights Party (NSRP) were indicted for inciting a riot in the wake of Thursday's violence and the party was enjoined from holding further rallies. The NSRP rally immediately preceded the violence in the area.

In Cleveland, the National Guard will complete its pullout from the Hough District Sunday when the last 750 troopers on duty return home.

A total of 2,000 guardsmen were on duty here for nearly two weeks in the aftermath of a riot which killed four persons, left 50 injured and resulted in millions of dollars in damages from looting and 240 fires.

The War in Vietnam

American B52 Bombers Hit Demilitarized Zone Again

Saigon (AP)—U.S. B52 bombers pounded the demilitarized zone Sunday for the second straight day. The target was North Vietnamese troops in the neutral area.

A U.S. military spokesman reported the raids but said he had no details.

The giant Stratoforts hit the demilitarized zone Saturday for the first time in the Vietnamese war.

As in the Saturday raids, the eight-engine bombers struck Sunday in the southern half of the 6-mile wide demilitarized zone where elements of the North Vietnamese 324B division had been sighted.

The ground-breaking American strike, loosed at dawn in the southern half of the six-mile-wide strip along the frontier at the 17th parallel, stirred moderate to heavy antiaircraft fire from clandestinely emplaced enemy guns.

A spokesman said the eight-engine Stratofortresses from Guam rained 500-pound and 1,000-pound bombs on enemy installations little more than a half mile south of the border, which splits the zone. He listed an ammunition dump, a weapons storage area, 26 gun positions and extensive fortifications.

In other aspects of the war:

—Briefing officers announced that U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops now have killed the equivalent of two battalions of North Vietnam's 324B infantry division in Operation Hastings. This is a 15-day-old campaign just south of the demilitarized zone. The list of counted enemy dead rose to 830. Though some Marine units have been mauled, over-all allied casualties were called light.

—Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Infantry division probed a longtime Viet Cong stamping ground in Binh Duong province, 50 miles north of Saigon, with no immediate contact. They are involved in a large, new sweep-and-destroy operation code-named Springfield.

—A recent visitor to Hanoi said the Russians are providing North Vietnam advanced model Mig21 aircraft to combat American raiders. He would not guess at the number. The war's dogfights so far have resulted in the destruction of 17 of the Communists' fighters, including three Mig21s, against a loss of five U.S. planes.

—The official Vietnam press agency said some high-ranking Asian Communists, including a Red Chinese adviser to the Viet Cong identified as Maj. Gen. Huyet Deat Trung, had a meeting June 20 in the jungles of Tay Ninh province northwest of Saigon. There was no mention of its purpose. The session was reported to have dissolved in confusion after government troops up a fight with guerrilla guards.

A U.S. spokesman announced the B52 attack was to combat North Vietnamese infiltration, specifically by the 324B division, via the demilitarized zone.

Mayor Of Town A Victim

Plentywood, Mont. (AP) —A burly oil worker, fined on an assault charge, fatally shot the mayor of Plentywood and wounded the judge and a policeman Saturday before the wounded officer killed him with a bullet between the eyes.

The gunfight took place in the city courtroom just after

Duane Falk 33, of Plentywood, the oil worker, was convicted of assault and fined $50 Sheriff Lyle Medders said Falk stood up and started shooting.

Mayor Ludvig Tande, 46, shot in the arm and side, staggered through a door and died on the floor of the fire department garage.

Falk wounded Justice of the Peace William Denikas, about 80, who had hobbled into the courtroom on crutches and City Policeman Ole Fiske, 59.

Undersheriff Ben Holt said Fiske, shot in the side, then struggled with Falk until Falk accidentally shot himself in the side. In an ensuing exchange, Fiske shot Falk in the head, Holt said.

Fiske was in serious condition in a hospital and Denikas, who normally is confined to a wheelchair, was in satisfactory condition.

Falk had just been convicted of assaulting Robert Engstrom of Reserve, Mont., in a Plentywood bar in June. Ed Rucker of Plentywood, the defense attorney who represented Falk, said the earlier fight was over $230 Falk contended Engstrom owed him for damage done to his car in an accident last year.

"I got the hell out of there in a hurry," Rucker told newsmen. "I hid in the fire garage next door and counted six shots. Then I started to go home for my gun and I saw Falk fighting with Ole Fiske," the policeman. Rucker said he could not tell who fired the shot that killed Falk.

Residents of this town of 2,000 in extreme northeastern Montana streamed to city Hall, where Falk's body lay on the courtroom floor and Tande's on the floor of the firehouse.

"The whole town is stunned," said J. S. Polk, editor of the weekly Plentywood Herald. "The mayor was our leading citizen. People are just standing around stunned."

Rucker said after Denikas convicted Falk and fined him, "I started putting my papers together. I didn't see Falk's gun until I heard a shot."

The sheriff said later that Falk got up as if to pay the fine and instead pulled the .22 caliber pistol from a pocket of the jeans he had worn to court.

Rucker said Falk apparently fired first at the judge, who threw up his arm and stopped the bullet with his shoulder. "Tande was the second one shot," Rucker said.

Services Surpass Goal; Buildup Continues

Washington (AP) —The massive buildup of U.S. armed strength has passed its announced goal of 3,093,000 a year ahead of time. There are strong indications the buildup will continue.

Vance

Pentagon officials are reluctant to talk in specific terms about the eventual size of the military forces.

When questioned, Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance has said "we cannot see clearly at this time what will be required."

Vance added that "we do not know yet" what the upper limit on military manpower will be.

Other sources said force planning currently is projected ahead three months at a time.

The course of the war in Vietnam is the major factor that will determine the level to which over-all American armed strength will be raised.

The U.S. force in Vietnam currently totals more than 280,000 men. This total is expected to climb to about 400,000 by the end of this year and probably higher next year.

If conditions should dictate a bigger-than-expected reinforcement in Vietnam, the effects would be felt throughout the military establishment.

For example, the sending of an appreciably greater force to Vietnam would require an increase in the number of recruits and units to fill the holes left in the garrison in the United States.

May Step Up Draft

A larger force in Vietnam, under a one-year tour of duty, would necessitate a step-up in the output of replacements.

The big U.S. buildup was set in motion just one year ago.

Subsequent to that, Congress was asked to provide funds to augment the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force by 452,000 men.

Under the schedule laid out for Congress by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the new level of 3,093,109 men was to be reached by June 30, 1967.

However, the buildup progressed so swiftly that the objective was reached—and surpassed by a little—as of June 30 this year. This was shown in official figures released this week.

Although the total U.S. military force is now beyond the stated goal, two services—the Army and the Marine Corps—are below their objectives. The Navy and Air Force have more men on board than provided for in the projections furnished to Congress last August and January.

Army, Marines Short

As of June 30, the Army stood at 1,199,764 men—some 34,000 short of the immediate goal. The Marine Corps totaled 261,659 as against an objective of 278,184.

The Navy was pegged at 744,626, up about 17,000 from stated goals. The Air Force totaled 887,307—higher by about 34,000.

The draft calls for August and September are at as high a level, relatively, as they have been throughout the buildup year—36,600 for August and 31,200 for September. All will serve in the army.

The continued high level of the draft is still another indicator that the buildup is progressing without letup.

Pentagon officials said there are no legal restrictions which would bar the increase of U.S. armed strength beyond the figures presented to Congress publicly.

S. Vietnamese Stop Red Meet

Capture Documents Naming Top Asian Communists at Conference

Saigon (AP) — The official Vietnam press said Saturday some high-ranking Asian Communists, including a general from Red China, met 10 days ago under an extraordinary security guard in the jungles of Tay Ninh province of South Vietnam.

Without touching on what may have been their subject matter, the government news agency indicated a chance military patrol broke up the session in confusion.

Breaks Up Meeting

The Vietnam press said South Vietnamese army troops infiltrated the area, near the Cambodian frontier about 70 miles northwest of Saigon, and engaged in a firefight with elements of a full regiment of guerrillas posted in the jungles as a security force. By its account:

The Communist representatives broke up the meeting and pulled out, leaving behind a briefcase that was seized by the troops.

Captured documents named one participant, Vo Chi Cong, as counsellor of the Vietnam Peoples Revolutionary party and personal representative of President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam.

VIPs Present

On hand from Red China were Maj. Gen Huyet Deat Trung, military adviser to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, and Maj. Ngu Goang Rang, political adviser to the front.

Both names were spelled phonetically in the Vietnam press account.

They sounded similar to Vietnamese names, but it is common for both the Chinese and Vietnamese Communists to change names. Ho Chi Minh's name, for instance, is one he adopted while hiding out in China from French police years ago.

The Vietnam press story said a colonel named Mot Nang was present as a representative of the Cambodian National Defense Ministry and that a colonel identified only as Chewclani represented the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos.

Top leaders of the South Vietnamese Communist movement were reported on hand.

The party leadership of the Viet Cong has long been known to maintain its headquarters in Tay Ninh province, just across from the Cambodian frontier. The jungle canopy there is two and three layers deep.

American and Vietnamese troops and warplanes have joined in various sweeps that jarred but never fully broke the Red hold on the countryside.

4 Space Rockets Will Gather Scientific Data

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Launch crews here are preparing for a busy 11 days in mid-August, when four space rockets are to dart skyward, reaching from a few hundred to several million miles into space.

Orbit Moon

The fireworks are to start Aug. 9 when an Atlas-Agena rocket is to propel a Lunar Orbiter spacecraft toward an orbit about the moon. The craft carries high-resolution cameras to photograph nine potential astronaut landing sites, in one of which rests the Surveyor 1 vehicle that soft-landed in June.

Two days later, on Aug. 11, an Air Force Titan 3 rocket is to boost a bundle of eight military communications satellites into earth orbit.

They will join seven others launched in June to form a global network for speeding military messages around the world.

Pioneer 7 is set to ride a Delta into the skies on Aug. 17, aiming for a wide-looping orbit about the sun. Its scientific instruments are to study conditions in interplanetary space.

A key shot in the Apollo man-to-the-moon program is scheduled Aug. 20, when a Saturn 1 rocket is to hoist an unmanned Apollo ship 750 miles above the earth and drill it back through the atmosphere. The Apollo is to experience high re-entry heating over a long period and splash to a landing in the Pacific Ocean.

If the shot is successful, the first three-man Apollo crew will ride into earth orbit in November.

The next U.S. man-in-space launching, Gemini 11, is to start here Sept. 9. It will be a three-day rendezvous, docking and space walk mission by two Navy men, Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr.

Officer Evicted As Protest

Finchingfield, England (UPI)—A landlord here has evicted his tenent, an American Air Force officer, as a protest against the Vietnam War.

The landlord, Norman Lewis said he was going to give the home to the Save the Children Fund. The fund is a British organization that cares for injured and homeless Vietnamese children.

Thant Fears War May Become Major

New York (UPI) — United Nations Secretary General Thant returned from an "abortive peace mission to Moscow Saturday warning that the conflict in Vietnam is on the verge of erupting into a "major war."

Thant

Thant, who spent five days' conferring with Soviet leaders, said on his arrival at Kennedy International Airport that the visit had "confirmed" his "fears" that Vietnam "will develop into a major war."

"I don't want to go into specifics," he told newsmen, "but my feeling is that the fight might spill over the borders.

The Secretary General made similar statements earlier in the day as he left Moscow.

Thant described his talks with Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin as "very useful and frank" dispite his failure to enlist Soviet support for Vietnam peace talks. While the subject of Vietnam "dominated" the talks, he said, the questions of disarmament and U.N. finances also came up.

The Secretary General said he found "a general feeling in Moscow that it is up to those who are fighting to take the initiative" in arranging a truce.

He said any move by the Soviets to join the United States in pressing for peace was unlikely.

"The United States views North Vietnam as the aggressor and the Soviet Union views the United States as the aggressor," he said. "With these very different viewpoints, it is very difficult to reconcile their attitudes."

'Alabama Can't Afford Wallace Dynasty'

Martin Opposes Lurleen in November

Montgomery, Ala. (AP)—Congressman James D. Martin was named by Alabama Republicans Saturday night to oppose Gov. George Wallace's wife, Lurleen, in the November election.

Can't Afford Lurleen

He told delegates to the GOP state convention that election of Wallace's wife, Lurleen, would establish a "dynasty that we can ill afford, that, indeed, could leave our state bankrupted."

Mrs. Wallace is the Democratic nominee to succeed her husband when his term expires next January. She won her nomination in a statewide primary last May 3.

Martin, the Republicans' top vote-getter, became the GOP nominee after convention delegates shouted down a last-minute attempt to pull him out of that race and run him instead for the U.S. Senate. Martin had said previously he would oppose any such effort if it developed on the convention floor.

Former State Party Chairman John Grenier of Birmingham was nominated for the Senate and will challenge veteran Democratic Senator John Sparkman in the Nov. 8 election.

Martin, outlining his platform in a prepared address, advocated a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age in Alabama from 21 to 18.

Lower Voting Age

"If a young man is old enough to be drafted into the armed services and fight for his country," he said, "he is old enough to vote."

Turning specifically to education, he asked:

"How about the broken down schools? How about the fact that Alabama is 49th in the nation in the amount of money spent on each student? How about the fact that national testing programs conducted by our colleges and universities reveal that Alabama students generally are not competing with students of other sections of the country?

"It's not because they aren't smart," he explained. "It's simply because we have not revamped our school system."

The Republican congressman said Wallace has indicated he may run for president in 1968. "I do not believe this would be a good thing for this state," he said. "In all truth, I think it would be a tragedy—a tragedy for Alabama, to the South, and to you and your children."

Wilson Returns Home To Signs of Near-Revolt

London (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned Saturday from talks with President Johnson to find labor and management alike on the verge of revolt over his "dictatorial" wages and prices standstill.

Despite Wilson's assertion that the unprecedented freeze was "essential in the national interest" and has Johnson's complete backing, the already open bitterness could develop into a wide split between the Labor Government on one side and employers and workers on the other.

The Prime Minister already is in trouble with the trade unions for his qualified support of United States' Vietnam policy. He reaffirmed this to Johnson in Washington Friday, although he made it clear Britain would disassociate itself from any new escalation of the war.

The anti-freeze unrest will come to a head next week when the Labor Government's proposals to enforce the crackdown go before Parliament and the main labor and management organizations meet to decide their next steps.

Gold Star Bill

Washington (UPI) — Congress has passed and sent to the White House a bill that would give Gold Star lapel buttons for the next of kin of American servicemen killed in the cold war since July 1, 1958.

Brinks Checks Found

Westboro, Mass. (UPI) — Two farm laborers found three money cases Saturday containing checks taken in last week's $131,000 Brink's armored car robbery in Bedford.

Wendell Hancock and Philip Bailey came across the small suitcases near a stone wall separating the farm of Edward Uhlman from route 30.

FBI agents summoned to the scene told Uhlman the checks had been taken in the July 22 Brink's holdup.

Four bandits carrying submachine guns ambushed three Brink's guards outside the Mitre Corp. in Bedford and escaped with $131,000 in cash and an estimated $17,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John Droney said Friday police knew the identity of the smooth working holdup men but couldn't arrest them because of recent Supreme Court decisions.

FBI agents dusted the suitcases for fingerprints in an effort to provide Droney with the evidence needed to crack the case.

Five days after the Brinks robbery, three bandits shot and wounded two armored car guards outside the Jamaica Plain Veteran's Hospital in Boston and made off with $68,000 in cash and checks.

The Power Merger

When a bill was pending in the Nebraska Legislature last year to force the merger of the state's major electrical power districts, it was frequently pointed out that such a merger could be consummated without legislation.

But the public power districts involved had not made any meaningful move in that direction and there was no indication that they ever would. The Legislature justifiably proceeded to pass the merger bill.

Now two things have happened: the merger bill has been held unconstitutional and recent power failures have succeeded, finally, in awakening the Nebraska public to what a sad state of affairs their public power operation is in today.

Now too, thankfully, there is talk of a voluntary merger of the three power supply districts—Consumers, Loup River and Platte Valley.

It is fervently to be hoped that this talk is for real and not just a smoke screen behind which the districts can continue to hide.

The inadequacy of the Nebraska power system was proven conclusively in the double electrical outage of July 11. While the power officials have blamed mechanical failures—suggesting that "it could happen to anybody"—it is becoming increasingly apparent that the real cause was an overloaded system and an insufficient back-up of power in the event of equipment breakdowns.

Development of a satisfactory system has been hamstrung by having these three major districts all in the power supply business, each warring with the others for special advantage.

One of the greatest single difficulties in the Nebraska power arrangement has been that the directors of the Nebraska Public Power System (NPPS), which supplies power to most of the eastern two-thirds of the state, are chosen from only five Nebraska counties and elected by voters of only those five counties.

NPPS is a partnership of Loup District, which is limited to Platte County, and Platte District, which covers Buffalo, Dawson, Lincoln and Keith Counties.

Loup and Platte over the years have stubbornly resisted proposals that their constituency be broadened to embrace the entire area they serve and in which they exert such a profound economic influence.

This is probably the most blatant case of taxation (through public power rates) without representation that the state has ever known. That the people of Nebraska have permitted such a gross miscarriage of democracy for so many years is nothing short of incredible.

But there are indications that the Nebraska public is being aroused at last, as they can only be aroused when the electricity goes off.

The public agencies engaged in providing electricity for the state are well advised to attempt to reach a voluntary agreement for merger. Should they fail to do so they can expect the full wrath of public indignation upon them.

Sale of a Pioneer

The passing of the Hardy Furniture Co. from the hands of the family which has owned it for nearly a century is bound to touch a nostalgic nerve for all of Lincoln.

Hardy's is Lincoln's oldest retail store, founded in 1871, just four years after Nebraska became a state and Lincoln was founded as its capital.

Throughout the years, Hardy's has grown as Lincoln has grown. The Capital City can be eternally grateful for the many civic and business contributions of the Hardy family throughout this time.

It is heartening that Hardy's has been purchased by a substantial group of Nebraska furniture dealers who have demonstrated their own dedication to the growth and progress of this area. It is reassuring that the store will remain a leading outlet for home furnishings in Lincoln and Nebraska.

Through a unique cooperative buying arrangement with other furniture dealers in the region, the new owners have revealed plans to expand the store's selection of merchandise. They also suggest that Lincoln might become a major distribution center for furniture.

A WORLD OF HUMOR

By ART BUCHWALD

A Myna Incident

Washington—A couple of months ago two myna birds in the Washington zoo were banished from the new million-dollar bird house for using fourletter words in front of two old ladies.

Buchwald

At least, it was charged they did, but five weeks later the zoo officials declared the two old ladies must have misunderstood the language and the two myna birds were restored to their perches.

The incident has caused a great deal of bitterness among the talking birds at the zoo. One of the myna birds told me. "If you think we talk dirty, you should hear the people who come in to look at us."

Another talking myna bird agreed. "Sometimes when a parent is yelling at his child I have to stuff my feathers in my ears."

The first bird said, "It isn't so bad for us, but we're very worried about the effect it will have on our minor myna birds."

"All the publicity stemming from the two old ladies has worked a hardship on us," a third bird said. "Before the people were satisfied if we just said, 'Hello,' or 'So's your old man.' Now they want us to give them two or three lines from 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?' "

"Did the two myna birds really say what they were purported to have said to the old ladies?"

"There's a difference of opinion on that. It was a hot day and one myna bird stepped on the other myna bird's tail and the owner of the tail did say something.

"The two old ladies complained to the zoo director who then planted a couple of stool pigeons in the cage. It was the stool pigeons who really turned the birds in."

"So the zoo director locked the birds up?"

"He did, but then he had to let them out."

"Why?"

"The zoo director made the stupid mistake of getting a confession out of the myna birds without a lawyer being present."

ROSCOE DRUMMOND'S Opinion

Wasting a Good Idea

Washington — Congressmen raised their eyebrows an extra notch the other day when they discovered that the Pentagon scrapped several thousand brochures because someone had given Secretary Robert S. McNamara a wrong middle initial.

Drummond

Careless, costly, wasteful — yes, all of these things. Nobody was much amused.

But what if the wastefulness is several million dollars, not several hundred? And what if the waste is deliberate or egregiously heedless, not just the result of a little slip.

If most congressmen don't like waste wherever they find it, then here is an instance in which Congress ought to look straight in the mirror, point an accusing finger — and do something about it.

This is exactly the kind of waste — let alone harm to one of the best federal aids to education — which Congress is at the point of imposing on the National Teachers Corps.

Better Ways

Once the facts are clearly in the open, I believe the House of Repsesentatives will want to rescue the National Teachers Corps from death-at-birth and rescue itself from throwing away several million dollars by bringing a Teachers Corps into being and then disbanding it before it has begun to do its work.

Congress authorized the Teachers Corps, especially conceived to develop new and better ways to educate poor children, with a $9.5 million appropriation in 1965.

Under this authorization the U.S. Office of Education offered college graduates special training for teaching in school districts of great poverty and the chance to use part of their time to work toward a master's degree at a nearby university.

A double boon: more especially qualified teachers for very poor school districts and more potential teachers getting ready to help meet the national deficiency of 100,000 teachers. In competing against such a shortage of teachers, it is inevitable that the schools in poor districts would suffer most and usually end up with the least qualified.

These were some of the compelling reasons why the National Teachers Corps has been praised as well-conceived, urgently needed, and practical by almost every professional educational group in the country—national, state, and local.

But what happened after the Teacher Corps project began to get off the ground?

This spring, when the Office of Education asked Congress to provide $31 million to carry forward the Teachers Corps so that special training could be expanded and a flow of teachers could start into the underprivileged school districts at minimum pay, the requested appropriation was cut to $20 million — perhaps for valid reasons.

Then the House Appropriations Committee wiped it all out.

As a result the Teachers Corps has had to slash its training program from 4,000 to 1,600 and there is now no assurance that the government's commitment to these 1,600 — many of whom will have given up better jobs — can be honored.

Starting, stopping, halting, delaying such valuable special projects as the Teachers Corps is not economy. It is profligacy.

There is still time for Congress to repair its hasty decision. It ought to do so because the best aid to the poor is better education.

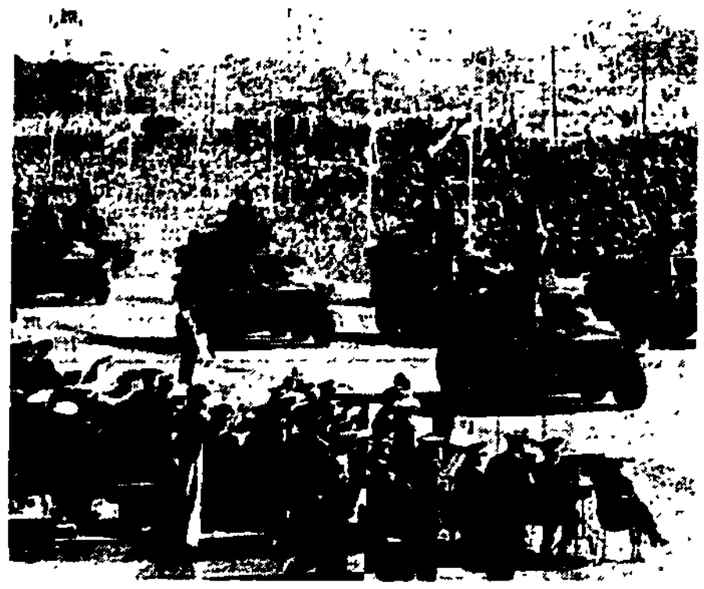
South Africa Arms Against Blacks

Leaders of black Africa dream of wiping out the white South; but South Africa mobilizes to stave off feared invasion.

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE



South African armor parades . . .

. . . as black troops train in Zanzibar.

By DENNIS ROYLE, AP

Johannesburg, South Africa — African leaders dream of the day when a unified black army marches against the white south, wiping out the governments of Rhodesia, Angola, Mozambique and finally coming to grips with the most hated of all white spots, South Africa.

At the moment, it's only a pipe-dream and likely to remain so for many years to come.

African leaders are beginning to discover the blunt fact that untrained, undisciplined armies of the black north are no match against the white south.

But the whites realize that one day, maybe in 20 years these squabbling black nations may put aside their personal differences and combine against the common enemy. And the whites are busily arming themselves with a wary eye to the future.

As a succession of army coups topples the governments of the Congo, Ghana and Nigeria and tribal strife ravages central and eastern Africa the four white-ruled states of southern Africa draw into closer union behind a wall of armor.

Geographically South Africa is well buffered from any direct black military threat. She is protected on her flanks by the Portuguese possessions of Angola and Mozambique and in central Africa by white-ruled Rhodesia, riding out a war of sanctions and threats of armed intervention.

By far the most heavily defended territory south of the Sahara, South Africa publicly displayed her military might during the republic's fifth anniversary.

More than 18,000 precision-trained white troops, backed by heavy armor, jet fighters, bombers and artillery, sounded a warning to any would-be liberation army intent on crushing the white man's domain in southern Africa.

"We will rise as one man to deter any enemy who dares intrude into this bastion of the south," said defense chief Commandant General R. C. Hiemstra.

To ensure the survival of South Africa's 3.5 million whites and deter African extremist threats to one day liberate this country's 12 million blacks is costing the republic plenty.

Budget estimates on defense alone since 1961 total over 400 million pounds ($1.12 billion).

Angola and Mozambique deploy over 80,000 troops, staving off sporadic attacks by African freedom fighters, and the tough, British-trained Rhodesian army of nearly 5,000 men patrols the border with black-ruled Zambia. And South Africa is wasting no time strengthening her defenses.

"South Africa belongs to the white man and will resist with all its might any attempt at aggression," said Prime Minister Hendrik Verwood. "To those who cannot accept South Africa as it is but seek to change it into something new or regard only a black or multiracial country as acceptable, I have nothing to say. I have no patience with them."

Most white South Africans, inextricably involved in this country's complex racial problem, see the republic's massive military build-up as the only sure safeguard for the continuance of white supremacy.

Some view the country's long-term future with uncertainty. They fear the day when the black continent finds unity of purpose and thought and the necessary resources to build a black army.

There are whites in Southern Africa who believe that someday the troubled, unsettled African states may become stabilized, that today's fiery black politicians may be replaced by shrewder, saner-thinking men.

Some fear the growing number of black military leaders, trained in Western or Communist countries and well-qualified in modern warfare.

For these whites in southern Africa, the decades ahead are filled with uncertainty and for some fear—fear that southern Africa's small white minority can do little to stem the turbulent tide of Africa's black mass.

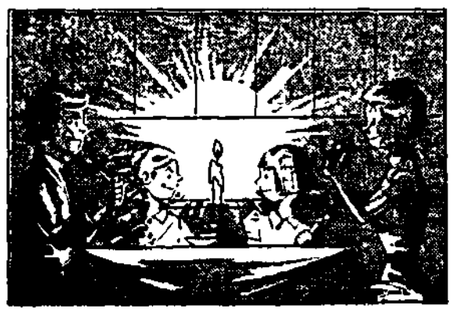
A Bright New Life

When the Lights Go Out

By MARC DROGIN
Chicago Daily News Service

Late on an afternoon, when the wind had come up a little and the trees in our yard had begun to rustle, there was a staccato crack that suddenly resounded out by the highway.

A big tree limb broke from the trunk 30 feet up and plummeted through a veil of power lines. Forty feet away, the top of the pole shivered and the cross beam split. While we all stared out the living room window, the heavy black lines swung idly down to the ground.



The lights were all out, the air conditioner had stopped, the television set went black in mid-commercial — leaving us forever in doubt as to which soap was best — the refrigerator began to warm up, the stove wouldn't work, the washing machine ground to a halt just when it was beginning to get the best of the diapers.

At first it was strange not being able to hear the living room TV with the volume high to be audible over our munching. It was very quiet — too quiet.

So one of the kids explained how his bicycle was a rocket and he'd been to the moon that afternoon, and I delivered a lecture on what I thought I remembered from school about rocket speeds and distances to the planets. And we all got so engrossed that none of us noticed we'd actually been making conversation.

It was such a novelty that we kept it up, and our little girl, who is kind of difficult to understand anyway, discussed the dog with a mouthful of chicken and sounded clear as a bell.

Since the air conditioner was off and we had to breathe normal air after dinner, we discovered the glory of lying down on whatever was flat and closing our eyes and being at peace. Nobody fought about what show to watch, because there wasn't any show.

I hauled down the guitar and my wife got out her dulcimer and we harmonized for 15 minutes in the old refrain of how to get two instruments in tune according to two tin ears, and the kids laughed and decided what we were supposed to sing. Somebody made up a song, somebody else did a disservice to "Jingle Bells" and "Swanee River" and I got voted out of the forum for not knowing six-sevenths of the lines for "John Henry."

By the time it got dark we had the tall tallow candles lit and the two old hurricane lanterns out from the closet and glowing on the sideboard, and we had to explain why there weren't any cords or buttons, and no one would believe that Grandma used to have lights like this and a bathroom in the garden and her own horse to ride to school.

In fact, we were surprised how nice a home can look by candle and lamplight. After the kids went to bed by candlelight parade and we drank sherry in lieu of coffee that couldn't get hot, I beat my wife 11 times at checkers — and when the pieces weren't moving and we weren't talking about silly things, we could hear the trains go by and children breathing and dogs in the kitchen worrying the last of the roast.

I suppose I wasn't really sorry when the power came on, and in the morning the alarm clock rang and the refrigerator hummed and the fan was on and the television working with a weather report. I think the modern marvels of our times are a joy and a help.

Maybe why we enjoy a failure isn't because of what we lose. Maybe it's because its a wonderful time to find a few thing—

Like each other.

Respect

Lincoln—On July 23 we laid our son to rest after his drowning at Fremont. We were deeply moved by the respect shown him by our local police force.

At the corner of Cotner and O St., a Negro policeman got out of his police car, removed his hat and stood at attention for the whole procession of almost 100 cars We will never forget this.

A similar incident occurred at Cotner and Vine with a white policeman. We appreciate our police force.

We will never be able to acknowledge all the cards, calls and acts of kindness that we received following our son's death — especially to his many wonderful friends and fellow-students at Northeast do we say a heartfelt thanks.

We know that God makes no mistakes and that Tom has not died in vain.

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Property valuations, or more specifically State Tax Commissioner George Dworak's recent recommendations for revising them, stirred the collective editorial mind of Nebraska's newspapers this week.

Comments on those recommended changes, involving 85 of the state's 93 counties, ranged from sympathetic to critical . . . praise was not the foremost reaction.

The Falls City Journal held the opinion Dworak's new valuations might be challenged and defeated in the Nebraska Courts:

"Viewed from a layman's angle, we'd guess that his action not only will be challenged in the courts but will be set aside as illegal assumption of authority. The action violates all the principles of appraisal and, in addition, appears to be a form of taxation without representation—something highly repugnant to Americans."

Dworak's criteria for arriving at his valuation decisions were discussed in the editorial realm of the Fremont Tribune. "Confusing" is the word they used.

"The whole thing sounds like the same gobbledygook which has been served before. There's one difference. This time, says Dworak, the figures were fed to a computer. Sure, and we'll bet the computer took everything which was fed it, just like the property owners have been doing."

A six word statement summed up the editorial mind of the Nebraska City News-Press on the valuations and how the counties were going to take their new-found equality.

"It looks like civil war, Podner!"

From valuations to vacation, and the Fremont Tribune's remedy for vacation hangover . . . quite a common ailment about this time of year.

Two of the seven suggestions are for the returning vacationer and they advise the patient to stop talking about the vacation as soon as possible, and not to envy those who are just beginning their vacations.

The last suggestion, for those who greet the sufferer, reads:

"Don't rub it in. Speak briefly about it but don't remind the poor fellow that he's just had his break for the year. Be sympathetic. Someday, you also may have a vacation hangover."

Angry Senators

Washington — This venerable old city has been having a lively time of it lately: Myrna Loy on stage, Harry Belafonte in recital, Shakespeare every other night, and a Harem of Eight Belly Dancers revolving at a local bistro. But the best show in town this week was played in the Senate on Tuesday afternoon.

That was the afternoon the Senate erupted — for once, praise God, for once — with an expression of anger and resentment against some of our allies who put profits first and friendship last. For one glorious moment (and that is about all it will amount to), Uncle Sam stopped being

James Kilpatrick — Editorial — Feature — Kilpatrick

Aunt Patsy. By a smashing vote of 56-33, the Senate turned upon West Germany the cold and level gaze of a nation whose easy-going patience had temporarily run out. It should have happened years ago.

The drama began quietly, back in March, when Sen. Byrd of Virginia and Sen. Pastore of Rhode Island learned that the West German government had given its official approval and financial support to the formation of a consortium to build a steel mill in Communist China. The two senators made remonstrances, issued statements, telephoned the State Department. Nothing happened.

'A Grave Blow'

Nothing happened, that is, except that American troops continued to stand guard in Europe; and over in Vietnam, in defense of freedom, American men continued to die of munitions provided by the Red Chinese.

With the annual foreign aid appropriations bill coming up, Byrd prepared a one-paragraph amendment. In its final form, it declared the sense of Congress that the action of "any government" in approving and financing a steel plant in Communist China "is a grave blow to the common defense of the free world and to the safety of American troops in Vietnam."

Only a few members were on hand when Byrd began to speak. Looking at him from the gallery, one saw his father 25 years ago — the same hand in pocket, the same choppy gestures, the same stubborn sense of right and wrong.

A small electric current began to flow; and Mike Mansfield, majority leader, sensed it. He stood pensively on the first step of the Senate well, examining the carpet, considering ways to cut the embarrassment off.

Scornful Fury

Arkansas' Sen. Fulbright, chairman of Foreign Relations, sought to reason with Byrd. This was a foreign aid bill, not a foreign policy bill. He thought it a bad mistake to clutter it with irrelevant matters. The Byrd amendment was sure to offend some of America's friends. It would accomplish nothing that could not be better accomplished through quiet diplomacy.

Opinion Analysis Of Author

Abruptly, the debate caught fire. California's Kuchel, his face flushed, angrily denounced the Byrd resolution. Louisiana's Russell Long put his shoulder to the administration's wheel. But the chamber was filling. Colorado's Peter Dominick, Delaware's John Williams, South Dakota's Mundt, South Carolina's Thurmond, all joined the action in Byrd's support.

Nebraska's Hruska put a barb in Kuchel's side: Suppose West Germany were not financing a steel mill, but were financing actual arms shipments to the Viet Cong instead? What was the difference? Kuchel mumbled a poor reply.

Then Pastore came roaring into the fight. He turned on Mansfield and Fulbright the scornful fury of a citizen fed up with diplomatic subtlety. So this was only a rolling mill? Well, Mr. President, a rolling mill could make jackets for bullets and casings for shells. "The time is over to be soft!" Before a rapt chamber, he denounced the sophistries of equivocal men. He was an angry American, and he wanted all of Europe to know it.

Mansfield tried twice to prevent a vote, on a motion to table and a motion to postpone indefinitely. Each time the roll-call votes came crunching down on his head. Under the Constitution, the Senate has a duty to advise and consent, but ordinarily the Senate merely consents. On Tuesday it advised, emphatically, indignantly; and it bespoke the resentment of a heavily burdened nation.

JANET JENNINGS AUCHINCLOSS, 21, half sister of Mrs. John F. Kennedy, was married Saturday evening to Lewis Polk Rutherfurd, 21, a member of New York society. The wedding was at Newport, R.I. They will live in Hong Kong where he has a Princeton fellowship at the Chinese University.

Bessinger

L. MAURICE BESSINGER, owner of a chain of drive-in restaurants in the South, has won a federal court ruling which allows him to continue to refuse to serve Negroes food for consumption on the restaurant premises.

WERNHER VON BRAUN, a leader in America's space program, recalls in a book just released in Berlin that he launched his first rocket experiment at the age of 13. He fastened half a dozen sky rockets to a small wooden wagon and Berlin police took him to the station house for frightening sidewalk strollers.

Susan

SUSAN JOHNSON of Baltimore, who was born the same day as Luci Johnson, the President's daughter, will be married Aug. 6, the same day as Luci. Susan's betrothed is Pfc. Curt Nagel, who is stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

ABRAM SALOMON, chairman of New York's Warsaw Ghetto Uprising Anniversary Committee, has expressed dismay at the condition of some Jewish cemeteries in Poland. He said he found open graves and exposed bones at some cemeteries in the Warsaw region.

Nuptials to Reflect Liturgical Changes

Washington (UPI) — Luci Johnson and Patrick Nugent will be married next Saturday in a ceremony reflecting many of the changes in Catholic liturgy authorized by the recent Vatican Council.

Almost all of the service at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception will be in English rather than the the traditional Latin.

The bride and groom will receive communion under both forms of bread and wine, rather than bread alone as is customary for Catholic laity.

Instead of a single priest celebrating the nuptial mass, an archbishop and two priests will act as co-celebrants.

Lay Participation

One of the scripture passage will be read by a layman.

All of these innovations in the Catholic marriage rite are provided for in the historic liturgical reform decree enacted by the Vatican Council.

The service, beginning at noon, will last more than an hour. But the actual wedding ceremony will be only two minutes long.

It will begin with a little lecture on the meaning of marriage, delivered to the bride and groom by Father John A. Kuzinskas of Chicago, a friend of the Nugent family.

He will remind them they are "about to enter into a union which is most sacred and most serious, a union which was established by God himself."

Self-Sacrifice

He will exhort them to rest the security of their marriage on the Christian principle of self-sacrifice, each voluntarily surrendering his own individual wishes for the sake of their common bond.

He will urge them to remember that "sacrifice is usually difficult and irksome". But "love can make it easy, and perfect love can make it a joy".

In Catholic theology, marriage is a sacrament which not only can be but must be administered by laymen. Its minsters are the bride and groom themselves. The officiating priest does not "marry" them: He acts as a witness while they marry each other, and then sanctifies their union with the blessing of the church.

Ship Aground

Parrsboro, N.S. (AP) — The 4,200-ton Liberian freighter Janet Glory ran aground in a fog early Saturday on the rocky shore of Spencer's Island in Nova Scotia's Minas Channel. The vessels forward decks were awash. There were no injuries.

Downed U.S. U2 Plane Identified

Panama, C.Z. (AP) — Wreckage found by farmers in West Central Bolivia was identified positively Saturday as a U.S. air force U2 reconnaissance plane that vanished on a flight out of Louisiana Thursday.

Authorities said the wreckage and remains of the pilot, Capt. Robert D. Hickman, 32, of Alexandria, La., father of six, will be taken to Oruro in Bolivia for shipment to the United States and a detailed investigation of the cause of the crash. Oruro is 52 miles east of the crash site and about 140 miles south of La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

Primary Contests Planned

Major Battle In Kansas

Washington (UPI) — Five more states nominate candidates next week in party primaries featuring major contests for senatorial nominations in Michigan, Tennessee and Kansas.

Williams

These states will carry the 1966 primary season past the halfway point. Twenty-two of the 46 states which nominate candidates in primaries already have held theirs.

Idaho, Kansas, Michigan and Missouri hold primaries Tuesday, while Tennessee's primary is Thursday.

In Michigan, former six-term Gov. G. Mennen Williams, 55, is favored to win the Democratic senatorial nomination from 38-year-old Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit.

Whoever wins will be matched Nov. 8 against Sen. Robert P. Griffin the Republican who will be riding on Gov. George Romney's coattails. Romney appointed Griffin last spring to the vacancy created by the death of Democratic Sen. Pat McNamara.

Cavanagh

Zolton Ferency, former state Democratic chairman, is unopposed in his party's gubernatorial primary.

Tennessee has major contests in both parties for its senatorial nominations. Sen. Ross Bass is being challenged in the Democratic primary by Gov. Frank G. Clement.

The Republican primary pits Howard Baker Jr. against Kenneth Roberts, former GOP state chairman, who is backed by both the state's Republican national committee members.

The Republicans have no candidates for governor in Tennessee this year. In the Democratic primary, former Gov. Buford Ellington is running for the gubernatorial nomination against John J. Hooker of Nashville.

Kansas is providing the only major primary contest for an incumbent Republican senator this year. However, Sen. James B. Pearson is expected to win renomination against Rep. Robert F. Ellsworth, who is giving up a relatively safe House seat for the Senate gamble.

Candidates in the Democratic senatorial primary are former Rep. J. Floyd Breeding and State Sen. Harold Herd.

Gov. William Avery is expected to win renomination in the Kansas GOP primary against Del Crozier of Wichita. Robert Docking, son of the late former Gov. George Docking, is favored to win the Democratic nomination from former State Treasurer George Hart.

In Idaho, Gov. Robert E. Smylie is a candidate for a fourth four-year term which, if completed, would set a modern record for American governors. The opponent in the Republican primary in State Sen. Donald W. Samuelson. The Democrats have five candidates in their gubernatorial primary.

Sen. Len B. Jordan is unopposed in the Idaho Republican primary, and former Rep. Ralph Harding is unopposed for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Missouri does not elect a governor or senator this year. Only three of its 10 incumbent House members face primary opposition.

Sparks Fly at Labor Leader Tax Session with Sen. Bauer

BY LLOYD MacDOWELL

Sparks flew Saturday afternoon as labor leaders questioned State Sen. Hal Bauer of Lincoln on LB797, the flat-rate income tax he guided through the 1965 Legislature.

Bauer explained provisions of the bill to participants in a Labor Leaders' Institute at the Nebraska Center.

He said the tax—probably at a 3% rate—would be paid on the net income, the same figure that goes on line 11d of the No. 1040 federal income tax form.

He also noted that the average taxpayer with a $6,000 gross income would pay about the same amount under LB797 as he would pay under the property tax.

Several objections were raised from the floor to the flat rate.

Leader Objects

One labor leader said "a man who makes four times as much as I do should pay a lot more than four times as much tax as I do."

L. K. Emry, first vice-president of the Mid-West Conference of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, pulled out a copy of his 1965 federal tax return and noted that the net income listed on line 11d was somewhat over $11,000.

It would cost him considerably more under a 3% income tax, he said, than he paid in property tax.

"Of course," he added, "I don't own a $20,000 house." The rate, Bauer explained would depend on the state's budget. On the last budget, it would have been about ¾%, but "all indications are that taxes are going to continue going up."

Advantages

The advantages of the law, he said, were that it would eliminate the state's part of the property tax, it is based on ability to pay, and the administrative cost would be as low as on any tax.

"It hits everyone to pay some tax if they make more than the amount of the deductions, whether they own property or not," he asserted.

A voice from the floor objected that "a big western farmer with a $50,000 or $60,000 income has enough exemptions so he doesn't pay any income tax."

"There's millionaires that don't pay any income tax," Emry added.

A participant offered the joking suggestion that maybe Bauer should introduce a lottery bill.

Bills Defeated

Bauer noted that a dog-rac-

Mrs. Hazel Abel Dies; State Leader

Mrs. Hazel Abel, 78, of Lincoln, whose successful business and political careers were capped with a term in the U.S. Senate, died Saturday night at a Lincoln hospital.

She had reportedly been at the hospital for several days.

Mrs. Abel

Mrs. Abel was elected at a 1954 general election to fill the two months unexpired Senate term of the late Dwight Griswold, former Nebraska governor.

She was the first Nebraska woman and the third in history to be elected to the U.S. Senate.

Her other political venture was a campaign for governor in 1960, when she finished second in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

Following this defeat, she never became active in Nebraska politics.

Mother of Year

Named American Mother of 1957, Mrs. Abel also received that year the distinguished service award of the Native Sons and Daughters of Nebraska and in 1958 the Nebraska Distinguished Citizen Award from Nebraska Wesleyan.

She was chairman of the board of Abel Investment Co. after serving as secretary of the Abel Construction Co. from 1916 to 1936 and president from 1936 to 1951. She had also been president of the George Philip Abel Memorial Foundation.

In May, 1958, she was elected vice president of the American Mothers Committee.

During that month, she was named to the resolutions committee for the 10th biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican Women. She was Nebraska president at that time.

In July, 1958, she accepted chairmanship of the fund-raising campaign for the construction of the W. K. Kellogg Center at the University of Nebraska.

She was chairman of the 1958 Governor's Committee for Youth and a delegate to the White House Conference on Education.

State Chairman

Mrs. Abel was state chairman of the committee working for the Juvenile Court

Big Budget Decision Is Coming

By LEO SCHERER

The reviewing is over and now come the big decisions.

Council members completed their preliminary review of the mayor's budget last week and are expected to meet sometime this week to discuss the addition of $471,979 to the requested $9,573,791 in funds supported wholly or in part by taxes.

If the Council approves the additions, the cost of city government for next fiscal year is bound to increase.

Approval of all the additions would raise the city property tax mill levy about 2.16 mills over the levy suggested by the mayor, which is .89 of a mill higher than the 25.50 mills levied for the present fiscal year.

However, there is a strong possibility the Council won't approve all the additions tentatively authorized within the past two weeks.

Hold Plea

Mayor Dean Petersen told the Council his recommended budget "is a hold-the-line budget" and he feels there shouldn't be a large mill levy increase for city government next fiscal year.

Some of the major items facing the Council are whether or not to include funds in the new budget for additional policemen, a $250,000 recreational center, the city's share of financing the addition to Bennett Martin Library, land acquisition projects and additional key city personnel like the mayor's administrative assistant.

The Council still has the public hearing on the budget facing them before a final decision can be made on the budget.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 16, in the Council chambers at City Hall.

City officials say additions or deletions can be made to the budget after the hearing and this is the time for interested citizens to appear.

"It's almost impossible to finance some of the requested expensive capital improvements with our current revenues," said the mayor.

Funding Estimate Missed

General Fund Off for Year

During the fiscal year which ended exactly one month ago, Nebraska state government's general fund had $2,745,754 less in receipts, transfers and credits than was anticipated by the State Board of Equalization last summer.

This minus-sign benchmark was made available from data accumulated by the state tax commissioner's office as a preliminary for establishment of the 1966 state property tax levy.

It could be the last state property tax in history. That depends upon decisions made by voters in the November general election.

It might also be a lower levy than the 11.73 mills fixed by the State Board last year. The pivotal factor is what the State Board does to tax values in the 85 counties the tax commissioner has recommended for adjustment.

The cumulative impact of those proposals would be the raising of Nebraska's tangible property tax base by 10%.

As for the history of Fiscal '66, which concluded June 30, there's this capsule picture:

—Amount needed to be raised by the State Board for the general fund to meet legislative appropriations . . . $68,845,623.

—Amount anticipated from non-property tax receipts, transfers and credits, as well

Beaver Crossing's Flowing Wells Are Flowing—Barely

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Beaver Crossing — A long, hot, dry summer is showing its effects in this community.

Beaver Crossing's famed flowing wells are not — or are feeble, at best.

In a strip about 12 miles long and up to two miles wide along the west fork of the Big Blue River, the numerous artesian wells are standard equipment on farms.

Even the local Flowing Well Grange takes its name from them.

But dry weather and the accompanying increased use of pump wells for irrigation had shut off the flow from most of them and slowed the rest. Recent rains have let the mechanized pumps shut down and the natural wells start pouring forth again, but pressure is low.

"They've quit every year since (pump) irrigation started down here, but this is the worst," noted Frank Hansen, who has relied until now upon the six free-flow fixtures on his place.

"We used to have water running out the top of a pipe 20 feet in the air," he said, "but recently it's been six feet below the surface.

"They'll come back after this rain, and we'll have water all right in the winter, but next season it'll probably be worse."

Hansen, who alternates well-installation work with his farming, has irrigated from the artesian wells, but, like others, he's going to be forced to put down a pump well this fall.

Stream is slow from one of Hansen's free-flow irrigation wells.

The artesian well phenomenon is rare in the state, he explained. An underground flow along the river valley through the Beaver Crossing community runs up against rock formations some five miles to the east.

Pressures build up that force the water to the surface when tapped.

All it takes is to drill through a layer of blue clay into the pool some 80 to 150 feet down. A pipe is installed, along with a valve to shut off the continuous flow.

The pure water has been used in most of the farm homes without worry the year around, but most have now put in shallow wells with pumps to carry them through the dry months of summer. Five artesian wells used to feed a large swimming pool in the Beaver Crossing park.

Tapping for pump irrigation has created the present situation, said Hansen, but he expects the flowing wells to continue producing during the low-usage months.

Many, however, have been lost in the last two years by sanding in while their flow was curtailed.

"If it gets down to where the wells won't flow in the winter, the upland boys are going to be completely out," said Hansen.

Going! Going! But When?

"When?" is the title of this picture by George E. Jacobs. It won a $35 prize in The Sunday Journal and Star Photo Contest.

Sagging Barn Near Crete Is Still Life Award Winner

Jacobs

He will receive the first of four $35 prizes to be awarded.

A picture by Jacobs was judged best among the entries in the scenes and still life category, black and white division.

The picture of an old sagging barn, held upright by two props, bears the title "When?"

It was taken on a farm north of Crete.

"My sister pointed it out to me, so I picked out a good angle that would show the lean of the barn and I took it," Jacobs said.

Judges cited the fine quality of the print in addition to the interest of the subject and the technique used. The picture was taken in mid-afternoon and the shadows accentuate the grooves in the boards.

Jacobs has been a frequent entrant in the photo contest in past years but this was his first winner.

Jacobs' picture was the winner in close competition with entries submitted by Mrs. Jeff Broady of 5831 Randolph, Edward H. Svoboda of 4435 South and Bruce B. Watts of 1256 Mulder Drive.

Other top entries in this category were submitted by Mitchell Tebo of Roca, Richard D. Eiser, 3837 Apple; Mrs. E. M. Black of Fullerton, L. H. Cook, 2111 K; Tom Slocum, 3900 Sheridan; Jay Azimzadeh, 3531 No. 11th; George Howard, 3909 Pace; Don Ogelvie of Friend; Don Tremain of Superior; and Vernon W. Baker, 3488 M.

Winners of the $35 prizes in the other three categories will be announced in following weeks.

Negro Moves in Omaha May Affect State Taxes

Shifting Near Ghetto Area Affects Sales

BY DICK HERMAN

Efforts of Omaha Negroes to break out of their residential ghetto and obtain improved housing may have a property tax impact on the entire state, it developed Saturday.

Douglas County assessing officials told the State Board of Equalization that 40% of the real estate sales they wish to exclude from a sales-assessment ratio represent transactions where the property is economically declining or elements of Omaha's population are "shifting."

Developed by the state tax commissioner's office, the Douglas County sales-assessment ratio indicates urban and suburban real estate should have a 14% cut in property tax valuations.

That development would trim the state's wealthiest and most populous county's share of the 1966 state property tax from 20.66% to 17.49%.

Other counties, including Lancaster, would then bear fractionally larger state tax burdens.

Trouble for Omaha

It would also reduce Omaha tax values and cause trouble in continuing financing of the Omaha city government and the University of Omaha. Both subdivisions are at or near statutory mill levy ceilings.

Don Paffenrath, chief appraiser under Douglas County Assessor Joe C. Stolinski, testified he checked approximately 200 of 763 sales used by the tax commissioner in arriving at the state ratio.

Of the 200, Paffenrath said 150 were objectionable for one reason or another.

"Approximately 60 of the 150 are in deteriorating or depressed areas. A lot of this is due to economic conditions and the shifting of certain segments of the population."

Asked later if he was referring to Negroes trying to move out of the Near North Side ghetto, Paffenrath said:

"I'm not going to put that in the record. You use your own judgment."

On North Side

The appraiser did say the 60 sales concern real estate "on the North Side and around the South Omaha packing houses."

To the Board, Paffenrath said he presumes checking of the remaining 563 sales used by the state would show "just about the same" amount of fallout.

Further study by both the county and the tax commissioner's office of the sales will be conducted before Stolinski and his lieutenants return before the Board Thursday morning.

Both Stolinski and Paffenrath made statements Saturday afternoon, saying Douglas County was "not objecting to the reduction." What it protests are "the methods and assessed valuations" used by the tax commisioner to arrive at his conclusion Douglas County urban values should be slimmed down.

Believed Valid

Dwain Radke, real property chief for Tax Commissioner George Dworak, said the 763 Douglas County sales were screened out of a total submission of 5,000-plus. Radke testified he believes the sampling is a valid one.

Paffenrath objected that the 763 sales represent only .58 of 1% of all taxable parcels of Douglas County real estate.

Higher county and school district levies, Paffenrath warned, would mean greater taxes on farm real estate, all personal property and motor vehicles.

Another reason cited by Paffenrath for striking transactions incorporated in the state's ratio was use of 1965 valuations which had been subsequently reduced for the 1966 tax year.

This automatically kited the ratio on the high side.

The exhibit of real estate sales in Omaha which Douglas County would like stricken contain residential situations like the following:

Assessed Value	Sales Price	Sales Assessment Ratio
$8,860	$18,000	49.22
2,940	6,500	45.23
4,005	9,000	44.50
1,780	4,000	44.50
4,880	11,200	43.39
2,040	6,600	46.08
4,760	7,500	63.47

Assessed value represents 35% of actual value, for tax purposes.

A perfect sales assessment ratio would be 35%. Property with ratios above 35% is either assessed too high or is selling under actual value.

Southeast Nebraska county officials joined Douglas authorities in hearings before the State Board Saturday.

Assessors from Gage, Jefferson and Pawnee said they had no objections to Dworak's recommendation, even though all would have higher urban or rural valuations.

More critical testimony came from Johnson, Case, Richardson and Otoe Counties.

Due to testify Monday are spokesmen for Dundy, Lincoln, Hayes, Hitchcock, Frontier, Red Willow, Furnas and Gosper Counties.

Tax Chief Unpopular

George Dworak unquestionably has become Nebraska's most controversial state tax commissioner in years and years.

And because of his recommendations to raise the taxable value of rural real estate in 77 counties and urban values in 56 counties, Dworak may also be one of the state's most unpopular current personalities.

But the tax commissioner isn't universally being condemned.

Witness a letter he received late last week from a York County resident:

"Sometimes I'm sure it must seem to you that everybody is against you on this equalization thing," Dworak was told. "Too often probably, the fellow who agrees with you sits back and says nothing.

"I am sure that there is a strong current of support for your findings and recommended adjustments in York County. (The tax commissioner has proposed a 50% increase in the taxable value of all farm land in York County.)

"Of course blanket adjustments are often erroneous, but the error caused by such adjustments should fall squarely on the shoulders of those creating the original error back at the county level."

Dworak's York County fan concluded: "I appreciate your work and I admire your fortitude."

Nebraska Tot Drowns While On Vacation

Arnolds Park, Iowa (UPI)—A two-year-old Nebraska boy drowned in Lake West Okoboji Saturday when he apparently lost his balance while wading and drifted under a dock.

Authorities said Stephen Stones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry J. Stones, Murray, Neb., was in shallow water with some 100 swimmers in the area, but apparently no one noticed the boy slip.

Senator Addresses Press Assn.

Hruska Hits Administration's 'Ability To Manage the News'

Scottsbluff (UPI)—Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., told a Western District meeting of the Nebraska Press Assn. Saturday the "credibility gap" of the Johnson administration is the result of "an arrogant disdain for the public's right to know and a cynical and highly-developed ability to manage the news."

Unable to reach Scottsbluff because of the airline strike, Hruska spoke to the group by telephone from his Washington office.

He said that typical of the administration attitude was the remark of Asst. Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester to a group of correspondents in Vietnam. Hruska quoted Sylvester as saying: "Look, if you think an American official is going to tell you the truth, then you're stupid. Did you hear that? Stupid."

Hruska said this is the same Arthur Sylvester who asserted the government's "right to lie to save itself" during the Cuban missile crisis.

When newsmen write stories displeasing to the administration, they are denounced as "irresponsible," Hruska said, "and it doesn't matter whether it is McNamara calling a story on bomb shortages in Vietnam 'baloney' or the angry denunciation of a paper that dared to print a sketch of Luci's bridesmaids' gowns three days before the White House decreed the readers were entitled to see it."

The senator also recalled "a particularly curious spectacle in Lincoln when the governor heatedly objected to a Sunday Journal and Star story from Washington about the political implications of the First Lady's Nebraska visit."

Hruska said the governor called the story "an insult and one of the worst and most irresponsible pieces of journalism I have ever seen." Hruska said the story "was borne out by similar accounts in other papers and by Mrs. Johnson's press secretary."

Friday, according to the senator, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman advised Democratic candidates for Congress to "slip, slide and duck" questions about inflation.

Hruska said Freeman thought he was talking to a closed meeting but that a Chicago Tribune reporter was present.

"This was just a matter of days after Mr. Freeman had traveled throughout Nebraska and the Midwest trying to convince farmers that he and President Johnson really didn't mean it when they had blamed the farmer for inflation."

It Was a Bad Trade

Omaha (AP) — A 19-year-old filling station attendant who agreed to exchange $2 worth of gasoline for a ride home found he had made a bad bargain.

Terry Lee McDonald said he was robbed of about $120 by two young women.

He said the two drove up just as he was closing the station and said they needed gasoline but had no money. He said the y told him they would take him home if he would give them the gas.

McDonald said he gave them the gas, closed the station, climbed into the car and then was offered a drink of whisky. He said he refused at first, but relented when they called him a "sissy."

In a few minutes his head began to spin.

He said the next thing he remembers he was walking No. 16th St.

McDonald told police $40 was taken from his own billfold and $80 from a billfold which held the day's receipts from the station.

One-Way Decision Expected

New Hearings Set Monday

By LEO SCHERER

A decision on one of the three pending one-way street systems for downtown Lincoln is expected Monday by the City Council.

The Council agreed to another public hearing last Monday after only two witnesses showed up at the public hearing on the topic.

Some Council members seemed surprised that not more appeared but the mayor said "You have had hearings already on these and now the public is leaving the issue up to you to decide."

Council members seem to be favoring adoption of a full one-way street system, with the exception of O and 15th Sts., as recommended by City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

Still in the picture is another one-way system recommended by consultants Barton-Aschmann and the one-way plan outlined in the recent Lincoln Metropolitan Area Transportation Study.

Plans Vary

There are key differences between each of the plans and the viewpoints of the state highway department, the federal government's Bureau of Public Roads and others who are expected at Monday's hearing.

Public hearings before the Council start at 1:30 p.m. and the one-way issue is expected to be one of the first items of Council business.

Even if the Council does act on a one-way system Monday, it is doubtful that any plan can be accomplished before Sept. 1.

Holsinger says it will take some time to converse to a one-way system and the Council feels it would be unwise to make the change during State Fair week or during the Nebraska football season.

The Holsinger plan, which has been on the Council's pending list for months, makes every downtown street one-way from 9th through 17th, with the exception of 15th, and from K to Q, with the exception of O St.

Difficulties Caused

State Engineer John Hossack has predicted difficulties if the full Holsinger plan is adopted, based upon the conversion of M and N Sts. to a one-way pair but Holsinger disagrees.

The Barton-Aschman plan, supported by the City-County Planning Commission and City Planning Director Douglas Brogden, now doesn't seem to be much in the favor of the Council.

This plan, however, survived a motion to indefinitely postpone last Monday and it would add only P and N as a one-way pair to the existing system.

One-Way Street Plan One of 12 Ordinances Facing Final Action

There are 12 ordinances before the City Council for final reading and public hearing Monday.

These include one-way street plan in the central business district, five zoning changes and permission for the University of Nebraska to do construction work near 14th and Avery.

The Council also has scheduled a 11 a.m. meeting to continue its hearings on complaints filed on proposed city property tax assessments.

In other Monday business, the Council has:

Pegram for a retail off-sale beer license at 980 West Cornhusker Hwy. for Monday, Aug. 15, at 1:30 p.m.; Setting date of hearing on application of Compass Room, Inc. for a bottle club license at the Municipal Airport Terminal Bldg. for Monday, Aug. 8, at 1:30 p.m.

Pioneer Eras Are Topics For Bratton Union Picnic

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Humboldt — The end of one pioneer era and the start of another will be the two main topics as Bratton Union alumni picnic over 50th anniversary fried chicken next weekend.

Backgrounding the annual get-together will be the still-proud building which was Nebraska's first consolidated high school. This fall it will serve elementary pupils only — replaced at the upper level by a strange-titled "RN-1."

The merger takes its name from Richardson and Nemaha counties, where five districts are joining forces. Centrally-located Stella will supply the grade 7-12 facilities initially, Shubert and Bratton Union the lower classes. Nemaha and an elementary district north of Stella (Higgins) will be closed.

"I was just out of the eighth grade when I helped haul brick for old Bratton Union just 50 years ago this summer," reminisced Jesse Avery, class of '20 and one of six RN-1 board members. "It's easy to remember the rural high school's exact opening—New Year's Day, 1917."

Certain to provoke comment at the Aug. 7 affair this year is a $610,000 bond issue to be voted upon two days later by the new district. Its approval would mean the start of construction on a new high school for RN-1 just north of Stella. A 20-acre tract has been offered by that town's Andrew McMullen.

Graduating 313 students through the years, Bratton Union would have had one of its largest classes in years (eight seniors) next fall. Twins Virginia and Vivian Avery and classmate Shirley Mathews ("Dad helped Bratton win the state Class C basketball championship in 1938") were in on a pre-picnic session at the old school.

Headed by former Murdock Supt. Stanley Huskey, the consolidated junior-senior high school will have approximately 200 students. The new district claims a valuation of about $5½ million.

Already titling its 11-man football team the Mustangs, RN-1 will take a permanent name for the school itself this fall. Just so the name doesn't clash with the recently-chosen colors — red, white and blue.

Man Injured In Accident

A 70-year-old Lincoln man was injured Saturday when his car struck a parked vehicle and then a tree.

He is Cliffton E. Bloom of 3333 So. 29th, who suffered multiple cuts and a possible broken hip. He was reported in "fairly good" condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Police said Bloom pulled into a service station at 13th and F and asked to have his tires checked.

The throttle apparently stuck, sending the car backward into a parked car, police said.

After hitting the other vehicle, Bloom's car was thrown into forward gear, crossing 13th and striking a tree.

Poverty Analyzed

Washington (UPI) — Phil Vogt, University of Omaha sociology professor and former Douglas County, Neb., welfare director, called Saturday for greater use of existing local programs in the anti-poverty program.

Vogt made the recommendation in a television-radio broadcast with Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb. Vogt is on leave of absence from the university at Hruska's request, to analyze new social and education laws and determine their application in Nebraska, the senator said.

Vogt said the Head Start program, which prepares very young children for school receives the greatest response in Nebraska and apparently makes the greatest contribution. But he said the program should be conducted in the schools.

"The schools should be provided with additional resources to meet this problem rather than to have another layer of administration . . . very often not experienced in this field or even very competent," he said.

Vogt said he has many reservations about the Job Corps program, "About taking young people out of the community and placing them in an artificial environment."

He suggested they should be demonstration projects based on research into whether it is possible to ". . . remotivate, to restructure the personality, the interest, and the capacity of a youngster who comes from these deprived environments of our cities."

Denney: Public Should Know About Funds' Use

Pierce—Congressional candidate Robert V. Denney of Fairbury said Saturday Americans "have a right" to ask how public funds are being used.

Denney, who opposes Democratic incumbent Clair Callan, told the Pierce County Republican fund raising dinner:

"We want to know if the large expenditures required to operate our federal government is for creating new wealth—or is it simply temporary spending?"

Later, addressing a Wayne State College audience, Denney said Congress should enact guidelines for law officers.

Denney said the rising crime rate in the nation requires that guidelines be set up, particularly since Supreme Court decisions limit what law officers can do with suspects.

On agriculture, he said it would be "silly" to eliminate government controls.

He said farmers should be guaranteed up to 100% parity in income and after that the government should devote its farm program to subsidizing foreign distribution of farm products.

'Nebraska Shorted On Research Aid'

But Senate Combatants Disagree on Reason Why

Nebraska's Senate race combatants agreed Saturday the state is shortchanged when the federal government awards research and development funds.

Gov. Frank Morrison, a Democrat, blamed a lack of "effective leadership" in the Senate.

Incumbent Sen. Carl Curtis blamed "the present system of a lack of a system for distributing" these funds.

Curtis is supporting a resolution requiring the National Science Foundation to recommend to Congress a formula for equitable distribution of these funds.

The first few days of hearings on the resolution showed "beyond any doubt" that discrimination exists, Curtis said.

"The hearings also established that government officials who administer these funds," he added, "are conscientiously interested in finding ways to eliminate or reduce this discrimination."

New England

Curtis said New England states produced only 10% more top-flight scientists and engineers than the West North Central States region—including Nebraska.

But the New England states received twice as much federal money for research and development, he said.

Morrison furnished in support of his view a compilation of 1964 federal research and development grants to Midwestern states.

These indicate that Nebraska is receiving far fewer funds even within its own region.

Morrison identified these federal grants in 1964:

Nebraska — $5,563,000. Missouri — $385,378,000. Colorado—$264,504,000. Minnesota —$72,474,000. Wyoming — $29,531,000. Iowa — $25,128,000. Kansas — $13,949,000. South Dakota—$12,463,000.

"This situation is in large degree due to the ineffective representation Nebraska has in the Senate," he said.

'Ineffective'

"It basically goes back to what Elmo Roper (national opinion analyst) said, that Carl Curtis is the least effective man in the U.S. Senate."

He said Nebraska's failure to attract more grants is a subject he would like to debate with Curtis in a face-to-face confrontation.

Curtis said he is "concerned" with the present trend in research grants because it will make rich schools richer while schools "with average or below average financing will become poorer."

He noted federal tax dollars being channeled into research and development are increasing.

In a separate statement, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said he also supports the Senate resolution asking the National Science Foundation to draft a research grant formula.

He said its object "is not to take from "the rich" universities in order to give to the poorer ones"

Its "crux," he said, is that "universities other than those few receiving the bulk of the research dollar can do the job as well."

'Tax: Top Obstacle'

Lt. Gov. Philip C. Sorensen told a banquet audience of nearly 200 labor leaders that the property tax has been a major obstacle in attracting new industry to Nebraska.

"Our tax structure is outmoded, and has prevented new industry from locating in Nebraska," he said. "We desperately need a new tax system that is fair to all citizens."

"The tax structure is a major factor taken into consideration by industry in location of new centers," he explained.

Sorenson urged labor to aid in the drive for new industry in Nebraska.

"I believe that Nebraska labor will follow its progressive traditions," he said. "The people of the state must be shown that labor will play a part in the development of Nebraska."

Sorenson, who is the Democratic nominee for governor, spoke to the Institute of Nebraska Labor Leaders at the Nebraska Center.

Property Tax Guess Faulty

as levied in property taxes . . . $69,938,674.

—Amount actually received into or credited to the general fund since July 1, 1965, based on tax commissioner figures . . . $67,192,920.

The total is thus $2.7 million under what had been sought and $1.6 million below what theoretically was required to meet legislative appropriations.

A comforting note, however, is the certainty state agencies did not spend their entire first-year entitlement from the general fund.

The Dept. of Administrative Services has not yet distributed its summary of account and fund balances for the 12 months.

Still, it is not anticipated general fund expenditures for the year exceeded $65 million, at the most.

On June 1, the cumulative 11-month bite into the general fund was $58,679,879. Monthly general fund expenditures have been running between $4 and $6 million.

Traditionally, state agencies do not spend their general fund appropriations in equal installments over the 24 months.

Division Uneven

History has shown the division is about 45-46% the first year and the remaining 54-55% the second.

Only by this kind of split is it possible for agencies heavily dependent upon general fund financing to grant salary increases during the middle of the biennium.

Besides the property tax—which constitutes about 40% of total dollar nourishment—the general fund has dozens of revenue sources.

These are usually lumped together under about 40 headings upon the yearly resolution the State Board adopts when it sets the state's general fund property tax levy.

(For 1965-67, there are 4.3 mills of property tax in legislatively-enacted special levies. Over these, the State Board has no control.)

Last August, the State Board anticipated non-property tax and grain tax receipts to the general fund of $41,253,772.

Small Error

Actual collections, transfers and credits hit $40,795,155, or only $458,617 less than expected. The margin of erroneous "guesstimate" was barely more than 1%.

A larger miss came in the property tax—about $2.2 million less in collections than was levied for.

This is not as bad as might be thought, however, when Nebraska's tax collection year is put into the perspective. During any one given state government fiscal year, property tax collections reflect only three-fourths of the current levy and the final one-fourth of the previous year's levy.

Thus in 1965-66, state property tax collections basically represented the last quarter of the previous 9.14 mill state levy and the first three quarters of the 11.73 mill levy.

It is expected that barring any change in the way Nebraskans pay their property taxes, the general fund property tax collections one year from today will exceed what the present State Board will levy for in a matter of days.

Safety Statutes Glaring

State Action Being Forced

By DEL SNODGRASS

Congress is working on highway safety legislation which could pressure the 1967 Nebraska Legislature into enacting certain safety measures the Unicameral has consistently rejected in the past.

One bill recently approved by the House Public Works Committee authorizes a three-year $260 million program to include state grants of $50 million, $75 million and $75 million for the years 1967, 1968 and 1969.

The grants would be used for the development of state highway safety programs which would have to be approved by the U.S. Secretary of Commerce.

States not having acceptable programs by the end of 1967 would lose their highway safety grants as well as 25% of the rest of their federal aid highway money.

Fear of losing that federal cash may well pressure the Legislature into requiring periodic retesting of drivers and vehicle safety checks.

Water Diversion

The Halls of Congress and elsewhere are ringing with debate over proposals to divert water from the water-rich Pacific Northwest to water-scarce Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California.

In the future, Nebraskans may get a taste of the same struggle.

Already, there is talk of legislation which would permit the diversion of water from the Platte River Basin to the Blue River Basin.

Eventually, water resource leaders say, it is inevitable water must be moved from areas where it is plentiful to areas where it is scarce.

The grandiose Colorado River Basin project threatens to divide the West. There is no reason to believe inter-basin transfers will prove any less controversial in Nebraska.

Power Choices

The 1967 Legislature probably will have to choose between two courses of action in the public power field.

One route is another attempt to merge the major power districts into a single agency—a method which may prove to be an impossible conflict with the state constitution.

The second route is to give the State Power Review Board additional authority to make it a truly regulatory body.

Angered with continual feuding within the power industry and the resulting lack of joint planning to meet future power demands, the Unicameral may choose the second course as the most expeditious.

Camp Eagle Dedication Is Next Sunday

Omaha United Community Services and Boy Scout capital campaigns made the camp development possible.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

Among Republicans there is a body of suspicion Gov. Frank Morrison promulgated those ultra-stiff administrative rules against certain state employes running for political office to embarrass Nobby Tiemann, should the Wausa banker be elected governor.

The regulations affect only those code departments and satellites under the governor's direct control. While they forced State Purchasing Agent Willard Wells and Motor Vehicles Dealers Licensing Board fieldman John Wood out of their state jobs, Omahan James E. Donahue apparently is exempted.

Donahue, Democratic nominee for Douglas County assessor, is Nebraska's state athletic commissioner and a gubernatorial appointee. His office technically comes under the Department of Health, not a code agency.

Commenting upon the rules to newsmen last week, Morrison acknowledged they are "very, very strict." Then he said "other people can govern their own administrations."

All-Time Worst?

If he lives long enough, there's a Nebraskan who could very well earn the title of the state's all-time worst driver.

Motor Vehicles Director Jim Dunlevey gulped twice and reported that within five years this particular motorist TWICE has had his operator's license revoked on points for a 12-month period. Moreover, he's one point shy of a third revocation.

All of the points were piled up, Dunlevey says, on such offenses as speeding, negligent driving, stop sign running and others.

The latest addition to the driver's record reflects a new address—Lincoln. And the motorist's age? He's 21.

From the Backs of Envelopes

It's been proposed the Nebraska State Penitentiary dispense with the traditional "hole" for hard customers. Other states have done it easily—through the semantic trick of calling the punishment "therapeutic seclusion."

When they received July electric bills last week, reflecting night and day home air conditioner operation recently, many state workers thought of quick trips to their credit union.

The Department of Administrative Services' budget division is being cursed in some agencies for failing to put printed lines across the complicated budget request forms. Hours have been spent by employes filling in lines with rulers.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh carries a pocket tape recorder. He uses it like a memo pad.

A couple of state authorities are saying things which can be taken at cross purposes. While Resources Division Chief David Osterhout is busting buttons about Nebraska industrial growth, Fire Marshal Joe Divis says times are so hard some property owners are resorting to arson.

Legislative Council executive board members last week complained the interim budget committee gets involved in understandings with agencies, when the executive board is ultimately responsible, but is left in the dark.

Microfilming Cost Reported to County

By HAROLD SIMMONS

It was estimated this week that $1,500 would more than cover costs of microfilming necessary records in the County Election Commissioner's office if such a step is taken.

One microfilm salesman informed the County Commissioners the estimate included film cost and rental of a machine that can film up to 700 items a minute.

With such a fast machine, he said, it should only take two or three weeks steady work to film the 200,000 to 300,000 voter registration cards on file.

Board Chairman Ralph Harlan had suggested the records be filmed after a recent fire in an elevator shaft of the Terminal Building next to the Election Commissioner's office.

Courthouse Call

Lousy Directions

"Pretty poor tourism promotion," was one person's comment last Monday after taking a look at signs on 10th St. in front of the Courthouse pointing the way to Sheldon Art Gallery, the historical museum and the State Capitol.

The first of the three blue signs directing the way to Sheldon was easy enough to read from a vehicle. But the one for the historical museum was partially obscured by a tree limb.

And the sign pointing the way to the Capitol was pointing the wrong direction.

The top bolt holding the sign to the post apparently came out and the sign had swung upside down so it was directing northbound traffic to turn west (wrong way down a one-way K St.) to the Capitol.

Hearing Preview

Among the first-day spectators — and sometime participants — at the opening hearings of the State Board of Equalization last Tuesday were County Atty. Paul Douglas and Deputy Atty. Floyd Sterns.

They attended the first "show cause" hearings on proposed property valuation hikes to get some idea of what to expect when Lancaster County appears Aug. 5.

Douglas and Sterns will bear the brunt of presenting the county's case for opposing valuation hikes.

Hospital Insurance Cost to Triple

State Insurance Director Frank Barrett said Saturday Nebraska non-profit hospitals will probably pay three times as much for liability insurance next year because of a recent State Supreme Court decision.

Barrett said he has received a letter from the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters—rate-setters for hospital insurance — which plans the increase.

The Bureau, which has not yet established firm figures for the boost, said it would probably set per bed rates from $5 a year to $16 a year for liability insurance.

In April, the high court said the non-profit hospitals—which comprise the majority of Nebraska medical centers—are no longer exempt from liability for negligent injuries to patients.

Reversed Itself

The court reversed itself from a 54-year-old position which had excluded the hospitals from negligence suits.

"If this exemption formerly met a need," wrote Associate Justice Robert Smith, "it has had its day."

In the case, the court ruled that an infant was negligently injured in Omaha's Lutheran Medical Center. It said the child's parents could recover for injuries.

On a motion for rehearing, the high tribunal rejected the medical facility's appeal for reconsideration.

The Underwriter's Bureau quickly took note of the Nebraska law change.

"In recognition of the substantial change in the legal situation resulting from the afore mentioned court decision, we will probably be proposing a rate of $16 per bed," the Bureau said.

Little Price Change

Barrett, however, said the increased costs of liability insurance policies probably would have little effect on the price of hospitalization in Nebraska.

"It will result in an increase in insurance rates, but so small in overall costs, that the individual utilizing hospital facilities will not notice the change," Barrett said.

Mrs. Abel Active in Community

Amendment and vice president of the Lincoln Centennial.

She had been a member of boards of directors for Doane College, Hastings College and Nebraska Wesleyan University.

The Plattsmouth native had also been a former member of the First-Plymouth Congregational Church board of trustees.

She enrolled at the University of Nebraska at the age of 15, graduating in 1908 with a major in mathematics, a B.A. degree and a teacher's certificate.

For 10 years before her marriage to George P. Abel she taught in several Nebraska secondary schools.

After her marriage in 1918, Mr. and Mrs. Abel moved to Lincoln into the house in which Mrs. Abel lived until her death.

For many years Mrs. Abel had been on the board of directors and executive committees of the Community Chest and Red Cross.

Hospital Posts

She also was a director of Lincoln General Hospital, and for one year was president. She also was president of the Hospital's women's auxiliary.

Mrs. Abel has been president of the Lincoln Branch of the American Assn. of University Women, Parent-Teachers Assn. and Native Sons and Daughters of Nebraska.

She was also a key leader in the Nebraska League of Women Voters, the Lincoln YWCA, Lincoln Camp Fire Girls, Lincoln Girl Scout Council, National Board of Camp Fire Girls, and the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Survivors include a son, George P. of Lincoln; four daughters, Miss Alice Abel of Lincoln, Mrs. Gene (Hazel) Tallman of Lincoln, Mrs. Harry (Helen) Ragen of San Diego, Calif., and Miss Ann Abel of Nice, France; a brother, Eugene Hempel of San Bernadino, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Sistek of Omaha; and seven grandchildren.

Services are pending at Roper and Sons' Mortuary.

Escaped Pilot In Hospital

San Diego, Calif. (AP)— Lt. (J. G.) Dieter Dengler, the first U.S. flier to escape from North Vietnam is at Balboa Naval Hospital in good condition, the Navy confirms.

Dengler, 28, of Pacifica, Calif., was admitted Wednesday night for treatment of malnutrition and foot trouble, officials said.

He was rescued July 20 after a 23-day ordeal evading his captors.

Omaha Date Accepted

Gov. Morrison said Saturday he has accepted an invitation to appear before the Omaha Chamber of Commerce in October to present his views of problems facing the state.

Morrison said, however, he regrets Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., will not appear on the same rostrum.

The governor seeks the Senate seat now held by Curtis, a contest to be decided in the Nov. 8 election.

"The Curtis refusal to appear before the Omaha Chamber of Commerce indicates that not only is he unwilling to engage in a free discussion of the issues, but he also is reluctant to present his own program to the people of Nebraska," Morrison said.

The governor, who has persistently challenged Curtis to debate, said he was "extremely disappointed . . . especially when the senator seems to be very willing to attend political rallies, cocktail parties, parades and celebrations."

ing bill and a couple of other gambling bills were offered at the last legislative session but were defeated.

"I voted against the increase in the pari-mutual tax," he said, "because I've lost too much there already."

Dr. Mario Meimaroglou, a University of Nebraska visiting professor from Greece, addressed the labor leaders on the European Common Market.

The communist block, he stated, is putting strong pressure on Greece because of its strategic location.

The country controls access to the Middle East, he noted, and is separated from other Common Market countries by communist satellites and by the sea.

Richar Nisley, state president of the AFL-CIO, summarized the tax-oriented session, saying, "We all want more government services — better police and fire protection, better streets and roads, better schools—and taxes will have to go up to pay for them.

"Property tax has reached the saturation point," he declared, "and this means we need a broadened base.

In Memorial of Norma Jean Tuttle who passed away July 30, 1965.
A year ago today
God called you away
Time recalls sad memories
The days seem so long,
Only God knows how much we miss you
How much we loved you too!
Though your smiles no longer with us
And your little voice is still
We can feel your presence near us
As we sit and talk of you.
And some day when God calls us
We'll meet again in Heaven,
Up there beyond the blue!

Sooners Remain Top Grid Power of Past 25 Years

By BOB HOOBING
Boston Herald
Written for The Associated Press

Streak-bolstered Oklahoma, unable to defeat Texas the past eight seasons, still tops the consistent Longhorns for major college football's 25-year championship.

Notre Dame holds down the third spot hotly pursued by Ohio State, Michigan State and Army in a quarter century survey of gridiron achievments.

The Sooners owe their supremacy for the period 1941 through 1965 to the fact they put together amazing winning streaks of 47 and 31 games. The former is an all-time record for a team against collegiate competition and ran from the third game of 1953 until late '57 when a fourth down gamble carried Notre Dame to a 7-0 triumph.

After losing to Santa Clara in the 1948 opener, the Sooners forged the 31-game chain until Kentucky pulled its famed 13-7 upset in the 1951 Sugar Bowl game.

The pair of big runs helped mightily to amass the record of 189 victories, 61 losses and eight ties which lead the field for the 25-year span. Texas has a 187-67-7 mark.

Ironically, Oklahoma's leaders are 9-16 shortenders to the Longhorns and 1-5 to Notre Dame for the period. More than one-third of the Sooners' losses have been to these two powers.

But the Oklahomans have better than 61 per cent success against all their other opposition.

Without benefit of any exceptionally long unbeaten stretches, the Longhorns have gained number two ranking on sheer steadiness.

Texas has had only two losing seasons in the past quarter century — 4-5-1 in 1954 and 1-9 in '56. It has put together nine straight winning campaigns and in 13 of the last 25 has lost two or less contests during the regular season.

Among teams it has faced more than once, Texas is a loser to only Notre Dame and Southern in California.

The Longhorns will be trying to make it nine straight over Oklahoma in the battle for the Bronze Cowboy Hat trophy in Dallas Oct. 8. And it will again be directed by former Sooner quarterback, Darrell Royal.

Notre Dame, on the ascendancy again after a slump period, put together a 39-game undefeated skein between 1946-50.

The teams rated are those which have held major college status most of the period involved and does not include recently elevated schools.

Geographically, the South has nine representatives in the top 25. The East has seven and the Midwest six.

Wilson, Borner Take Golf Lead

By HAL BROWN

Lincoln's Charlie Borner and Omaha's Dean Wilson Jr. charged in with identical four-under-par 32s on the back nine at Pioneers Park Saturday to take the first round lead at two-under-par 70 in the second annual Governor's Sweepstakes Golf Tournament.

But their lead can hardly be considered a comfortable one as action shifts to Holmes Park today for a final 27 holes in the championship flight.

All 25 golfers in the championship flight are within the 70 to 75 bracket.

A trio of golfers—Phil Breitfelder, Bill Jennings and Jerry Trimble—are only one shot back of Borner and Wilson as 11 golfers matched or bettered par on the par 36-36-72 Pioneers course under ideal weather conditions Saturday.

Both Wilson and Borner made the turn at two-over-par 38 with three bogeys and a birdie, but Wilson played without taking a bogey after he went three-over-par by bogeying the first two holes and three of the first five.

Wilson's 70 included a two-stroke penalty for hitting the wrong ball while putting on the first green.

Borner took a liking to the par-3s and the par-5s on the back side, birdieing all of them.

Wilson shot his back-side 32 by birdieing the par-5 11th, the par-4 14th, the par-43 17th and the par-18th.

Jennings had an eagle-3 on the 15th enroute to his 71 and Sam Beechner, playing in the same foursome with Borner, also eagled the 15th.

Gene Chadwell, playing in the senior flight, eagled the par-4 16th with a five-iron second shot.

All flights other than the championship will play 18 holes today at Holmes. Governor Morrison will present the trophies to flight winners.

The championship flight will begin teeing off on their first 18 at 8:48 a.m. and will begin the final nine holes of the 27-hole round at 3:06 p.m.

Other flight tee times with flight scores in parenthesis are:

Seniors Flight (73-87)—8:12-8:30
First Flight (76-79)—1:09-1:54
Second Flight (80-81)—12:24-1:09
Third Flight (82-84)—11:30-12:24

Quick-striking Ken Witt's and Gerry's passed opening round tests in the Area Four American Legion Junior baseball tourney at Sherman Field Saturday night.

Witt's exploded for all of its runs in the first two innings in a 6-4 triumph over First National Bank, while defending champion Gerry's gave Mike Delaney an early cushion and took an 8-0 decision from the Optimists.

First National and the Optimists will battle for survival in the double elimination tourney at 5:30 tonight and the winners will tangle at 8. Midget play also opens this afternoon as the entries bid for qualifying spots in next week's state tournament in Omaha.

The big blow in the four-run Witt's first inning was a bases-loaded double by Dan Jablonski, who knocked in Dana Stephenson, Mike Bohaty and John McEniry.

The Pius X-based nine continued its blitz in the second inning, chasing First National Bank starter Steve Mitchell. McEniry, who went the distance for the mound triumph, helped his cause with a two-out, two-run single which ended Mitchell's brief stint.

Reliever Steve Russell then silenced the Ken Witt's bats the rest of the way, allowing just one single through the last seven innings.

Boswell One-Hits Orioles; Cards Continue Rampage

By Associated Press

Minnesota's Dave Boswell held Baltimore to one hit—a seventh-inning single by Russ Snyder—in the Twins' 7-0 victory over the American-League-leading Orioles Saturday.

Rich Allen's two-run homer and Larry Jackson's five-hit pitching led Philadelphia to a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh but the Pirates retained first place in the National League race when Atlanta edged San Francisco 6-5 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader on Dennis Menke's bases-loaded single in the 11th inning.

Boswell struck out 11 Orioles for a league-leading total of 149 en route to his sixth straight victory and 10th in 15 decisions. The 24-year-old right-hander issued a lead-off walk in the first inning, then retired 18 men in order before Snyder singled sharply to right starting the seventh.

Earl Battey's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Harmon Killebrew paced the Twins' attack.

Allen's 24th homer, after a single by John Briggs in the fifth, helped Jackson lift his record to 10-9 as the Phillies snapped a five-game losing string.

Menke, whose ninth inning single Friday night gave Atlanta a 7-6 victory over the Giants, singled on reliever Linday McDaniel's first pitch Saturday, delivering the winning run. Mack Jones' run-scoring single and Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly pulled the Braves even 5-5 in the seventh, ruining Gaylord Perry's bid for victory No. 16.

The Cincinnati Reds whipped Houston 5-1 for their fifth victory in a row on Deron Johnson's three-run homer, Vada Pinson's two-run blast and the six-hit pitching of Sammy Ellis. The Reds have won 10 of their last 12 games while the Astros have dropped seven straight.

Gary Peters pitched a three-hitter as the Chicago White Sox blanked the New York Yankees, 6-0, handing Mel Stottlemyre his 12th loss. Three of Peters' seven victories this season have been over New York.

George Scott drilled a three-run homer and George Smith drove in three runs with a homer and double, leading the Boston Red Sox past Washington, 8-2. Jose Santiago stopped the Senators on six hits.

Larry Elliot's two-run single highlighted a three-run rally in the fifth inning that carried the New York Mets past the Chicago Cubs 6-3.

John (Blue Moon) Odom allowed only two hits in eight innings and drove in both runs in Kansas City's 2-1 victory over Detroit.

The surging St. Louis Cardinals made it six straight victories and 12 in their last 13 games, moving within six games of the National League lead by beating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Al Jackson.

Tom Satriano drove in the winning run with a single in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving California a 2-1 victory over Cleveland.

Satriano's single was only the fifth off Indian pitcher Gary Bell and scored Jackie Hernandez, who ran for Norm Siebern who had walked. Hernandez had reached second on Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice.

The Braves completed a sweep of the doubleheader with a 15-2 victory in the night game as Gene Oliver drove in seven runs with three homers.

Groth in Youth Swim

Journal and Star's Youth Worker of Year

By HAL BROWN

Wendell Groth is a self-admitted dreamer, who happens to have seen more than his share of dreams realized.

And because most his dreams-come-true have been to the benefit of Lincoln youngsters, Groth is the winner of the third annual Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star Youth Worker of The Year Award.

Groth, a Lincoln father of two girls, thus joins Dick Matthews and Larry Emery as award winners.

Is he an idealist?

"No," he answers. "Id rather think of myself as a dreamer."

Groth's dreams have not been of the minor variety. One of his first dreams that was fulfilled was the building of Woods Pool with its olympic-sized swimming area and olympic-standard diving boards.

And the fulfillment of the dream led to the accomplishment of other dreams coming true, one of which will be staged at Woods Pool Aug. 18-21 when the National AAU Swimming and Diving Championships will unfold in Lincoln.

"It was born of frustration," Groth recalls in discussing the Woods Pool dream. "Gretchen (his daughter who is now 23) and several others in Lincoln had exceptional potential as divers and swimmers.

"But at that time there were no three-meter diving boards and few one-meter boards. And where there were boards, the water was shallow and there was no coaching available."

This was the start of the Woods Pool dream.

"If kids who have potential are to develop, two basic things are needed," Groth continues. "The first thing you need is water and by having the water with proper facilities, you can attract the second necessary item—coaches."

But when Woods Pool became a reality, Groth still was not satisfied to stop there. Now that a pool was available, Groth started dreaming about other things.

"At that time the youngsters were competing only against their friends and others in Lincoln," Groth points out. "I thought if they were to develop their skills further, they needed added competition."

And thus the Great Plains AAU meet was the next step.

"We needed regional competition to provide a purpose for the swimmers to want to improve," he explains. "The only way people are going to improve is to make higher goals that they have to reach for."

But isn't this concept merely one for the competitive swimmer? How about Wendell's interest in swimming for recreation only.

"That (competitive swimming) is a misconception some people have of me," he corrects. "I am just as interested in recreational swimming and in youngsters learning to swim as in the competitive aspects.

"But after they learn to swim, there should be something available that will make them want to work and that will give them something more for which to strive."

It was the learning aspect that first got Groth, a Lincoln insurance executive started in swimming promotion.

"When I was very young, I almost drowned and it took me several years to get over my fear of water," he recalls. "I made up my mind that my children would never have to go through that fear and I don't think any youngster should have to go through it."

I May Be Wrong

By Curt Mosher

Since summer time is such a busy time, some of you may have missed some of the current movies, particularly the youngsters who are saved only occasionally by Walt Disney, and otherwise must lie about their age.

But never fear, you can still discuss these film epics with your friends after reading the following brief synopsis:

The Sound of Music—A documentary dealing with the high school band masters and their drive to gain a foothold on Memorial Stadium.

The Spy Who Came in From the Cold—A tear-jerker about a high school football scout who, after working pressboxless fields for the first seven games of the year is finally sent to a modern field.

Boy, Did I Get A Wrong Number—Suspense yarn about an athletic director and a football coach from a rival school who get their wires crossed.

Jolly Musical

Patch of Blue—A jolly musical about a low-budgeted athletic department which had its tattered uniforms saved by the sophomore girls home economics department.

The Agony and the Ecstasy—A simple plot, presenting a study in contrast and featuring Doug Weaver and Bob Devaney.

Cast a Giant Shadow—A sequel to A Boy Ten Feet Tall, relating the problems of a college basketball player who does cast a giant shadow, but who can't cast a basketball.

A Fine Madness—A homespun situation comedy about working parents who attempt to get their young son in Little Chiefs off to the ball games.

The Long Trip

Flower Drum Song—A travelog featuring the colorful recruiting trips to the islands by Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty.

Thunder in Dixie—A drama capturing the disappointment of Alabama fans who were shook to learn that when Bear Bryant was ailing he went to doctors, most noting they thought he could heal himself.

Battle of the Bulge—A training film considered as desired viewing for football players about to report for fall camp.

Time Out for Ginger—Another training film, this one policemen and football officials and starting a mutt named Ginger, which is designed to prepare them to get dogs off the football field in less than a quarter.

The Brutal Climax

And Now Miguel—A sad and upsetting story of a half back named Miguel who has been dating the coach's daughter without permission. The horrible climax comes when the coach, with a smirk on his face, announces two-on-one drills, turns to the back and says: "And now, Miguel, you get yours."

Trouble With Angel—A cowboy epic starring Gene Autry and telling of his many trials in attempting to head off Bo Belinsky at the pass, or more accurately, Belinsky's passes.

The Collector—A fast paced travelog with plot of an athletic director on the fund-raising trail.

The Sleeping Car Murder—A timely mystery of grounded major leaguers. The heavy is a pitcher who slays a shortstop for booting a ground ball in the ninth.

The Dirty Game—The rock 'em, sock 'em, blood curdling experiences of two elderly horseshoe pitchers.

Midwest Races

Flying Farmer Not Discouraged

The weekly "will they catch Lloyd Beckman" event at Midwest Speedway gets underway at 8:30 p.m. tonight and one of those given a good chance of ploughing under the Lincoln leader is George Odvody, the Flying Farmer.

Odvody, who has a 240-acre spread near Morse Bluff, is not discouraged about not being able to overtake Beckman.

"I've just got to keep on trying," he says. "He's got a real good machine and they keep it up real good. And Lloyd's a good charger.

"But I think we've got just as good a machine, although it's not quite as fast as it used to be. Maybe we don't keep it up as good."

Odvody, who scored a victory on asphalt his first start in Omaha this year Friday night, has raced on most tracks in the area.

And while he has yet to win the point championship in Lincoln, the 38-year-old pilot has been a consistent performer.

"Last year when I finished second was my best finish," he says. "But I've always managed to finish in the top five. I've led the point standings before, but something always seemed to happen to me down the stretch."

Odvody, who drives for Roger Abbott of Lincoln, is optimistic about the future.

"We're supposed to get a new engine," he says. "If we do, look out."

Odvody said they hoped to have the new equipment in time for the national events at Knoxville, Iowa, scheduled Aug. 11-12-13.

Odvody raises just about everything on his farm and the racing sideline keeps him jumping in the summer time. But he's beginning to get a little help from his 11-year-old son.

But what he wants to raise most right now is a checkered flag at Midwest.

Northeast's Ketterer To Attend Creighton

Omaha — Jack Ketterer playmaker and clutch scorer for Lincoln Northeast High School who led the Rockets to the finals of the State Class A basketball tournament, has accepted a grant-in-aid to attend Creighton University, Bluejay athletic director and coach John J. McManus announced.

Ketterer

Ketterer, six-foot guard, was the keystone of the Northeast attack and trouble-shooter for the Rockets — the player they called on when they needed some clutch points. Northeast Coach Ed Johnson said he was the "best guard he ever coached" at the Lincoln school which is a perennial power in Nebraska athletics.

The Bluejays' McManus labeled the Lincoln all-stater a "great competitor and a heady guard who should fit in real well with our offense. He's an excellent ball-handler, can work the fast break, and can score. Jack is a leader, a real quarterback type of player."

Ketterer averaged 15 points for the Rockets his senior year, generally getting them when the going was toughest. His forte, however, was as a feeder for his taller teammates. He averaged 11 assists a game. Creighton has been loaded with frontline talent the past couple of years but has needed help at guard.

The Lincoln Northeast all-around athlete was in the upper fifth of his senior class of 471. He will enroll in the Creighton University College of Arts and Sciences, majoring either in mathematics or one of the sciences.

Wendell: You Must See Best

daughters, Gretchen and 21-year-old Gaynelle, swimming at the age of 2½.

"You should start them young before they have a chance to become afraid of water," he explains. "At any early age, they haven't had a chance to develop any fears and they will learn so much faster and better."

Wendell also was a leader in extending the Lincoln Swim Club's program into a year-round affair. At a time when the LSC program was a summer project only, Groth was made chairman of the winter program and this led to the full-year program which the Lincoln Swim Club now conducts.

When Groth first started thinking about bringing the national meet to Lincoln as far back as 1957 or 1958, he had Lincoln's young swimmers in mind.

"The least we can do is to allow our youngsters to see the best swimmers in the world,' he explains. "Youngsters are born mimics and after this meet (the National AAU Championships), you'll see youngsters at all the swimming pools doing the Schollander (Don, winner of four 1964 Olympic Gold Medals) kick.

"These youngsters will never improve unless they can see the best and you can't transport 500 or 1,000 Lincoln youngsters to California or Toledo for a national meet."

So Groth did the next best thing. He is bringing the best national swimmers to Lincoln.

Now that he has realized several major dreams, is he ready to quit dreaming?

Nope.

"I think we have a good chance of getting the Olympic tryouts here for the next Olympics in Mexico City," he says with a smile.

"And I'd also like to see Lincoln come up with a public indoor swimming facility," he continues. "I am very satisfied with what we have and I don't want to sound like a complainer, but we do need an indoor plant for the public.

"We have some fine indoor school swimming facilities and the pool at the new Lincoln East school will be excellent, but they are still tied to the school system and thus are not available to the public enough."

Groth may never stop dreaming and as long as he is dreaming, Lincoln's young swimmers are continuing to benefit.

Hi Sugar Captures Handicap

$769.20 Returned In Double

Hi Sugar, track record holder at a mile and 70 yards, found that distance and a heavy track to his liking Saturday in capturing the $5,000 State Fair Board Executive Handicap.

Well placed in the middle of the pack in the early running, the five-year-old winner and second place Stick Shift made a simultaneous move on front-running Strong Salient with three furlongs to go.

Murdock got the Wilber Brown-trained entry on top by a length and the $3,000 first place money went to owner George E. Trumbull of Sioux City. Favored Polo Palm finished fourth behind Flying Harbour.

Lori Rae, ridden by Tom Osment, was a wire-to-wire winner in the opening race, returning $47.20.

Ray also scored with Kin Fly ($40.20), in the fourth race and World Herald in the finale.

Packers Have Big Investment In College All-Star Gold Mine

Chicago (AP)—The champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, pegged 15-point favorites, meet the last pack of big gold prospectors from the college ranks in the 33rd annual All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The Packers themselves have a heavy investment among the opposing 47 pro football-bound lads, who profited handsomely in the battle of dollars now apparently ended with the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The fast and brawny All-Star array, seeking the first collegiate victory over the NFL champs since the Packers were upended 20-17 in 1963, includes two explosive Packer rookies, Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. They reportedly cost Green Bay $575,000 and $325,000 respectively to sign.

Performing against the Packers also will be such well-heeled rookies as linebacker Frank Emmanuel of Tennessee ($350,000 from the Miami Dolphins) and halfback Mike Garrett of Southern California ($325,000 for the Kansas City Chiefs).

Despite the liberal wealth of the collegiate squad, new All-Star head coach John Sauer regards this as one of the most cooperative, hardest-working units assembled for the mid-summer classic.

Friday night's game, which finds the NFL champs holding a 21-9-2 edge in the series, will be telecast nationally by the American Broadcasting Company, starting at 8 p.m.

The contest, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will pack about 65,000 in arclighted Soldier Field

The All-Stars showed some rough spots in bowing to the Chicago Bears 34-20 in a game type scrimmage Thursday at the Bears' St. Joseph College camp

But the tune-up also indicated the All-Stars may have the best running attack in several years, hubbed around big, but fast ball-carriers.

These include Roy Shivers 200, Utah State; Jim Roland 207, Missouri; Garrett 195, Southern California's Heisman Trophy winner; Walt Garrison 205, Oklahoma State; and Anderson and Grabowski.

The quarterback assignment, probably uncertain until kickoff time, will go to one of a trio including Steve Sloan of Alabama, Bill Anderson of Tulsa and Gary Lane of Missouri.

Walter Barnes, University of Nebraska All-American tackle and now with the Washington Redskins, is the only Husker on the All-Star squad.

Shrine Bowl Players

Class C, D Schools Have Four on South

By DON FORSYTHE

Class C and D high schools contribute 4 of the 33 players on the South Shrine Bowl football team.

Bertrand's Roger Sand and Pawnee City's Bob Mawhiney are the Class C products while Polk's Dennis Sealey and Western's Dennis Bartels come from the Class D ranks.

Mawhiney is one of the biggest South lineman at 6-0 and 225 pounds. The all-state choice has excellent mobility for his size, however, as he demonstrated while starting for Pawnee City's state tournament basketball entry.

Bob earned letters in football, basketball, track and golf in his high school career.

Like Sand, Sealey and Bartels, Bob is working on a farm this summer.

Sand, a 5-10, 160-pound athlete, will bid for a backfield berth with the South club.

Like Mawhiney, he played in the state Class C basketball tournament.

Sealey Mawhiney Sand Bartels

The Kearney-born youngster lettered in football, basketball and track at Bertrand and had notable success in the latter sport where he shared the Class C pole vault record for one year and scored in the broad jump and 100-yard dash in the state meet.

The 5-10, 194-pound competitor's hobbies are swimming and spectator sports.

He served as a class president and was salutatorian of his graduating class.

Bartels is the South's only representative from the eight-man ranks.

The 6-2, 200-pound performer was a letterman in football, basketball and track at Western. He scored in the shot put in the state track meet as a senior.

Although busy in athletics, he had time to post an enviable record in the classroom, being valedictorian of his graduting class. He's looking ahead to a career in engineering.

Dennis is Western's first representative in a Shrine Bowl football game, an honor Sand also claims for Bertrand.

Taber After Third Consecutive Title

By HAL BROWN

Matt Taber, the red-thatched Lincoln southpaw, will attempt this week to become the first Capital City golfer to win three straight titles in the Lincoln Men's City Golf Tournament.

But the three-time champion (his other title came in 1962) has a couple of tough obstacles to overcome in his quest to make Lincoln golf history.

Taber's No. 1 obstacle could be his own game, which has not been as good this summer as the Taber of old.

If that isn't enough of an obstacle, he also must conquer the best field that has entered a city tournament since the turn of the decade.

"My game is so bad that I'm lucky to be leading," the defending champion moaned a couple of weeks ago after shooting a 68 to lead the first round of the York Open. Then he shot a final round 81 to prove that he wasn't just crying for effects.

Taber, who normally has been bothered by a hook the past couple of years, suddenly came up with a fading ball in the state tournament 10 days ago at Hastings and finished far down the list after taking second in the Nebraska State tourney a year ago.

The Lincoln Country Club golfer can hardly afford to go into this year's city tournament with his game not in top shape.

A number of top contenders will be on hand in an effort to keep Taber from doing what the likes of Don Chapin, Phil Aitken, H. R. Wilson, Dick Spangler Jr., Bill Mowbray and Gary Gruenemeier were unable to accomplish.

Those golfers all won two straight city championships, but were unable to pull off a third in a row. Wilson made a bid for three straight twice, but was thwarted in 1931 by Morris Fisher and in 1934 by Harry Kaufman, an uncle of Charlie Borner, one of those expected to battle Taber for this year's crown.

But Borner, who finished third in the state golf tournament at Hastings, is only one of many who are ready to end Taber's domination of the city tourney.

Hillcrest Country Club will send a host of top challengers after the Lincoln Country Club golfer. With Borner leading the Hillcrest contingent, he will be joined by Nick West, Chuck Sweetman, Scott Brunzell, and Ed Smith.

West, Brunzell and Sweetman all finished high in the state tourney while Smith passed up the Nebraska meet.

A top public links player ready to challenge is Larry Romjue, who had only one bad round at Hastings (79) and still managed to finish in a tie for sixth.

The golfers will continue to use two courses with Hillcrest and Pioneers in use Tuesday and Wednesday and the action shifting to the Lincoln Country Club and Holmes for Thursday and Friday play.

The banquet will be staged at the Lincoln Country Club Friday evening.

City golfers have until 5 p.m. tonight to enter the tournament.

Jacks' Popularity May Be Growing On Campus

By TOM HENDERSON

Although it might not be one of the area's most popular sports, the game of jacks has gained a considerable following among the campus set recently — "And you go from onesies, to twosies, to threesies . . ."

Henderson

"The object of the game is to see how far you can go," Judi Brecka a senior at the University of Nebraska offers.

Jacks is probably one of the most ignored games on today's sports pages (along with marbles and maybe the world flyswatting championships).

The game is played with a small rubber ball and 10 horny metallic objects known as jacks.

The player first rolls all the jacks onto the floor (preferably not carpeted), then lofts the ball into the air, letting it bounce once while he or she grabs frantically for a jack.

The player must pick up all the jacks one at a time without touching another jack in the process. After the jacks have been retrieved one at a time, the player moves on to "twosies", picking up two jacks at a time.

Should the ball bounce more than once or should the player touch a jack which isn't being picked up, the turn is finished and he must start over at the beginning of his next turn.

After the player has successfully picked up all 10 jacks at once, he moves on to "eggs in the basket" where he goes through the whole thing again only this time picking up the jacks in one hand and placing them in the other before catching the ball.

After that comes "pigs in the pen, horses in the stable, highchairs, around the world, no bounces," and many other equally challenging tests.

Where does it all end? "It doesn't," says Anita Lambrecht, Judi's roommate. "It ends when you get tired. You can have marathon jacks tournaments that last for days because people can keep inventing new things to do."

This, along with a lack of spectator interest, seems to be one of the most critical problems which keeps jacks from becoming big-time such as football and golf.

The game was revived on campus this spring, and although its popularity won't rival that of the Cornhusker football team for some time, Judi reports that "in sorority houses its the big thing."

Speedway Golf Has Two Tied

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP) — National Open champion Billy Casper scored two birdies and an eagle on the last three holes for a 68 Saturday to share the third-round lead of the $92,000 Speedway Golf Festival with R. H. Sikes.

Sikes also had a four-under-par 68 after taking a bogey 6 on the final hole when he wandered into the trees and three-putted.

Casper coupled 35-33 for his 68 over the 36-36-72 course. It is such a new layout that winter rules, improving the lie on the fairway, are being enforced.

The conditions were not too conducive for great shotmaking and there was a dropout of 14 players, the most for a PGA—sponsored event this year.

Casper said that the greens were so hard that it was difficult to try to read them.

"It is a shame that no water has been put on these greens," he said.

Defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia and three other pros were disqualified in the big dropout.

Crampton, who was among the top runners with a two-under-par 142; Bob Charles of New Zealand, Homero Blancas and Harold Kneece were ousted for failure to comply with the new PGA continuous putting rule.

The regulation was put into the books to help speed play and was in use in the U.S. Open, the Western Open and the National PGA. Simply, it requires a player to putt out regardless of his distance from the hole.

Left-hander Charles was challenging for the lead with 71-69—140 and Kneece was 146. Blancas was far off the pace with 160.

"I just forgot completely about the rule," said Crampton.

Tournament supervisor Jack Tuthill put the blame strictly on the players.

"It is their responsibility to become familiar with the rules under which they play each week," he said.

Others who have dropped out of the tournament include Dudley Wysong, the recent PGA runner-up, who said he had back trouble; Joe Campbell, also with back trouble; Wysong's brother, Charley, who took a 17 on one hole Friday; Jim Ferrier, who said he had an upset stomach; and Bert Yancey, who quit after a first-nine 42

Sport Signals

By Hal Brown

When the Green Bay Packers meet the College All-Stars at Chicago's Soldier Field Friday night, most of the Nebraska allegiance will be with the All-Stars.

Green Bay, by trading ex-Huskers Lloyd Voss and Tony Jeter to Pittsburgh the past week and by losing former Nebraska quarterback Dennis Claridge to Atlanta last winter, has left itself void of Nebraskans.

Couple this with putting Nebraska all-America Walt Barnes in the All-Star roster, and you get only one guess as to where Nebraska football fans will throw their support.

Not The Case 22 Years Ago

But such was not the case 22 years ago when the Packers had ex-Huskers Herm Rohrig and Charlie Brock in their lineup.

Rohrig took a brief interruption in his stint with Uncle Sam to lead the Packers to a 19-7 win over the College All-Stars in the 1945 game.

The 22 years have dimmed Rohrig's memories of that game, but old newspaper files, which do not fade, recall that it was the former Nebraska halfback who threw a touchdown pass for the first Packer score in the contest.

Not One Of Finest

"It wasn't one of the finest passes ever thrown," Rohrig observed in a telephone conversation from his home in Omaha, where he now runs the Russell Sporting Goods store.

"As I recall, it was sort of a knuckleball toss that Roy McKay happened to catch," the ex-Husker, who is now a National Football League official, remembered.

The All-Star game was the only action Rohrig saw with the Packers that season because of his Army duty.

Public Service Leave

"I was able to play in that game," Rohrig recalls, "because the government gave me a public service leave that allowed me to work out with the team for two weeks prior to the game."

Newspaper accounts show that Rohrig was flown to the Packers' camp by another ex-Nebraska player, Roy Petsch, who now is living in Phoenix, Ariz. Petsch also took an active part in trying to help NU coach Bob Devaney find practice facilities during the rains that halted Husker practices last December in Phoenix.

Moments after the final whistle blew in the 1925 All-Star game, Rohrig was on his way back to Fort Worth, Tex., to rejoin his Army unit.

Won't See 1966 Game

Rohrig won't see Friday's game because he is scheduled to officiate an NFL exhibition game in Louisiana that night.

Although serving as an NFL official for several years, Rohrig's only appearance in an All-Star game came as a player. "I'm at the wrong position to officiate in an All-Star game," he explains. "Because I am a field judge and the field judge always comes from the college officials."

What else does Rohrig remember about that 1945 game?

"Not much," he points out, "That was so long ago."

But he does remember that the pro teams in those days had only one thing in mind when they went against the collegians.

"I remember how badly everyone on the team wanted to win that game," he recalls. "They certainly didn't want to get beat by a bunch of kids."

A knuckleball by Rohrig helped that cause.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, P.T.A. notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

U.S. Gals Get 4th Straight Curtis Cup With 13-5 Win

Hot Springs, Va. (AP) — The United States Curtis Cup team weathered a gathering British storm in the afternoon singles matches Saturday and won the international women's golfing trophy for a fourth straight time by a final score of 13-5.

Continued fine play by Barbara Fay Boddie, Phyllis Tish Preuss, and Carol Sorenson Flenniken, who had a hand in nine of the points scored in the two-day matches, helped the Americans coast to victory after they entered Saturday play with a 7-2 advantage.

It became 9-3 after the United States won two of the three Saturday morning Scotch foursomes. But in the afternoon, the British women finally found the answer to the woods and waters of the Cascades' closing holes and made a fight of it.

The Americans, however, won three of the six singles—the victories belonging to Mrs. Boddie, Miss Preuss and Mrs. Flenniken—and halved two while losing only one.

The clinching half-point came when Anne Quast Welts claimed a half in the No. 2 singles with Mrs. I. C. Robertson, who had rallied from three down by capturing the 15th, 16th and 18th holes.

Mrs. Flenniken had the day's best medal showing in a 2-and-1 victory over Ita Burke in the final singles.

Miss Preuss was two over in a 3-and-2 victory over Elizabeth Chadwick and Mrs. Boddie six over while disposing of Susan Armitage, 3 and 2.

Scotch Foursomes

Jean Ashley and Phyllis Preuss, United States, defeated Mrs. Michael Bonallack and Susan Armitage, 3 and 1.

Elizabeth Chadwick and Ita Burke, Great Britain, defeated Mrs. Anne Quast Welts and Barbara McIntire, 1 up.

Mrs. Barbara Fay White Boddie and Mrs. Carol Sorenson Flenniken, United States, defeated Mrs. I. C. Robertson and Joan Hastings, 2 and 1.

Delaney Registers Shutout

had split in two earlier tests with Witt's, made a comeback bid in the sixth inning.

After Dick Henderson had grounded out Tom Tidball and Don Berglund singled and Dennis Beckmann drew a walk. Consecutive singles by Dave McEwen and Tom Hayes produced four runs.

The losers had the winning run at the plate with two out in the ninth, but McEniry ended this threat by getting Berglund to ground out.

Gerry's Mike Delaney, who scattered seven hits, walked just one and struck out 13 in his route-going performance, gave himself an early margin with a run-producing single in the first inning.

Then the big right-hander had to pitch himself out of a bases-loaded, none-out situation in the bottom half of the inning.

Most of the trouble was of his own making, however, as he walked leadoff man Dennis Beranek, then failed in attempts to get the lead man on successive sacrifices by Chris Rosenstock and Jack Ketterer.

Cleanup hitter Bill Fagler grounded to second baseman Doug Loos, whose throw to the plate nipped Beranek by an eyelash. Then Delaney got Jerry Colvert to pop up and fanned Steve Kyles.

The Optimists couldn't stage another major threat. threat.

Wildness on the part of reliever Ron Williams helped the winners add to their early 4-0 lead.

The solunar or solunar periods for the Lincoln area, as prepared by John Alden, Lincoln's famous fishing guru, are as follows: Read the minor periods first, then the major periods. Times are given in central standard time. Subtract one hour for central daylight time. If you want to find the time sport that could be either. The majors are not a guess period, but are based on the moon's position.

The major periods begin at the time shown and last for an hour and a half. The minors, which are half as long, begin at the time shown and last about an hour.

Speedboats At Beach Today

By RICK AKIN

With the word out that the national outboard championships may be held in Lincoln in 1967, the first annual Capitol Beach Pleasure Boat Championships at Capitol Beach today have stirred considerable interest around the country.

An estimated 50-60 of the nation's top boat drivers from as far north as Wisconsin, as far south as Texas and as far east as Georgia are expected to be on hand today for the event which starts at 1 p.m.

For enlightenment's sake, the competing boats and motors must be factory production models and only a minimum amount of adjustments are allowed.

Competitors are allowed to use different sparkplugs on the motors for more efficient running and propellors may be raised or lowered to help speed.

The idea is to have your propeller at a heighth which will raise the boat out of the water as far as possible to cut down friction, according to Lincoln racer Bob Bardsley.

Engines can't be out of production for more than eight years, Bardsley said. This eliminates the possibility of racers putting in non-stock parts when outmoded motors run aground.

The classes are determined by the size of motor and type of hull. The classes: by motor size in cubic inches: 30-40, 40-50, 50-60, 60-70, 70-80, 80-90 and 90-100. Those classes with closed exhausts are B Stock runabouts and D stock runabouts.

All of the above classes must have displacement-type hulls—that is the bottoms of the hull is flat or curves downward from the level of the water. Some of the unlimited classes allow tunnel type hulls which curve upward from the water level which is a construction providing for greater speed. The unlimited classes:

—Unlimited I (single engine, displacement hull).
—Unlimited II (dual engines, displacement hull).
—Unlimited III (single engine, tunnel hull).
—Unlimited IV (dual engines, tunnel hull).

The lower class boats will run at about 55 miles an hour while the unlimited IV class will get up to about 85 on the five-lap course (about 1½ miles) which has been set up for today's races.

Heats will be run in each class which will probably include up to 14 boats. If there are two few boats in a class, the competitor will have to step up to the next highest class.

A clock start will be used as it is in all championships. A cannon signifies that drivers have five minutes before the race. After four minutes a flag is removed and drivers will be disqualified if they cross the starting line before the final minute is up.

At Denton Lake

Big Fish Take in Hour

Operation Outdoors

By Chuck Roberts

The two bass exploded out of the water at the same time. It was the second time in five minutes that both of us had a fish on at the same time.

"This one's a little bigger!" Dennis Unruh, my fishing partner exclaimed. "Look there . . . he's coming out again!"

So was mine and I followed him around the end of the boat as he made a last-ditch attempt to foul around the anchor rope. He didn't make it and I swung the pound-plus bass in the boat. I strung both fish, cast out again, jigged the artificial purple worm twice and had another. So did "Denny."

Spree at 3 P.M.

That's the way it went for 15 minutes and after a slack period, a couple of more fish and another 30 minutes, we had nineteen bass and one crappie. The kicker was it occurred in the middle of the summer at 3 p.m. in the afternoon.

It happened over at Denton Lake south of Emerald last Saturday. We didn't leave Lincoln until after 11 a.m. and figured the overcast would keep us from frying out in the lake.

Soon after we got there Denny took the lonesome crappie on a purple worm and had another "peck-peck" strike that didn't prove out. We motored up in the woods and I took one immediately. He had five strikes on five casts but couldn't connect because of the brush. Also, the pound-plus bass were hitting so hard that you didn't have time to let them get the worm in their mouth.

Tricky Fishing

Up in the trees in the creek bed at this lake is about the most exacting fishing I have seen. If the lure goes where you throw it you'll still only end up with a fishable cast about one out of five throws. The reason is that the fish are right in the brush up there and if you cast "near or around it" you might as well not have cast and if you cast "in it" often times you are.

After I took another bass the same size as the other we moved up into more open water where the ski area meets the fishing area. That's when the fun started.

Even though the bass did not strike very long, when they did, they were vicious. We went through almost two dozen worms including purple, pink and baby-blue. They liked purple best.

Hard to Hook

After the 15-minutes frenzy they settled down and were hard to hook. Altogether the two of us either missed on the strike or lost after hooking, more than a dozen and a half bass. But any way you look at it, 19 black bass and a crappie in the middle of the summer, during the heat of the day, in four hours and minutes from home is pretty darn good fishing.

In the last two trips to this lake I have seen one other boat with fishermen and two groups on the shore. While admittedly this lake is not as easy to fish from shore as some, it's difficult to figure out why more aren't using the facilities.

Skiing is allowed on this lake but the fishing area provided for just the fishermen and off-limits to the skiers is more area than several fishermen could handle in one day. The lake is a year younger than the South Lake at Hickman and consequently the fish are not as large. But the pound-plus bass and one-half pound crappie are nice fish. The water is clear and clean. There is a lot of deep water and not much moss.

Any way you look at it whether you catch fish here or not, Denton Lake is a beautiful fishing site with deep water, standing trees, shallow flats and old hedge rows. In the years to come it's our opinion this lake will produce some of the largest bass to be caught out of the area reservoirs.

As a passing thought: when you find one crappie you find more. Night fishing, a lantern, deep water and minnows is a good combination.

One-Way Plan Action Expected

The City Council may adopt a full one-way street system for downtown Lincoln not including O or 15th Sts.

Approval is expected next Monday.

The state was expected to oppose the plan because it could create traffic burdens on state highways.

Whatever change is made will probably not be before mid-November.

Air Service

Lincoln United and Frontier Airline traffic was to be restored Monday following the end of a 23-day nationwide strike against five major airlines.

Power Merger, Transmission Line Proposed

Major changes in the Nebraska public power picture were proposed.

General managers of Loup River and Platte Valley Power Districts reacted favorably to a proposal by Consumers Public Power District for voluntary merger negotiations.

This could accomplish a merger proposed in a law later declared unconstitutional. Loup and Platte earlier fought that law, which Consumers supported.

In another power development, the Power Review Board urged immediate construction of a multi-million dollar federal power transmission line from Fort Thompson, S.D., to Grand Island.

The board said this is "the only means" to correct Nebraska's internal power "instability."

Fugate, Parker To Get Review

Statements made in 1958 by convicted murderess Carll Ann Fugate will be reviewed.

The action was ordered by the Nebraska Supreme Court, which noted that Miss Fugate was 14 when taken into custody in 1958 near Lusk, Wyo.

The review will attempt to determine if her statements were voluntary admissions. Miss Fugate, who seeks a new trial or release from prison, contends they were made under duress.

23 New Officers Are Recommend

They told the City Council, now considering the new city budget, this would cost about $172,700.

Carroll said city annexation policies and rising crime were behind the request.

New Power Substation Sought

Custer Public Power Dist. has filed for permission to build a new substation connection into a Nebraska Public Power System transmission line near Callaway.

NPPS is expected to oppose Custer's application with the State Power Review Board.

The proposed 115-34.5-kilovolt stepdown substation would serve Custer and Consumers Public Power Dist. customers in Oconto and U.S. Reclamation Bureau customers in Arnold and Callaway.

A Custer spokesman at the district headquarters in Broken Bow estimated cost of the substation and two miles of line at $240,000.

He said work could begin April 1 and end June 15, 1967.

Custer said the substation is needed because the NPPS line near Broken Bow is overloaded.

Custer said it anticipated this situation in 1964 and requested NPPS for an additional delivery point near Callaway.

Visiting Nurse Service Available At Low Cost, If Doctor Orders It

By BESS JENKINS

"I'm going home the first of August and I hope you can help me. I need you," wrote the retired school teacher hospitalized by a stroke.

This request will be answered Monday when a visiting nurse shows up at the teacher's doorstep.

It could be Linda Goffena or Janet Engeman. Both are public health nurses.

They staff Lincoln's still-new visiting nurse service known officially as Tabitha Home Health Care. Director Martha Maseman is also a nurse.

This service is available to all people as long as the doctor has ordered it.

Ability to pay has no bearing if a person asks for help. The service is free if the patient cannot meet a sliding scale fee.

"Most want to pay something, it makes them feel better even if it's only 50 cents a visit," said Miss Goffena, newly-graduated, from Loretta Heights College in Denver.

Medicare Aid

Medicare, since July 1, has made it easier for some patients to have this service without paying for it. About 75% of Tabitha Home Health Care's current patients are under the federal health program.

The retired teacher going home from the hospital still does not have use of her left hand after her left side was paralyzed by a stroke.

So Home Health Care nurses think she will need more physical therapy. Lincoln physical therapists, through a contract, provide this home service upon doctor's orders.

The services given by the visiting nurses are limited only by her professional skills and the doctor's order.

On the current list to visit regularly are cancer patients, stroke victims in wheelchairs, diabetics, coronary cases, fracture victims and adult mentally retarded.

"We think they like our company as much as our services," said Mrs. Engeman, a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

If a person doesn't have a doctor but needs help, Miss Goffena or Mrs. Engeman will visit the patient for an evaluation. This usually results in calling a doctor.

"We know there are many who need the help of a visiting nurse, so we were discouraged the first few months," Mrs. Maseman said.

Five visits were made in March, then 47 in April, 62 in May and a high of 88 in June. July visits numbered 79. But all this involves less than 20 patients per month.

The disappointment disappeared recently when established visiting nurse association officers commended Mrs. Maseman for the "good start; it takes time for this work to become known and grow in any community."

She also is told that this service must turn to organizations and individuals for financial help.

Medicare administration's interest in seeing that communities get financial aid for home health care services is helping the Lincoln organization get on its feet.

The Home Health Care at Tabitha received $15,000 to start its work and will get $18,000 for 1966-67 in public health or "seed" money.

As service calls increase, the nursing staff can be enlarged easily, Mrs. Maseman said.

Product Pricing Post to Frasier

A former Lincoln business executive has been named supervisor of product pricing in the Tulsa, Okla., office of Tuloma Gas Products Co.

Frasier

He is W. E. Fraiser formerly marketing department representative for the American Oil Co. here. Frasier was also manager of American's product pricing in Chicago for four years. He will share responsibility for planning and administering refined and chemical product pricing.

Curtis: Freeman Shouldn't Impose Price Controls

Beemer (UPI)—Sen Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said Saturday that Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman does not have authority to impose price controls on farm products and should not attempt to do so.

Curtis spoke during a campaign swing through northeast Nebraska.

He said that "Mr. Freeman has attempted to explain his actions in getting the Defense Dept. to cut down on servings of pork to our armed forces by saying prices had reached 120% of parity.

"The Congress has not authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to put a ceiling on farm prices."

Noting that farmers take all sorts of risks in producing their products, Curtis said, "when farmers do have a chance to obtain a good price, the Secretary of Agriculture should be the last person to interfere with it."

'No Real (Power) Progress'

Rurals Want 'Buy' Contract

By DEL SNODGRASS

A spokesman for Nebraska's rural power systems said he fears there has been "no real progress" in negotiations with a major wholesaler over the signing of a power purchase contract with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

The rurals, through the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative (G&T), are anxious to sign the contract for the purchase of electricity above the "equity" level.

Dil Blatchford of Columbus, G&T manager, said the rurals have been in a position for several months to sign a contract for the purchase of bureau power through 1971.

But he said the Loup River Public Power District's general manager, John Preston, is attempting to stop the signing of the contract.

As a result of Preston's actions, Blatchford said, the bureau instructed Loup and Platte to attempt to resolve their differences before the contract is signed.

'Unwilling'

Blatchford said G&T representatives held their first negotiating meeting with Loup Wednesday but "no real progress was made."

One of the points of dispute, he said, is Loup's unwillingness to recognize the assignment of the individual rural district's power purchase contracts to G&T.

Loup and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation Dist. of North Platte comprise the Nebraska Public Power System from which the rurals are obligated by contract to purchase most of their electricity.

But under the "equity" agreement, when the rurals' purchases exceed a specified amount, they may purchase the additional power from outside sources such as the bureau.

That equity level was reached in August, 1965, but so far the rurals have been unable to obtain the additional bureau power.

This is what they hope to accomplish in a contract with the bureau.

Less Accidents, Tickets, Miles

Safety Patrolmen drove fewer miles, issued fewer tickets, and had fewer accidents to report in June, 1966 than June, 1965.

Patrolmen issued 900 fewer warning tickets—or 4,457— and 22 less violation tickets—or 9,140. Col. Dan J. Casey, head of the Safety Patrol, reported.

Thirteen fewer accidents were reported. The number of drunken driving cases jumped by 32 from June, 1965, but was down 12 from May, 1966. Minors apprehended in possession of liquor showed an increase of 39.

Moored boats, cabins await weekend rush.

Cedar Creek Area Booms For Big City Commuters

Cedar Creek — Like lemmings, Nebraskans are rushing to water—any water.

Unlike these rodents, whose mass migrations end in suicide drownings, the migrations of humans wind up in lakeside houses with water recreation at the back door.

The aquatic magnet has drawn enough of these recreation seekers from their urban environs to form a new town that — on weekends, anyhow — is a good six times the size the tiny farming village of Cedar Creek northeast of Louisville.

Cedar Creek Lakes, as the development is called, lies just a railroad-track bounce outside of this village. The new population of weekenders lends support to the old general store, cafe and one church, and these, in turn, shun any resentment and cater to the newcomers.

Bob Schneider, president of Cedar Creek Lakes, Inc., has created the residential area, fulfilling "a dream I've had since I was 10."

Wooded Area

Schneider's great-grandfather settled in the community, and his grandfather started buying up the one-time woodlot land as the timber was cut for fuel.

About 600 acres of the sandy bottom land along the Platte River was passed down to Bob's generation. He figured the time was right for making it the recreation area he's dreamed about.

Sand and gravel dredging had cut out several small, sapphire-hued lakes. Dikes and control measures upstream have all but eliminated the possibility of floods.

Now Schneider has his own gravel equipment at work enlarging the water area and construction machines carving new access roads.

Permanent Dwelling

Started on a limited basis about seven years ago, the development has been going full steam the last two or three.

About 150 lots — each with a 100-foot lake frontage — have been sold; houses have been built on about 120. Only modern, permanent houses are allowed, and there will be no commercial enterprises.

Two of the larger lakes are open to boats with a maximum of 80 horsepower, while the other two are restricted to fishing, swimming and boats under five horsepower.

Probably the largest single development of its kind in the state, Cedar Creek Lakes has a conservatively-estimated population of 500 on weekends.

"About 90% are weekenders, and we're just getting started with the people who are going to live here," said the developer. "Four of the new families coming in now intend to make their homes here."

Ex-Lincolnite Heads Office In Minneapolis

A former Lincoln resident, E. Keith Thompson, has been named general manager of New York Life Insurance Co.'s Nicollet general office in Minneapolis, Minn.

Thompson was formerly general manager of the Lincoln general office.

Thompson, who joined the company as a field underwriter in 1955, has been assistant manager of the Topeka, Kan., general office and a management assistant in the company's home office in New York.

He is a member of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters and the General agents and Managers Assn.

Airport Authority Running Big Business

BY LEO SCHERER

Around City Hall

Don't let anyone tell you that the Lincoln Airport Authority isn't a major unit of local government.

The Authority now has the far-reaching tasks of operating and developing the deactivated Lincoln Air Force Base and improving the total local aviation picture.

Authority members realize their increased duties and have soon to put into operation a reorganizational plan which will mean more employes.

Controversial Lots

There has been a lot of discussion among city officials and the mayor in the past week about the proposed purchase of two lots at 17th and Q.

The mayor says the city eventually is going to acquire the lots but he doesn't yet know whether it will be by condemnation or direct purchase.

The Council has passed a resolution approving the purchase but the method and other matters remains with the mayor.

The city wants the lots because city officials feel they are in the path of the Northeast Diagonal, for which 15 years of discussion has not established an exact route.

Violators' Urge

The chief recently was seen getting out of his chief's car near 10 and O.

He immediately put a coin in the meter and what do you think he had in his right hand? The ignition keys.

It is also interesting to note in the adopted Council ordinance that it requires the ignition to be locked and the key removed but nothing is said about the key having to be removed from the automobile.

Some City Hall observers feel that strong enforcement of the key violation ordinance is going to make many angry at city government and the Council members soon will be getting telephone calls and other messages of protest.

Seward Host to Dairy Exhibit

Seward—The 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America members will show here Monday in the first of 11 district dairy shows in Nebraska and Iowa.

Youths from Butler, Cass, Fillmore, Lancaster, Polk, Seward, Thayer and York Counties will compete in the event sponsored by the Seward, Lincoln and Omaha Chambers of Commerce in cooperation with the Nebraska Dairymen's Assn. and Nebraska-Iowa Dairy interests.

Sponsors of the program term it an improvement program to keep Nebraska-Iowa dairy cattle tops in the nation.

There will be two plants in Lincoln, one at 21st and O and the other at 13th and F.

Advertising Post To G. L. Mathey

Grant L. Mathey, 30, of Sioux City, Ia., has been named general manager of the Imperial Outdoor Advertising, which maintains offices in Sioux City and Lincoln.

Richard Chapin of Lincoln, executive vice president of Stuart Enterprises, Imperial's parent firm, said Mathey and his family will move to Lincoln to assume his new duties.

Mathey has been in charge of Imperial's Sioux City office.

79 Business Educators To Join New Honorary

Seventy-nine Nebraskans will be initiated as charter members of the Alpha Upsilon chapter of Delta Pi Epsilon, national honorary graduate fraternity for business educators, at the Nebraska Center tonight.

Guest speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Ramon Heimerl, national president and member of the Colorado State College faculty at Greeley.

Dr. Gordon Culver, chairman of the department of business teacher education at the University, said the installation ceremony will be conducted at 5:30 p.m. by representatives of Emporia (Kan.) State Teachers College.

Cornhuskers to Oppose Tougher Foes in Big 8 League—Devaney

Bob Devaney, University of Nebraska football coach, is not looking down on the 1966 Huskers when he says his team's efforts could be overshadowed by improved opposition in the Big Eight.

"We are not minimizing our personnel when we say Nebraska will face tougher opposition in 1966 than it did in 1965," said the Husker Coach in the Nebraska Football Press Guide.

". . . our players will have to exert greater effort in order for us to have an opportunity to successfully defend the Big Eight championship," said Devaney.

Wall Street Was Hit 'Hard Enough And Often Enough'—and Stocks Fell

Compiled From News Wires

New York — "If you hit someone hard enough and often enough, he's bound to fall." That's not a Wall Street adage but that's what happened last week on Wall Street.

After months of indecision and uncertainty, prices finally penetrated the mid-May lows on Monday and worked lower all week despite several unsuccessful comeback tries.

Penetration of the lows traditionally is a sell signal in the market. Traders, consequently, braced for heavy selling, but the volume never materialized.

Trading maintained the lackluster pace of recent weeks and the decline resulted more from buying disinterest than from any rush to sell.

At fault chiefly, commentators said, were the many economic, military and other fundamental problems which have been chipping away at the market's resistance for the past three months.

Tight money has weighed most heavily on the market during recent declines and last week was no exception.

To illustrate the problem, New York City had to accept a rate of 4.6518% to sell $112 million bonds, the most it has paid in 34 years. Rising prices in the second quarter plus the slowdown in the economy's rate of growth have added to the severity of the situation.

An already jittery market was easily scared by developments in Vietnam and as news flowed in from this front, analysts were kept busy interpreting its impact.

A flood of excellent second quarter earnings reports came out last week but the Big 3 automakers weren't among them.

Oil companies, railroads and manufacturers reported record or near record profits.

This indicated that the economy, spurred by demands of the Vietnam War, was rolling along at a good pace.

While some economic indicators have signified that the business boom has lost some zip, the profits picture was good as the business upturn approached its 66th straight month in August.

Among companies reporting high April-May-June profits were Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Jersey Standard, Shell Oil, New York Central Railroad, Gulf Oil and Pennsylvania Railroad.

But the picture was not so good for the automakers which have seen domestic sales declining from the record 1965 level.

	1966	1965
General Motors
Net income	$ 546,035,382	$ 638,460,046
A share	1.90	2.23
Sales	5,501,643,726	5,657,497,124
Ford
Net income	$ 216,900,000	$ 237,300,000
A share	1.97	2.14
Sales	3,311,900,000	3,085,600,000
Chrysler
Net income	$ 54,400,000	$ 61,800,000
A share	1.20	1.47
Sales	1,430,000,000	1,370,000,000

Despite the downturn, 1966 looms as the second best auto sales year in history.

"While the market for automobiles in the second quarter showed some decline from last year's peak level, the outlook remains favorable," said Chairman Frederic C. Donner and President James M. Roche of General Motors.

"The economy continues strong, consumer income is rising and unemployment is at a very low level. Used car prices are firm. The long-term growth factors—the increase in population and multiple-car families, the trend to suburban living and the growth in the replacement market—continue to be favorable."

Another giant of industry, U.S. Steel Corp., also found its earnings lower in the second quarter than a year earlier. Big Steel earned $77,428,706, or $1.43 a share, on sales of $1,194,294,062, compared with $81,042,663, or $1.38 a share, on sales of $1,229,130,354 in the 1965 second quarter.

Livestock Market Is Mostly Stable

Omaha (UPI) — A strong thread of stability ran through the market transactions on all classes of livestock on the Omaha market last week.

A reduction in supplies did an effective job of counterbalancing a rather apathetic dressed meat trade.

Steer top was 26.60, the highest in the past two months. Heifer top was 25.35.

There were some day-to-day ups and downs in the butcher trade but overall there was a market that was mostly steady, instances 25 lower. Butcher top last week was 26.50. Sows sold steady to 75 higher, week's high 24.00.

Good Action

There was good action throughout the week on slaughter lambs with prices steady to 50 higher. Week's top in spring lambs was 24.25.

Average price of slaughter steers figured 25.10, compared with 24.86 the previous week and 25.64 a year ago. Heifer price average was 23.96 against 23.87 the previous week and 24.66 a year ago.

Rain in some range areas resulted in a reduction in cow supplies and the market on these strengthened.

Cows were 75-1.25 higher. Canners and cutters closed at 16.00-17.25, few to 17.75; beef cows 17.00-18.50, a few 19.00. Bologna bulls were steady to 25 higher at 20.00 to 22.00, odd head to 22.75.

Number 2,600

Replacement cattle and calves numbered 2,600. Trade was slow and prices held about steady. Feeder steers weighing 916-1,000 sold from 23.50 to 24.25. Choice 621 to 729 pounders brought 25.85 to 26.75; good and choice 692-707's realized 24.25-25.00.

Winders, Geist Firm Purchases Two Buildings

Two steel and aluminum buildings and a 140 by 550 feet tract at 1821 Yolande, near Cornhusker Highway, have been purchased from J. V. Gunn Enterprises Inc. by Winders & Geist Inc. for $60,000.

Alex Geist said Winders & Geist will move from 2219 No. Cotner to the larger Yolande building about Oct. 1. The other Yolande building is occupied by Lancaster County Weed Co.

Geist said the firm will sell a 5.5-acre piece of the Sias Industrial Tract which was purchased three years ago.

Geist and Rex Winders, retired employes of the Lincoln Telepone and Telegraph Co., formed their company several years ago to sell Flexiduct, a product they invented. The tapered rubber floor duct is manufactured for them at St. Mary's, Ohio, by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Geist said Winders & Geist have become national distributors of an underground sprinkling system manufactured by Goodyear in Los Angeles.

Story of a Fateful Week

VC Attack on Ship Resulted in U.S. Commitment to War

Washington (AP)—Two years ago next Tuesday there began a week of crisis that marked a turning point in the Vietnam war.

The setting: The Gulf of Tonkin, a long, rather shallow arm of the South China Sea curving like a sea horse along the north and south Vietnamese coasts.

In that fateful week (actually eight days):

—North Vietnam challenged the United States openly for the first time, attacking U.S. warships.

—The United States retaliated with its first attack on a Communist country since Korea — a carefully defined bombarding of North Vietnamese patrol boats and their shore bases.

—Congress gave formal, almost unanimous support to President Johnson (who authorized the retaliation). The support was in the form of a resolution Johnson has cited ever since as a legal basis for U.S. operations in the war.

Before the week ended President Johnson was telling the world the story of military confrontation and response in simple fashion:

"On Aug. 2 the United States destroyer Maddox was attacked on the high seas in the Gulf of Tonkin by hostile vessels of the government of North Vietnam.

"On Aug. 4, that attack was repeated in those same waters against two United States destroyers. The attacks were unprovoked. The attacks have been answered."

Forerunner

That answer was the U.S. strike at North Vietnamese bases — a strike which was a forerunner to the expanded air war on the Communist country right up to the present.

But some questions remained unanswered.

Why would North Vietnam with its puny navy try to tangle with the biggest sea power in the world? Were the attacks systematically planned? Were they really unprovoked?

Public information about the Gulf of Tonkin naval battle is based primarily on details provided at the time by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

"I can't explain them," the defense chief said. "They were unprovoked."

Details Asked

But a few weeks ago, Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., wasn't sure he had the full story. He asked for release of full details on Tonkin, including a chronological account of the torpedo boat-destroyer encounter.

Simpson was provided a secret transcript of Senate testimony by John T. McNaughton, assistant secretary of defense.

After studying the transcript, however, Simpson said he found so many deletions that many questions remained unanswered.

The Wyoming Republican said he was inclined to accept the administration's version of Tonkin although "I will certainly acknowledge that utter candor is not a hallmark of this administration."

Administration Account

Here is the administration account of the Gulf incident as supplied by McNamara that week in press conferences and in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees:

The incidents began, McNamara said, when the USS Maddox, on a routine patrol in international waters of the Gulf, was stalked for two hours Aug. 2, 1964, by three torpedo boats.

Suddenly the PT boats closed at high speed. at 3:08 p.m. the Maddox was attacked; two of the PT boats closed to 5,000 yards and fired one torpedo each. The Maddox veered; the torpedoes passed 100 to 200 yards away.

As the Maddox fired at the enemy craft with her five-inch guns, the carrier Ticonderoga in the same general area directed four Crusader jets, already airborne, to the scene.

At 3:21 p.m., the Maddox scored a direct hit on one boat, which managed to drop a third torpedo that apparently failed to run. The jets damaged the other two boats with rockets and cannon fire.

Battle Subsided

Eight minutes later the battle subsided and the aircraft escorted the Maddox southward on its patrol course.

By now the word has flashed to Washington and in a crisis atmosphere in the hours that followed, President Johnson decided to make certain U.S. determination was known.

The patrols were to continue on a redoubled basis (two destroyers), provided with air power and assigned not only to attack but destroy any force which attacked them in international waters, he announced.

On Aug. 4 the Maddox, accompanied now by the USS Joy about 65 miles off North Vietnam, reported they were under "continuous" torpedo attacks—and firing back.

No Casualties

By midnight, "even though many torpedoes had been fired at them," the destroyers suffered no hits or casualties, McNamara said.

With the commander-in-chief calling the shots, the United States launched a precise strike the next day against North Vietnamese PT and gunboats, their bases and support facilities.

On Aug. 10, eight days after the initial attack, the Senate and House overwhelmingly passed a joint resolution supporting the President and authorizing him to "take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

Justified or not, the Tonkin incident accelerated American participation in Vietnam.

Before August Gen. William C. Westmoreland had been given approval to receive several thousand more men to augment the 23,000 American "advisers" in the country.

Buildup Starts

Now, in the aftermath of Tonkin, additional forces were ordered in as a precaution for whatever action Communist China or Russia might take in support of the Hanoi regime. Interceptors and fighter-bomber aircraft flew into Vietnam, other aircraft into Thailand. An antisubmarine force was deployed in the South China Sea, and Army and Marine forces were alerted for movement.

On land the Communists were stepping up infiltration and terrorism, and McNamara soon was to be haunted by a 1963 prediction that "the major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965."

In 1965 the war really only began.

In February, after heavy Viet Cong attacks on the Bien Hoa air base, an American officer's billet in Saigon and at U.S. installations at Pleiku and Qui Nhon, the United States launched the first of the sustained air attacks on Communist staging areas in North Vietnam.

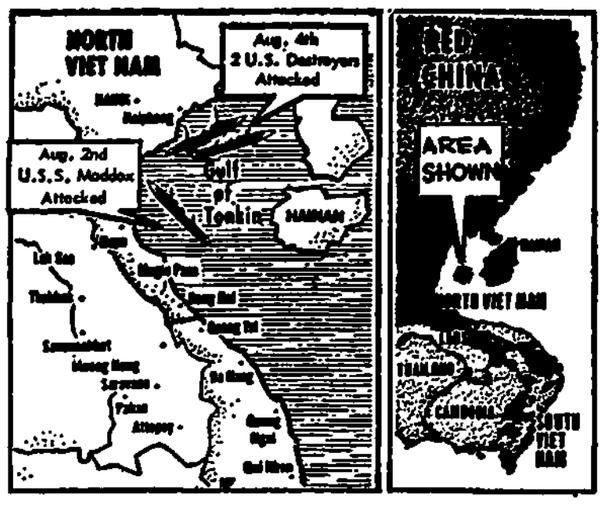
Periodically citing the Aug. 10, 1964, resolution, the President, with the advice of the defense chief, and top military officials, continued the manpower buildup.

From 23,000 at the end of 1964, the total American commitment rose to 51,000 by the summer of 1965, doubled to 100,000 by September, 1965, and doubled yet again to 200,000 by early 1966.

The latest count: 267,000, with 285,000 the planned level before fall and a reported 400,000 total by the end of 1966.

North Vietnam, meanwhile, continues to send men into South Vietnam at a rate of 4,500 a month, McNamara said. The infiltration rate is expected to continue.

"If it does," McNamara said a few weeks ago, "I would expect we would increase our forces."



A new pacification technique is being used around Phu Loi, South Vietnam. It's a village festival, where the Vietnamese are entertained, fed and given presents. Women and children (at left) leave a festival carrying food and propaganda leaflets. Meanwhile, (at right) the men are rounded up to discover Vietnamese army deserters, draft dodgers and the Viet Cong. Here the district chief offers a cigaret to one of the men detained in Hoa Nhut village.

Road Devils In Burma

Rangoon, Burma—Burmese strongman Gen. Ne Win, engaged in a unrelenting campaign to wipe out pernicious foreign influences, is having trouble with "Road Devils."

"Road Devils" is Burmese for "Mods" and Rockers" who wear beatle haircuts, western sports shirts, skintight trousers and pointed Italian style shoes instead of the traditional sarong, a wrap-around skirt worn by both sexes in Burma.

Children of State High School No. 1 in Rangoon recently held a mass meeting to condemn the "Road Devils" for "un-Burmese" rudeness, vulgarity and vandalism.

Delightful, Fantastic, Unbelievable: The Imagination of Kids

By KAYE OLLENBURG

It isn't the product that makes lemonade stands delightful. It's the youngsters who man the stands; the youngsters who have conned their parents out of equipment to operate these private enterprises.

What matter if the ice is melted, and the original product watered down when it's served with smiles and giggles by the six-year-old?

Mothers remember the lemonade stands they had as children. Fathers, too, reminisce about the past. Because of happy memories of their childhood, adults patronize the youthful merchant.

Usually, other kids in the neighborhood get into the act as do sisters, brothers and cousins.

98-Cent Profit

One Lincoln mother said, "I spent about five dollars getting the children's stand in operation. We had to buy lemons, sugar, ice and poster board. But it was the children who enjoyed the large profit of 98 cents."

Six-year-old Linda Taylor, owner and operator of a small, but thriving one-day lemonade stand told about her venture. "It was lots of fun. Maybe I'll do it again. Many girls and boys came to my stand." How much did she profit? "About a dollar."

Just playing to be playing takes up much of youngsters' time. Using that most wonderful of all gifts, the imagination, and having no damper put on it, children spend endless hours creating their own happiness.

Batman is on the scene and it's not unusual to find 10 to 12 towels-tied-around-the-neck Batmen and Robins on daring adventures.

Sheets, weeds and flowers, bits of lace and other what-not help little girls put on a play wedding. And the wedding is more fun and giggle-filled should a young man or two be roped into the picture and end up getting kissed.

When Rover's Cornered

Wagons covered with sheets and filled with boxes become part of the Old West game. And if Rover's unfortunate enough to be around, he is apt to be harnessed to the wagon tongue and told to "giddy-up."

Custer's last stand will never be the worst of all cavalry versus Indian battles. The whoops and hollers and "bang-bang" of young Indians and riflemen add up to some of the most fantastic of all battles ever fought.

What is worse than a fire siren? Why, a child's version of the siren sound, of course! And you better move out of the way fast when the junior fire department speeds down the sidewalk with sawed-off

Grassland, Trees, Birds, Wildlife Are Dream Come True for Dr. Bennett

By JAN SACK

Grassland, trees, ponds, birds and other wildlife make up a large part of the private and public world of Dr. Esther Bennett.

She is city naturalist in charge of the 40-acre Chet Ager Bird and Wildlife Nature Study Center at Pioneers Park.

For Dr. Bennett this is a dream come true. She always has been interested in biology, but never thought an opportunity like this would arise. Her good fortune materialized on Apr. 23, 1966.

Lincoln is lucky to have a nature center as there are few in the nation, Dr. Bennett said. Another is in Omaha but it has not been developed.

The idea of a nature center was originated by the late Chet Ager who was superintendent of Lincoln city parks from 1931-40. His son Jim held this position and is now acting director of parks and recreation. The senior Mr. Ager dreamed of a bird sanctuary where waterfowl could remain and breed, Dr. Bennett indicated. The area was dedicated in May, 1963.

Lodge, Trails Available

At the present time, a lodge and several trails are available to nature lovers. Another building has been erected but not completed. In the lodge are collections of insects, nests of various birds, turtles and various other exhibits. Dr. Bennett said the insect collection given by Dr. Lewis Schafer, head of the department of biology at Nebraska Wesleyan University, is the star attraction for the 8 and 9-year-olds.

Even more fun is to walk over the trails which total 2½ miles through the woods and around the ponds. The hike around the ponds usually takes a nhour and Dr. Bennett said to add 45 minutes if walking through the woods.

Along the trails are signs pointing out some of the grasses, flowers and trees. A hike with Dr. Bennett is educational—she walks with binoculars in hand and her ears atuned to the surroundings.

It's a matter of course for her to say, "That's a brown thrasher; over there's a goldfinch; do you hear the grackles?" Identification of wildlife is like second nature to her.

Frogs a Symphony

Especially exciting is the spotting of a muskrat making a beeline for his hole in the bank of the pond or the croaking of frogs which at times sounds like a symphony.

Dr. Bennett is proud of the number of families who visit the lodge and make the trip along the trails. "I like to see this kind of interest," she said.

During the five months she's been at the nature center, Dr. Bennett has given 550 youngsters tours.

Luckily this summer she has help with maintenance of the area from Ric Ladine of Sidney, a graduate of Wesleyan.

Aid from the public also is asked in this respect. Dr. Bennett said, "We ask the people not to collect things so the area remains as it is and also we prefer they park on the road."

She also encourages the public to talk with her about possible displays which they have and could be used as additions to the nature center.

Besides her duties as city naturalist, Dr. Bennett is president of the Audubon Naturalist Club of Lincoln and vice president of Sigma Delta Epsilon, women's scientific club.

Dr. Bennett received her bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, her master's from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

American Nurses Stand Up Well To War's Tough Test in Vietnam

By JOHN NANCE, AP

Saigon—The traditional image of the American nurse—a cool professional approach tempered with the warmth that helps mend men's souls—is standing up well to the tough test of the war in Vietnam.

Hundreds of women nurses are assigned to field hospitals, operating rooms and wards from Can Tho in the Mekong Delta to Pleiku in the highlands to Da Nang in the north.

They are at Vung Tau, Cu Chi, Saigon, An Khe, Qui Nhon and a half dozen other places including the U.S. Navy hospital ship Repose off the coast in the South China Sea.

They mostly treat American troops but it is not unusual for them to nurse a Vietnamese child or even a wounded Viet Cong guerrilla who has been captured.

U.S. Army Nurses

The majority of women nurses are in the U.S. Army—about 272 now with more on the way. All are officers.

One of the largest staffs of nurses is at the 500-bed 93rd evacuation hospital at Long Binh, about 15 miles from Saigon.

There are 62 nurses, 51 of them women.

The wards are filled with American wounded brought by helicopter directly from the fields of battle and with men suffering from malaria and other tropical diseases.

When the nurses arrived last October there was no hospital at Long Binh. There was nothing but two cement pads for the foundation of the first building.

"We really started from scratch," says Col. Anne Bauer of Monterey, Ind., chief nurse there. "But it was exciting and challenging. Few of the girls had ever been in on the building of a full-scale hospital from the ground up."

'In the Boondocks'

The nurses lived in tents, "in the boondocks," laughed one bright-eyed lieutenant. "When it was hot we were covered with dust; when it rained we were covered with mud."

The hospital opened in early December and the nurses moved into more permanent quarters.

Now in their quonset hut barracks, a typical nurse has to herself a space about 10x10 feet. It will hold a bed, a foot locker, and if she's lucky and can get it, a chair.

The work is hard and luxuries are rare. But there is little serious complaining.

As one officer put it: "If these women were looking for luxuries, they wouldn't be here." The normal tour is one year.

Col. Marion Tierney, of Brooklyn, N.Y., chief nurse of the U.S. Army in Vietnam, points out that "most of these girls are volunteers. And when their tour is up, many ask to stay longer."

Cradle to Grave Study Approved

Durham, N.C. (UPI)—The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development has approved a five-year, $1 million grant to Duke Medical Center for a research-training program on behavioral processes and their effects on aging from the cradle to the grave.

"The grant is one of the largest ever given by the institute and reflects the concept that aging begins at birth, or even before, and must be studied in this light," a spokesman for the university said.

She wore a veil coif appliqued with silk organza petals in pink ice—and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses.

Miss Barbara Peery was maid of honor. Best man was Dennis Swanstrom of Millard.

After a trip to Estes Park, Colo., the Johnstons will live in Millard.

Sprigs of dainty flower bud designs scattered over a solid satin color background, create the mood of an oriental landscape. A three piece set includes large and small lingerie cases and a two-pocket hosiery case.

For The Bath

Wet nylons and lingerie draped over the shower rod soon may be a thing of the past. Merchandising Week, a trade publication, says a built-in clothes dryer for the bath is on the market. It fits flush to the wall, out of the way. It also serves as room heater, towel warmer and humidifier.

New York Designers Eye Year of the Coat

By HELEN HAGGIE

This may be the year of the horse, according to the Chinese calendar, but for American women, it may well be the year of the coat.

Designers of fall and winter fashions so emphasized the coat, that even dress styles emphasize its lines.

And coats this year are as lovely as they have been for many years—there is as great contrast in lines as there is in fabric.

Start with the way-out tent coat, voluminous to the extreme. One designer brags that the circumference of the hem of one of his tents is five yards. Contrasted with the huge tents are the slim coats—the tuxedo types.

And in between are coats with inverted pleats at the back, which swing gracefully as the wearer moves, and the belted military coat so important this year.

Fabrics range from wool knit, completely lined and cuffed with fox, to gabardine and worsted. And the colors are of the complete rainbow spectrum.

Belted coats are of endless variety—string tied in front, semi-belted in back, three-quarter belted and completely belted. And the belts range up and down the torso—from the high Empire to the low hip lines. Some even have natural waistline belts!

Lengths of coats also are varied. Three-quarter, nine-tenth and full-length coats are shown. Many, many coats for evening are ankle or floor-length. One designer opined that Milady who will be well dressed for an elegant formal party will not wear the little mink stole, but a full-length evening coat.

Certainly, this fall and winter will see women turned out in fabulous coats—if New York designers have their way.

Fashion News

United Press International

Prints once the tradition of spring and summer fashions now go through all seasons. New York designers use splashy print, Op prints, subtle prints, and big and little prints in winter silks for daytime as well as evening.

Look for a revival of the so-called classics of the fabric world — silk failles, satins, gabardines, coverts, fleece and melton for fall.

Lavish fabrics now get the wear-resistance treatment. Poplins, velvets, corduroys and wools are treated to resist rain, stain and wear.

Now fashion leaders are taking a cue from the jewelers. Pins, bejeweled, are appliqued right on the dress. Harvey Berin, New York, is one exponent of the beaded applique.

Look for a lot of the military touches in feminine clothes. Junior Sophisticates, of New York, for instance, makes the "doughboy" pants suit, born in World War I, but now strictly contemporary in red shetland wool with long jacket with epaulette shoulders.

There's a lot of the muffled throat look coming on. Designers wrap scarf-like collars of suits and coats high around the neck. And the turtle neck wool dress is a universal favorite.

The next time you serve Spanish Rice or macaroni and cheese, perk it up by topping with zesty deviled ham.

Year Around Cleaning Urged

More and more laundering experts are urging homemakers to get away from the extra burden of spring and fall housecleaning by keeping things spotless throughout the year. So, start your fall cleanup—now.

One way is to tackle stains immediately—don't wait for them to set, then have to struggle with them when you put things away. Rapid soaking action (15 to 30 minutes) in a solution of half a cup of bleach to a gallon of cold water can save much grief.

Dust Is Smallest

Orange pekoe, pekoe, souchong, fannings and dust are some of the words indicating the size of the pieces of tea leaf. These words are used to describe black teas. Orange pekoe is largest grade of black tea; dust is the smallest.

hose dragging behind. That "big fire" is far more important than the safety of any adult in the way of a makeshift fire truck.

A flower shoppe is delightful fun, especially so the one owned by one Lincoln miss. She remembers a hot summer day long ago when her uncle allowed her to use an empty corn crip, lots of corn cobs and all the weeds she wanted to create most lovely arrangements.

Castles with moats, highways with tunnels or carefully laid out farms are just a few of the ideas youngsters will conceive when playing in a big sandbox. And with sandboxes comes all the nice gritty sand that is ground into the carpet when Johnny wants mommy "to come see what we made."

Club houses built from old packing boxes provide young country-clubbers with endless hours of socializing and telling non-members (usually female) to "beat-it."

Two young men once wanted to be hobos. So after their mothers supplied them with red neckerchief and broomstick luggage, they were off to spend the rest of the day walking the lonesome trails of hobohood.

And so the story could go on and on. Each day bringing little people new adventures and new ideas. And fortunately each day becomes a yesterday. And yesterdays are what tomorrow's memories are made of—for the kids become grown-ups.

Center Serves 10 Communities

Hanover, N.J. (UPI) — Practical application of the concept of community mental health treatment centers has been difficult in many areas.

However, one eight-year-old clinic has received enough public support and professional recognition to serve as a model for other communities, according to a report in "The Physician's Panorama."

The Southeast Nassau Guidance Center, in Seaford, Long Island, N.Y., serves 10 communities with a population of more than a quarter million. It has helped 4,000 families since it opened and currently serves 500 families.

and her doctorate from Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y.

After receiving her doctorate she was at Southern Illinois for several years before becoming associate editor of Wheat Abstracts at the University of Nebraska.

As for future plans at the nature center, Dr. Bennett said she would like to spend more time on the birds and do a banding program which would establish the species and check on the return of the birds.

At the present time she is cooperating as a member of the Nebraska Ornithological Union in collecting data on nesting birds which is being sent to Cornell.

Chicken Popular

According to a study conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 31% of the boys and 28% of the girls in the 13 to 19 age group want chicken served more. And that's great because chicken packs nutrition punch. Chicken breast is high in protein and lower in calories than other leading meats.

DEAR DIARY

A piece of luggage can cause all sorts of complications for Americans traveling in Europe. And certainly, a suitcase caused complications for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jacobson, who were honeymooning in Europe, after their wedding in London.

But the Jacobsons arrived safely in Lincoln—luggage and all. Mr. Jacobson tells it this way:

"We had been in Paris and Strasbourg and left on a very early plane. As we got off the airport bus, I grabbed our suitcases and we enplaned for London.

In English customs, I took what I thought was my suitcase—then discovered it had a different name tag. And the Air France baggage official told me that all the luggage from the plane was in customs.

My suitcase, after many messages, was—according to the air officials—in Saudi Arabia, and I could see it on a camel off on a desert trek. Actually, it was finally located in Calcutta, India!

Naturally, this delayed all our plans, for the suitcase contained some important papers. Finally, I was told the luggage would be in on a 10:35 a.m. plane and we were to leave for the States at 12:35 p.m.

At Orly I met the plane on which the suitcase was supposed to be—but no suitcase. After persuasion, the airline officials called Frankfort and the explanation came that the suitcase was on another flight, one which would arrive at Building 3 a half hour before our flight which enplaned from Building 1.

I left my wife at Building 1 and ran to Building 3, got a customs official to get my suitcase and then at the end of the taxi line, got a taxi back to Building 1.

We finally got to the gate—and had to be taken to the plane by a bus. After a delightful trip—lunch and all, we arrived in Lisbon. Guess what?

"No luggage!"

However, the luggage did arrive later.

Carnival for Charity

A fortune teller's booth, a comic book shop, hoop tosses and popcorn highlighted a carnival put on by three Lincoln pre-teeners.

Sue Pohlenz, 9, and Cheri Harmon and Jan Stogdill, both 10, made the plans and decorations and the tickets and posters promoting the event. Proceeds went to combat muscular dystrophy.

Parents of the girls are Messrs. and Mmes. Mel Pohlenz, Dale Harmon and Gerald Stogdill.

Deflated Ego

A young thing, who has several small nephews, visits the youngsters frequently since the family has moved to Lincoln.

The 6-year-old nephew asked Auntie to come for dinner on Monday. Auntie accepted, and told the youngsters not to forget that "We have a date Monday."

Nephew wanted to know what a date is, and after pondering, Auntie replied:

"It is when you go somewhere special with someone special."

"But you aren't anyone special," nephew commented.

Miniature Couple

Outdoor Grilling

Here's a brand new way to prepare chicken on the outdoor grill. For each serving, use an 18 x 12-inch piece of heavy duty aluminum foil. Dot with butter, wrap securely, and grill for 45 minutes to 1 hour, turning every 20 minutes. It's a marvelous chicken meal-in-a-bag.

Teacher Corps: Doing Something About the Slums

By PAULA BRANOV, UPI

Washington — "I don't particularly get pleasure out of being in the slums, but I want to do something about those slums."

That, said a young Macon, Ga., woman, is why she wants to join the National Teacher Corps, (NTC) one of the newest in President Johnson's bill of educational and economic rights for the nation's under-privileged.

Some 10,000 other teachers and recent college graduates have volunteered for the corps — a project aimed at helping salvage five million American school children who come from families with incomes below $3,000 a year.

By federal standards, $3,000 is the "poverty line." Children from families with incomes below that are called "deprived" or "disadvantaged" — financially, educationally and culturally.

These 5 million youngsters have been shown to be at least two years behind their more affluent classmates in readiness to learn.

The Teacher Corps will provide special services and programs which local schools have neither the time nor the manpower to take on.

Job to Convince

They must convince the children of poverty — and their parents — that school is good for them.

Specifically, their programs will consist of organizing pre-school classes, as well as giving individual help to gifted, handicapped or disturbed youngsters.

They will operate language laboratories for non-English speaking students and hold after-school programs in reading, creative arts, spelling and other basics.

The U.S. Office of Education estimates that there are "poverty pockets" in 95% of the nation's school districts.

It said the corpsmen are needed because of an annual national shortage of 100,000 teachers. The shortage is most acute in slums and the poorer rural school systems.

Cannot Compete

These schools cannot compete with wealthier urban and suburban schools for experienced teachers attracted by higher salaries and better working conditions, the Office of Education said.

The slum schools, which need good teachers most, end up with new and inexperienced teachers lacking the know-how and the qualifications to cope with their culturally handicapped students.

The corps was established by Congress at Johnson's request in the Higher Education Act of 1965. It received a $9 million appropriation in fiscal year 1966.

Its financial position in fiscal 1967 is shaky, however. The House eliminated NTC funds when it passed the annual appropriation for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

There is hope, however, that the Senate will vote the money and that the House, upon reconsideration, will go along.

There are 1,300 corpsmen in training now at 42 colleges and universities. They are scheduled to go into the schools in September — if the corps gets its money.

Team Leaders

There will be two kinds of teachers working as teams. The government is recruiting experienced teachers with masters degrees or their equivalent in teaching experience to work as "team leaders."

The rest of the corps — three fourths of it — will be made up of "interns," recent college graduates not necessarily trained for teaching but interested in tackling the special educational problems of the disadvantaged.

Of the 1,300 future corpsmen now in training, 300 are experienced teachers.

They have taken leaves of absence from their regular teaching jobs. The government has arranged that the teachers will retain their tenure and retirement and other benefits.

Some will serve for one year, others for two. The government will pay for relocating their families if the are assigned to schools far from their homes.

2 Years of Service

The interns will serve for two years. Most will be sent to the "areas which need them most." They will not get the same consideration as experienced teachers in requests for duty close to home.

All corpsmen will be protected by federal injury, disability and death benefit programs.

Salaries are another matter.

They will be paid by the local school district where they work. The local district will be reimbursed by the federal government which also will pay costs of training the corpsmen. The government will provide "readjustment allowances" for the teachers at the end of their service to make up the money they might lose.

Corpsmen will "supplement" not "supplant" regular teaching staffs, according to the Office of Education.

They will go to the school districts which request them —155 already have — and will be under the direction of local authorities.

Eye Make-up Erases Tired, Busy-day Look

Are you often hesitant about keeping an evening date because your eyes look overly tired after a busy day? There is really no need to be concerned since you can easily regain a fresh, wide-eyed appearance by following a few important make-up tips.

Before applying your make-up, dampen a pad of cotton with cool water and a few drops of skin freshener, place over your closed eyelids and relax for a few minutes. Begin your make-up by covering any dark circles under your eyes with an erase stick in a shade to match your skin tones.

To conceal the red-rimmed look, and to make your eyes appear wide-awake, line your upper eyelids along the roots of the eyelashes with black or brown cake or fluid eye liner, and define the bottom lashes with eyebrow pencil. The whites of your eyes will appear sparkling white if a misty blue or green eye shadow is used.

To offset the drooped look that is so often a mark of tired eyes, arch your eyebrow slightly higher than normally, and give your eyes a lovely lift by applying artificial eyelashes.

Cool First

Let enameled surfaces of the stove cool before washing; otherwise, there's danger of crack.

Splashproof Bowl Designed

A new heatproof glass mixing bowl is a straight-sided vessel designed for use with portable electric mixers. The design is said to be splashproof.

The clear bowl comes in 1½ and 3-quart sizes, the first for mixing or preparing one-layer cake mixes, dessert toppings and whipped cream and the second, for standard cake mixes, yeast breads and quick breads.

Safe Bleaching

Although fashion features in summer may be confined to bathing suits and play suits, one style note is appropriate for all seasons: it's smart and chic to keep clothes clean. With all the attention being paid to modern fabrics and gay pastels and prints, there's also comfort in the reassurance that it's fashionable to bleach. Liquid chlorine bleach, an essential for getting things clean, is safe to use on most man-made fibers and bleach-fast colors.

Miss June Robinson was maid of honor. The Misses Linda Ferguson and Jenna Dagley were bridesmaids.

Kirk Klippert was best man. Ushers included Larry Abbott of Omaha, Michael Lamson and Randy Paulsen.

After a trip to Colorado, the couple will live at 515 So. 48th.

PRAGMATIC PROTESTANTS

Ten Denominations Test New Pattern for U.S. Churches

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In the brand new city of Columbia, Md., 10 Protestant denominations are undertaking a pilot project in ecumenical cooperation that may have far-reaching effects on future patterns of church life in America.

Columbia is an ideal laboratory for testing innovations. It is a projected community of 125,000 persons which is being built from scratch on a 15,000-acre rural tract halfway between Baltimore and Washington.

Developer James W. Rouse, a Presbyterian elder, invited religious leaders to join in the planning of Columbia while it was still in the drawing-board stage.

And he encouraged them to think creatively—to abandon the well-worn ruts of the past and seek better ways of serving the religious needs of a community.

The challenge has been accepted. When the first families move into Columbia next year, they'll find a unique church set-up. It is largely the brainchild of Dr. Stanley J. Hallett, planning executive of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago.

Edifice Complex

Dr. Hallett believes that religion in America has suffered greatly from an "edifice complex." Whenever a new suburb opens up, each denomination rushes to erect its own church.

Since land and buildings are costly, the new congregations begin life saddled with debt, and are so preoccupied with building fund drives that they have little time or energy left for service to the community around them.

The solution which will be tried in Columbia is for several different congregations to share the same physical facilities.

Each congregation will continue to worship according to its denomination tradition — Episcopalians at Episcopal services, Lutherans at Lutheran services, Baptists at Baptist services, etc.

They may worship at different hours in the same sanctuary, or maintain separate chapels within the same building complex. Either way, they'll be able to share many common facilities, at a tremendous saving.

"By investing less in bricks and mortar, Columbia's churches will be able to spend more on mission and ministry," says the Rev. Clarence Sinclair, a Presbyterian pastor, formerly of Seattle, Wash., who is coordinating the Columbia experiment as a field representative of the National Council of Churches.

Pragmatic Principle

The same pragmatic principle of sharing what can be shared without loss of denominational identity also will be applied to the ministry. Columbia's Protestant clergymen will work together as a team.

Worship services for each congregation will be conducted by a minister of its own denomination.

But many other pastoral functions, such as counseling, youth work and administration, will be handled cooperatively, with each minister doing what he's best qualified to do.

Perhaps the most significant feature of the Columbia experiment is a bold new approach to religious education.

Land is being allocated for construction of a religious education facility adjacent to every elementary school in the community.

These interdenominational religious schools conducted by salaried professional teachers, will offer classes five days a week.

School officials have agreed to work out schedules so that children may be released, at their parent's request, for an hour a day of religious training. Thus a child will get five times as much religious education as he would receive in the conventional hour-a-week Sunday school.

Pro Teachers

He will be taught by professionals rather than well-meaning amateurs. And there'll be no problem about church-state separation, because the religious schools will be on privately-owned property and will be financed out of church funds.

Their cost, incidentally, will not be as great as many Protestant leaders initially feared. In fact, Dr. Hallett has calculated that such a religous education program, using classrooms five hours a day five days a week, will actually be less expensive to maintain than the usual Sunday school, whose classrooms are in use only one hour a week.

The interest charges on the huge capital investment required to build a Sunday school plant more than offset the salaries of professional teachers in a fully-used weekday religious school.

The Rev. Richard Upsher Smith, an Episcopal clergyman who was one of the pioneers of the "shared time" concept, has joined the Columbia staff to supervise the religious education program.

The 10 denominations which already have signed up for Columbia's cooperative ministry are the American Baptists, Quakers, Evangelical United Brethren, Episcopalians, Lutheran Church in America, Missouri Synod Lutherans, Methodists, United Church of Christ, United Presbyterians and Church of the Brethren.

It is hoped that Roman Catholics and Jews will also come into the ecumenical experiment, at least to the extent of sharing physical facilities.

Jewish bodies have thus far been leery of the idea, but the Catholic archbishop of Baltimore, Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, thinks enough of it to have assigned a member of his personal staff to work with the Protestant planners.

Pilger Pastor

The Rev. Walter M. Pinnt of St. Petersburg, Fla. was installed as pastor of Stanton's Faith Lutheran Church and St. Matthew's Church near Pilger.

Attendance Promoter

In their never-ending battle for higher attendance and keeping of financial pledges, ministers often make imaginative use of their church bulletins.

In the Trinity Methodist Church bulletin, one recent article was headlined: "More On Sex And Free Love."

The article discussed church members who were behind on their pledges, which "makes financial problems more difficult."

Attached was an editor's note: "Pardon the tricky title, friends, but sometimes the end justified the means."

Promoting attendance, the St. Paul Methodist Church published a diagram showing a circle within a square in its bulletin.

Readers were asked to blow on the circle. If it turns yellow, they were to see their physician; brown, their dentist; purple, their phychiatrist; red, their banker; and black, their lawyer "and make a will."

But "if it remains the same color, you are in good health, and there is no reason on earth why you should not be in church this coming Sunday morning."

Roman Catholic Sisters Mary Aniceta of O'Neill and Mary Bonaventure Johnson of Omaha observed their golden anniversaries in their orders.

There were 2,150,000 prepublication orders for the hymnal, which was shipped to churches this month.

Episcopal Bishops 'Punished' By Cutback of Parish Donations

Washington — (UPI) — Recent events in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington provide a good example of the tensions which are developing over social action.

The suffragan (assistant) bishop of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. Paul Moore Jr., has been conspicuously identified with the civil rights movement.

He is national chairman of the Delta Ministry, which aids Negroes in Mississippi. He also has given strong public support to the "Free D. C. Movement" which seeks home rule for the District of Columbia.

Bishop Moore outraged some conservative Episcopalians a few weeks ago by endorsing a boycott of Washington merchants who refused to support home rule.

A group of business executives spearheaded an effort to have Bishop Moore "disciplined." This maneuver was quietly but firmly squelched by his superior, Bishop William F. Creighton, a soft-spoken man of great determination whose commitment to the cause of social justice is less publicized but no less fervent than that of Bishop Moore.

The next move came from the vestry of All Souls' Memorial Church, a wealthy parish in the Connecticut Ave. section which has a substantial number of retired military officers on its rolls.

The vestry of All Souls' voted to cut its annual contribution to the diocese in half—from $11,880 to $6,000

In a resolution sent to all other parishes of the diocese, the All Souls' vestrymen said:

"Our laymen, believing in separation of church and state, do not want our contributions to the Lord's work used to propagandize controversial state subjects such as so-called 'fair employment' sale or rental of private property, and termination of our nuclear defense experiments while other nations proceed with such development.

"Nor do we approve use of church funds or personnel to foster public demonstrations or marches that tend to breed disrespect for law and order and the property rights of others."

Last week, Bishop Creighton and Bishop Moore replied in a letter to all clergymen of the diocese.

"We do not need to belabor the reason for the church's involvement in social matters," they said. "Ever since Moses demanded better labor conditions for the Israelites in Egypt, the people of God have known that justice is a concern of the Almighty, and therefore our concern."

So far, no other parish has followed All Souls' lead. On the contrary, the vestries of four major parishes have passed resolutions condemning the attempt to change diocesan policies by financial pressure.

And two parishes have invited others to join in expanding their usual contritions to the diocese to make up for the All Souls' cut.

A diocesan spokesman said there also has been a sudden and sharp increase in individual contributions made directly to the diocese. Some of the checks are coming from non-Episcopalians.

One of the most highly valued contributions came from the Rev. Gino Baroni of the Archbishop's Committee on Community Relations, Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington.

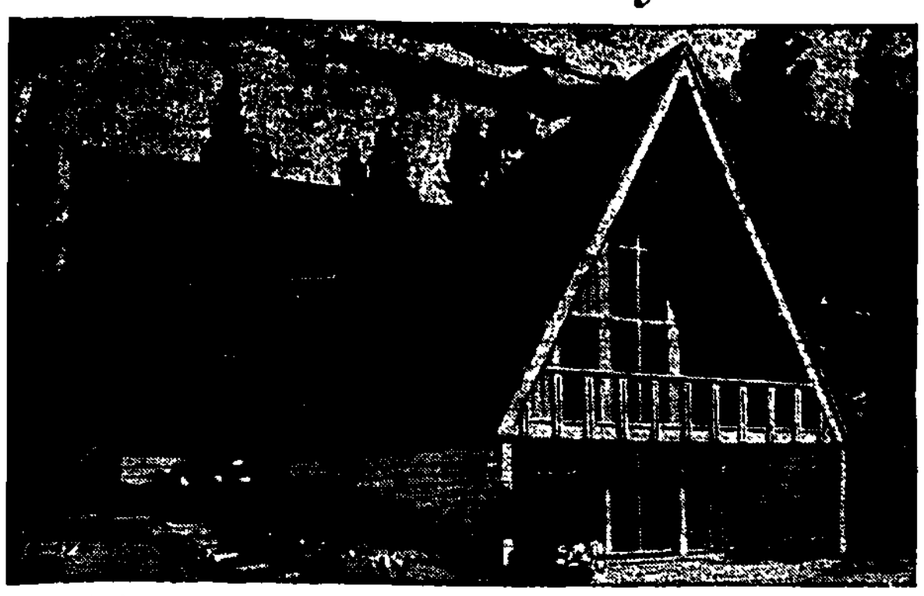
HOUSE OF THE WEEK: Practicality's the Bonus in A-Frame Endowed With New Profile



This house has an alphabetical air—A-frame and L-shape contour.

By Associated Press

Many varieties of every housing style have come into existence over the years, until sometimes even architectural authorities find it difficult to place a particular residence into a specific category. Some of these hybrid creations have quickly lost favor; others have survived to add new interest and livability to traditional types.

The A-frame has stayed close to conventional lines; a kind of inverted V, with the roof extending downwards to serve also as the side walls and with the diagonal beams converging at the roof apex.

While the basic structure must remain within this design concept to retain the distinctive character which has caught the fancy of the public, some changes are beginning to appear. Most of them have evolved from the desire of Americans to use A-frames houses for year-around purposes as well as for vacations.

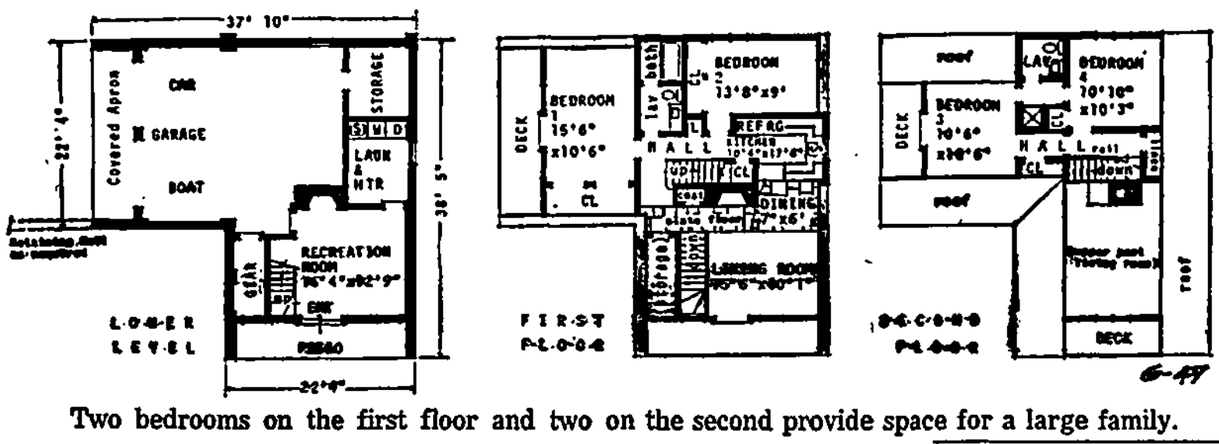
An interesting A-frame variation is this one by architect Herbert C. Struppmann. By the addition of an L-shaped wing, he not only has given the outside a new profile, but has added to the plan's practicality for use at any time of the year.

The lower level has a large garage suitable for the storage of both a car and a boat. A side opening permits greater flexibility in placement of the house on its site. On the same level are gear and general storage areas, a laundry and heater room—and, at the front, a recreation room with a handsome fireplace. This room opens at the front patio and has access to the upper level via an open stair at the side.

On the level above are the main rooms of the house—a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and a bath. There's a slate floor in the entry hall as well as the dining room, with another attractive fireplace. Unlike many rustic plans, Design 47's kitchen is a separate room, with a pass-through to the dining room. The kitchen is big enough for regular family housekeeping.

The main bedroom on this level has a full wall of closets and has access to a side deck. The other bedroom has an equally generous amount of closet space.

Two more bedrooms, one with a private deck, are on the upper level, which also has a lavatory. This level can be finished at the time the house is built or completed at a later date when the occasion demands.



Two bedrooms on the first floor and two on the second provide space for a large family.

Garden Gossip

Oak Trees Are Victims of Borers

By EMERY W. NELSON
County Extension Agent

It would be well to examine the oaks for borers. This destructive insect appears to be on the increase as many oaks are infested.

The round-headed borers which attack the oak and several other shade trees work beneath the bark and tunnel into the trunk of the tree. They bore holes almost as large as lead pencils and cause extensive damage by riddling the tree trunk.

Once these grubs have entered the tree, the best control is to use a fumigant. First, cut away the dead bark near the entrance hole and remove the sawdust-like particles from the burrow. Fumigants such as carbon disulfide or carbon tetrachloride (cleaning fluid) are inserted into the hole and then the opening is plugged with putty or clay. Additional protection is provided by painting the cut-away area with a tree dressing paint.

When the borers are eliminated from the tree, reinfestation can be prevented by spraying the tree trunk. Protection is needed from June through August as the adult borer lays eggs during these months. Applications of Dieldrin, Lindane or DDT at two to three week intervals during the summer will prevent new borers entering the tree.

Young oak trees should be wrapped for additional protection. Regular tree wrapping material should be obtained from the garden store and applied according to the directions which are provided.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

City Forest Grows With Guinan's Care

When the word "forester" is mentioned most people envision a solitary man walking down a lonesome trail pausing, every now and then, to study the trees about him. The closest town is miles away. His only companions are the wild animals around him. The forester's life would appear tranquil, quiet, almost idyllic.

Yet, when the words "city forester" are mentioned this mental picture evaporates. It is as if someone had remarked about an "atheistic preacher". "City" and "forester" somehow don't seem to fit together.

However, if a person were to get into a helicopter and climb a mile into the sky above Lincoln, he would quickly realize that there is literally a forest beneath him.

Moreover, if he could compare the way the city's forest looked five years ago and the way it looks today, he would be pleasantly surprised.

At the southeast edge of the city, corn and milo fields have been converted into a beautiful park with 6,500 newly planted trees. This is Holmes Park.

On the north edge of the city, raw, bare ground and acres of concrete are being softened by trees, shrubs and grass. This is the Interstate Park.

On the eastern outskirts, Seacrest Field and new East High School are in a park setting made by newly planted trees. Woods Swimming Pool at 33rd and J is surrounded by new trees and shrubs. Fifteenth Street from the Capitol to the University of Nebraska is now a boulevard lined with oaks.

Moreover, in one year (September, 1964 to August, 1965) the trees along 86 miles of streets within the City of Lincoln were trimmed.

Who is the man most responsible for these improvements?

His name is Donald L. Guinan, city forester.

Of course, no one man could have accomplished this alone. Don has had an able staff. Moreover, Jim Ager, acting director of parks and recreation, and the City Council have given Don the money and tools without which none of this could have been accomplished.

Don Guinan is at work now as city forester in Ann Arbor, Mich., but he has left the forest of Lincoln in much better shape than it was on the day he came to our city.

Thanks, Don, and good luck in your new job.

CONTROL or KAOS? That's Choice in 'Get Smart'

Successfully spoofing spy thrillers is NBC television's "Get Smart," seen Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. on KMTV. It features, as you look in on them here, CONTROL (an abbreviation for nothing) agents Maxwell Smart (Don Adams) and 99 (Barbara Feldon) who tangle with counterparts from KAOS (an abbreviation for something worse than nothing). This week Smart and 99 have to extricate themselves from a trap in a telephone booth that fills with water when they try to make a call.

MOVIES

Going home? . . . Fred Gwynne as a Munster.

'Enter Laughing'

Hollywood (UPI) — Comedian Don Rickles will co-star with Jose Ferrer and Shelley Winters in "Enter Laughing."

Munsters, Then Elvis

Opening today at the Nebraska is a double feature, "Munster, Go Home and "Out of Sight." The Munster family, who spends each season trying to convince all they have hearts of gold, have a chance to prove they are "ordinary" folk. General audience.

Two popular film formulas are combined in "Out of Sight," as the spy spoof and the beach party frolics. Guest stars include Gary Lewis and the Playboys, Freddie and the Dreamers and the Astronauts. Young people.

Opening Friday at the Nebraska is "Paradise, Hawaiian Style," with idol Elvis Presley.

After losing his job as pilot for an airline, Elvis returns to his Hawaiian home and goes into partnership with a friend in a helicopter island-hopping service. Native girls, flowers, resorts and music all add up to a fast - mover. Adult, mature youth and youth.

Paradise . . . Hawaiian style for Elvis.

Mystery Solved

The production list of personnel working in Universal's "Beau Geste" called for four desert sweepers. The entire company wondered what their function would be until director Douglas Heyes ordered the footprints of his marching legionnaires erased from the burning sands. Armed with plain household brooms, four able-bodied men appeared and swept the desert clean.

'Crusoe' Stays On

As a Navy pilot who bails out of his burning plane, Van Dyke discovers that there are other inhabitants on the South Sea isle, including pretty Nancy Kwan and crazy chimp, Floyd. General audience.

From the sea to the wilds of the Northwest for a second State feature: "Run, Appaloosa Run." This is a delightful tale of an Indian girl (Adele Palacios) raising and training her horse, Holy Smoke. General audience.

Holy Smoke and trainer, Mary.

Play With Message

The University of Nebraska Theater will present "The Physicists," at 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Howell Theater, 12th and R.

The performance, directed by Dr. William R. Morgan, associate professor of drama, is by summer session students.

"The Physicists," by Friedrich Durrenmatt, was first performed in Zurich in 1962. The play has been described as one of provocative ideas and chilling mysteries. It is set in a luxurious sanitarium where three mad scientists are patients. Before the evening is over they will have "played games" that could lead to the extinction of mankind.

Morgan said the play makes the point that it is impossible to withhold information which is vital to all.

The cast includes Robert Hall, Zeff Bernstein, Steve Gaines, Marceine Sweetser, Richard Mahood and Pat Phillips, all of Lincoln.

How Co. C Won War

MOVIES

Opening today at the Varsity is the GI comedy, What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?" starring James Coburn, Dick Shawn, Sergio Fantoni, Giovanna Ralli and Aldo Ray.

The World War II funny involves C Co., assigned to capture the Italian village of Valerno. The invasion is strictly by the book and the Italians' tempers flare immediately, not because their land has been invaded, but because their soccer game has been interrupted.

The Italians are willing to surrender, but only honorably . . . which means a wine festival.

Headquarters has been told that Co. C is meeting heavy resistance . . . but in reality, it's a wild and frantic party . . . until an intelligence officer arrives on the scene.

So a simulated Italian surrender is staged for the intelligence officer's benefit, but everyone seems to arrive in the village . . . bank robbers, communists and a German division.

Combine panic, chaos, comedy, Mancini music and you come up with one of the funniest war films ever. Adult, mature youth audice.

How to Deal With Spies

Loren reminisces with an octogenarian admirer about her preceding 60 adventurous years. Her wild romantic affairs with Newman and Niven keep the situation a puzzler to the end. Adult.

To follow Lady L is another secret agent yarn, "The Glass Bottom Boat," with Doris Day and Rod Taylor.

Day, a conscientious public-relations girl, gets caught up in the world of spacecraft and her electronic genius boss, Taylor, who has invented a rocket device sought by the U.S. and Russia.

Their relationship takes a personal turn, his top-secret formula disappears and heroine Day becomes a spy suspect.

A series of slapstick chases are set off in the settings of rocketry and espionage. Adult, mature youth and youth audience.

Spying Doris.

Murder by Two

New York (AP)—A macabre crime that occurred in Australia is the source of "Wonderful Us," a play by Mary Orr and Reginald Denham scheduled for Broadway arrival next fall.

The story, which came to the authors' attention during a downunder visit, concerns two-teenage girls who kill the mother of one of them. The dramatic suspense concerns whether the girls are caught. Denham is to direct for producers Andre Goulston and William Hammerstein.

Housemother!

Hollywood (UPI) — A UCLA fraternity has appointed comedienne Phyllis Diller as its official housemother.

New Fonda Role

Jane Fonda has been signed by Otto Preminger to star in "Hurry Sundown" with Michael Caine.

New Deck's Freak Hand Turns Into Nightmare

By HOWARD SCHENKEN AND RICHARD L. FREY

According to mathematicians, a 7-6 distribution occurs only once in about 18,000 hands. But after today's deal had been played, West felt even this was too often! Would you have done better?

This deal came up in the British Mixed Pairs championship, which — like most of the American Contract Bridge League's (ACBL) blue ribbon events—is played with hands that have been secretly pre-dealt . . . though not prearranged.

But whereas the ACBL's hands are produced by a random-dealing computer, those for the British event were manually dealt by officials. And since the officials were using new decks, the proportion of freak deals zoomed way above the mathematical probabilities.

Having introduced his wild hand with a quiet bid of one diamond and been raised to two, West naturally thought he was off to a bright start.

But N-S quickly got to slam even though they held only one ace, and West found that a deal that began as a dream has wound up a nightmare.

Can you blame West for finding the wrong opening lead? Since East had supported diamonds, N-S seemed more likely to be void of that suit than of clubs, but on the lead of the club ace, the slam rolled in. Declarer ruffed, pulled trumps, ditched his diamond loser on the club king and lost only to the spade ace.

Freak new-deck hands like West's support the theory that the A.C.B.L's computer-dealt hands correspond more closely to mathematical probabilities than any other type deal. Hands that are manually dealt with old decks, by contrast, tend to produce too many evenly balanced patterns.

Old NEBRASKA
years ago this week

99 U.S. surveying crews had begun work in Stanton, Madison and other Nebraska counties.

90 The Lincoln Ladies' Brass Band was on a concert tour of Nebraska.

The name Rain-in-the-Face was no joke, Lincoln learned, as an Indian chief by that name visited the Standing Rock Indian Agency in Lincoln.

80 S. H. H. Clark of the Missouri Pacific Railroad was arranging for construction of a Weeping Water to Lincoln line. Estimated construction cost was $18,000 a mile.

70 Because of the activity of Free Silverites, the First National Bank of Alliance said it was calling in all its loans.

Lincoln's 11th St. became an impromptu forum for debaters. Disgusted residents began throwing water from their windows when the oratory continued past midnight.

60 Women's Christian Temperance Union officer Mrs. M. E. Patterson of Omaha told a crowd at Epworth Hall: "The liquor traffic has done more to retard the growth of the equal suffrage movement than all other agencies combined."

50 City commissioners said an ordinance requiring that bread be sold in either 16 or 35-ounce loaves would be enforced. Retailers were expected to set the price of a 16-ounce loaf at six cents.

The Young People's Prohibition League was granted permission to hold an evening pageant in the F St. Park Park Supt. William Schroeder earlier refused permission, fearing a "disturbance because of the difference of opinion regarding prohibition."

40 An organized Anti-Chicken Thief Assn. went into swift action in Nebraska on several occasions, sometimes holding shoot-outs with alleged thieves.

The York city government asked for a state investigation of the women's reformatory management.

30 Some northeastern Nebraska counties were reported in worse drouth condition than in 1934.

A medical student from Lincoln rode for 24 hours in a Chicago cab, then did not pay a $52 bill. "I was trying to cash a check," he told a judge. The judge ordered psychiatric examinations for the student—and for the cab driver.

20 Lincoln building construction for the first seven months of the year reached $4.4 million.

Cupid had a net advantage of only five for the month in Lancaster County: 71 marriage licenses were issued and 66 divorce suits were filed.

10 Consumers Public Power District offered a 20% power rate reduction to tax-supported institutions in Lincoln.

The state recommended nine more Nebraska counties be declared drouth emergency areas. This brought to 37 the number of Nebraska counties seeking the designation.

Last Week Holmes Lake, a recreational development southeast of Lincoln, claimed its first drowning victim, a 15-year-old Lincoln boy.

A regional committee including several Lincolnites was formed to promote a north-south interstate highway from Salina, Kan., to the Sioux City, Ia., area.

Rains of as much as five inches fell in Nebraska.

OUR LITTLE TOWN

Time to Think

By GERTRUDE SKINNER Ruskin

Are you enjoying summer? I sincerely hope so for it is such a delightful time of year and despite troubled times, such a wonderful, wonderful world to be a part of.

Those of us living in the small towns and rural areas are enjoying a lull in the work load of spring and early summer.

At last there is time to look about us, to commune, to identify, to draw purpose and strength into our lives from the world in which we live.

We are grateful for all things: young-young lovers walking hand in hand, colts and calves and kittens chasing butterflies.

We find supreme satisfaction in the tastes of summer—huge slices of watermelon in which the small fry bury their faces from ear to ear; corn on the cob swimming in butter; great slices of tomatoes five minutes away from mother earth's basket; enormous, red strawberries piled high, frosted with sugar and looking for all the world like miniature red snow-capped mountains. And sheepsour—if you've never nibbled it's delightful yellow blossom, you've never lived to the fullest.

And when our overworked or aging muscles ache for relief we take time to relax in a lawn chair (not many patios in our town) and listen to the drone of bees gathering honey from the clover.

Their buzzing drowns out the distant jet plane crossing the soft summer sky. Cotton-puff clouds soon hide the vapor trails and our thoughts drift with the formations. We are suspended in time and space and we grow rested and free from care.

An then at the end of our day there is sunset—always so glorious in Nebraska—in our town unmarred by the shadows of tall buildings, it appears like a great seal of red gold on the distant horizon and another summer day becomes a yesterday.

Stamp Repeats William's Victory

London (UPI) — Nine hundred years after the Battle of Hastings, which made England a French colony and changed history, the English and French are locked in friendly competition to commemorate its anniversary.

With pageants and banquets, a mock battle, sports, fireworks and a new French "invasion" of the English coast by pleasure cruisers, the two sides are now ready for fun and war games up to Oct. 14—date of the famous Norman Conquest.

As in 1066, the French have lavished more money and care on the contest. And, as in 1066, when the English army marched a week to get to the battle ground, the home side has been late onto the field.

It wasn't until January this year that the British government decided officially to remember the battle. So the French commemoration postage stamps are beating Britain's Hastings issue into the post offices by several months.

But note the word commemoration. Even after 900 years, no one is "celebrating" a day of tragedy on which thousands of bowmen and knights were killed and Harold, last Saxon king of England, was slain allegedly by a Norman arrow.

But in the light of what has happened since the English defeat, everyone is happy to commemorate the results of 1066 and all that.

Without a Norman victory at Hastings there would certainly have been no Chaucer, no Joan of Arc, no Agincourt, no English law and democracy as the world knows them—and certainly no English language.

Had King Harold beaten Duke William of Normandy, England today might be a proud Nordic nation untinged by the civilizing influences forced on it by the violent and uncordial entente with the French 900 years ago.

In England, main interest this summer focuses on Pevensey, where Duke William landed with his conquering army; Hastings, a pleasant little holiday resort nearby, and "the place of battle"—a picturesque town appropriately called Battle.

Seven miles northwest of Hastings in a green valley that was the site of the axe-swinging conflict, Battle today is the sort of compact, thriving market center that gets its picture on postcards.

Battle's program is ambitious, including a historical pageant, an arts festival (July 17-31), an old English fair (Aug. 1-6) and, on Oct. 14, an ox roast, bonfire, formal luncheon, a banquet and a ceremony at the Norman stone where King Harold is supposed to have laid when he died.

At Pevensey, Oct. 1 has been chosen for the landing of 200 small craft — an equivalent number to the William's invasion fleet — led by a modern French warship and two Viking long-ships borrowed from Norway for the occasion.

Hastings has commissioned an embroidered, 243-foot tapestry to record in 81 pictures the story of English history since 1066.

Modelled on the famous Bayeux Tapestry—the world's first strip cartoon which told the story of the invasion and conquest in tapestry is being made by the Royal College of Needlework in London and will go on public show in October.

Ballet at Home

New York (AP) — The City Center of Music and Drama will add the City Center Joffrey Ballet as a permanent resident company at the City Center on 55th Street.

The Robert Joffrey Ballet received rave reviews for its previous performances there.

By the Light of Day

By GINNY FISHER

Daytime TV is a homemaker's haven with three basic styles: re-runs, game shows and soap-operas.

Viewers can judge re-runs by past record. However, reports on quizes and soapers usually merely lump together the whole daytime schedule.

Half-a-dozen new daytime shows premiered last month, and one who had just one previous contact with daytime TV (one wintry day in 1965 when she was snowbound at home) selected two, one quiz and one soap-opera to review.

TV DIARY

July 14: Read reviews, can't tell new quizes apart. So, decided on NBC's "Showdown," due to intriguing host Joe Pyne, noted as a rude, brash moderator of Los Angeles radio "talk" show.

July 15: Choose "Dark Shadows," on ABC at 3 p.m., as soap opera experiment in gothic, Jane-Eyre style. Should avoid those morning kaffee-klatches, the mainstays for rehashing gossip (and plots) on most soapers.

July 16: Check out office TV set. Earphones a bit crackly, but will do.

July 18, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne is much too tame, actually polite. No satire and he only razzes his announcer, "Colonel Tonsils," a little. Oh yes, three (that's logical) triplets challenge champion threesome. Triplets seem to have won.

July 18, 3 p.m.: Sort of ridiculous. Eerie voice of heroine Victoria, befuddled girl with long dark hair, opens show, uncheerfully bringing all up to date on the oh-too-dreadful happenings. Heavy footsteps, murky surroundings and "trembling muisc" are too carefully calculated.

July 19, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne is snappier but no match for triplets who show somewhat sassy but engaging personalities. Will return tomorrow.

July 19, 3 p.m.: Show not boring today—just no show. Pre-empted by Gemini-Titan X maneuvers.

July 20, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne almost lives up to his radio reputation when he grills a blonde 26-year-old about her children, who just happen to be 17 and 19. As to the quiz, all triplets guess wrong hand of Statue of Liberty which carries torch. Opponents all answer correctly (by the way, it's the right) but they lose the match. Triplets will be back tomorrow to try for grand prize, a trip to Spain.

July 20, 3 p.m.: Tick-ticking clock replaces heavy footfalls for melodramatic emphasis. These can be a handy reference guide, as show surely seems to need one.

July 21, 10:30 a.m.: Realize best part of whole show is when a contestant misses answer and is popped down, more suddenly than not, behind the counter. Whoosh!

Triplets win, but don't get trip to Spain, so will return.

July 21, 3 p.m.: Great show, all about G-T X reentry and splash-down.

July 22, 10:30 a.m. Interesting how "disinterested" viewer has started pulling for contestants. Last day for triplets (can only stay one week), last chance for bonus trip to Madrid. One may root so hard for a team that she even tries to "think" correct answer to them. Luckily it doesn't work because Triplets are right and viewer is wrong. Boys win the game, but don't manage that trip to Spain.

July 22, 3 p m.: Interesting effect when sound temporarily goes off and on and off. Glass bounces noiselessly across floor. First see, then later hear Maggie, but by then her voice just does not fit her appearance. Sound comes on in time to hear Roger Collins tell heroine Victoria, "You've got to stay here, whether you like it or not. Good night, Miss Winters."

Luckily, viewers don't have to stay here. Week is up. Good night Dark Shadows.

July 25, 10:25 a.m.: Turn on set. Of course it's just out of curiosity about new contestants — a viewer couldn't get hooked on a quiz show in just one week, could she? Almost gave up however, when advertisement of new fall TV show comes on. Have you ever heard Tarzan's ape call via earphones?!

Stone Bridge May Disappear

'Combat' on a New Battlefield

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York (AP)—When September rolls around, a tight little band of combat infantrymen will resume its fifth year of fighting its way from the Normandy beachhead into Germany.

The veterans of the realistic ABC series, "Combat," seem to win all their encounters with the Nazis but don't seem to get far except to a comfortable if not peak perch in the Nielsen ratings.

All On 1 Back Lot

Over the seasons, Sergeant Chip Saunders and his squad of three regulars have encountered plenty of weather—those drenching Hollywood rains, snow, blazing heat—and coped with cowards, malcontents, spies, snipers. While occasionally being nicked by bullets, knocked out or, in one case, temporarily blinded, they have run, crept and crawled along without rest or recuperation.

As the series moved forward, the personalities of the regulars have inevitably developed slowly and changes have occurred in the star lineup. Originally, Rick Jason, playing a lieutenant (usually with a two-day beard and looking tired) and Vic Morrow as the sergeant (with dirt on his face and a grubby-looking uniform) were and are the official stars of the show.

As time went on, the scrip writers found it increasingly difficult to turn up plots prominently involving the lieutenant, so that Vic Morrow has carried the heaviest acting responsibilities of the show.

Sgt. Saunders of "Combat"

"The thing is that when an officer—in our case, the lieutenant—says to do something, the men can't argue. They've got to obey. But when an enlisted man, a sergeant, gives an order, they can get some dialogue," Morrow explained.

Sharp-eyed viewers of the series have noted that, no matter how hard the "Combat" squad fought, no matter how many fields, forests and streams it crossed, it seemed to be moving in one giant circle. The series was shot in the back lot of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. After awhile, they ran out of fresh backgrounds, and were back crossing the same stone bridge or were trapped under timbers in the same village church.

New Locations

Next season they will be fighting in brand new terrain:

"They kicked us out of MGM," reported Morrow happily, "because they have so much of their own product—including a war series—shooting there that they don't have room for us any more. Now we're going out to the valley (San Fernando) to a studio that has no back lot—no village set. That means we'll have to go on location, maybe to Canada for exteriors."

"I'd like to see us get into a city street fight," he reflected. "We could show tanks and trucks in the street, barricades and all sorts of things we've never been able to get into before."

Opening Boom

New York (UPI) — The same cannon that boomed the close of the New York's Fair of 1964-65 signaled the opening of EXPO '67, Montreal's World Fair of 1967.

The fair, marking Canada's centennial, is open from now to Oct. 27, 1967. The American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) trade association for travel agents in the United States and Canada, says EXPO '67 expects 30 million admissions.

DOGGIN' IT

By HOLLY SPENCE

And all you add is love! Whether your canine companion be pedigreed or mutt, love will do the trick every time.

Take a girl who loves dogs . . . Diane Sorensen . . . and her dog, Buttercup alias B.C. or Butterball . . . and they prove that you CAN teach an old dog new tricks.

B.C. was a resident of the Humane Society six years ago, but now she's a real 4-H show dog.

Why B.C.? Well, Diane says she may have been a "buttercup" when she was a wee pup, but now it's B.C. because she's "kind of old."

For 4-H'ers interested in dog projects, Diane agrees that a successful training program includes love and "maybe some meat for a reward."

B.C.'s training started early with the first dog project which meant grooming and the first trick . . . sitting.

Diane and B.C. . . . teamed.

Pedigreed or Mutt, Trainer's Love Helps

With barrier No. 1 easily passed, project No. 2 meant additional tricks.

"I've read a lot of books on dog training, but decided I'd develop my own method of teaching B.C. tricks," said Diane, "I guess it was more under the heading of an invention."

One of the tricks for every show dog to know is shaking hands. So shaking hands it was! But that meant a little inventiveness.

B.C. was set on Diane's desk . . . then she tied a cloth around the right foreleg (which she insists is the paw every dog shakes with) . . . then the loose end of the cloth was strung around a shelf bracket above her.

"Then I said "shake!" very distinctively and gave a sharp jerk on the cloth until B.C. would lift the paw by herself," added Diane.

"It took about 10 minutes by my method, where in the books, they say several days of 15 minute periods are needed."

B.C. has gathered nothing but a raft of blue ribbons . . . she's truly a "blue-ribbon winner". Whatever the 4-H project may be, Diane can always work B.C. into it.

She was the object of a 4-H demonstration one year on how to bathe a dog . . . and she was the cleanest dog in town. Twice, B.C. was the topic of discussion for the speech contest.

But all work and no play would make B.C. a dull dog, so there's always time for frolicking.

She seems to have an uncontrollable urge for chasing squirrels . . . and even up trees. One of her seemingly feline climbs got the best of her . . . and she got stuck in the tree.

"But one of our pride and joys is B.C.'s curlicue tail," said Diane, "why she even looks like a little pig."

Even though B.C. is of mixed breed . . . a mutt . . . that doesn't mean she can't learn lots of tricks.

Besides sitting and shaking hands, she begs, rolls over and heels.

"Sometimes I get a little jealous because B.C. follows my younger brother around," says Diane, "but she knows where to come for love and affection . . . and especially when she wants to get fed."

Diane assumes that B.C. still likes her, for every night finds B.C. sawing logs under Diane's bed.

Pawnee Refused To Run

August 5 marks the 93rd anniversary of the Battle of Massacre Canyon, the last and one of the bloodiest battles recorded between the Pawnee and Sioux Indian tribes in Nebraska.

The great Pawnee buffalo hunt had been a success and the tribe was in a jovial mood, dancing and chanting around the fires.

At daybreak, they broke camp and traveled to the head of a canyon just north of Trail City (now Trenton) where Sky Chief spotted a dark splotch on the horizon which he believed to be another herd of buffalo. He halted the march, ordered the squaws to set up camp while he sent hunters galloping across the prairie to take more game.

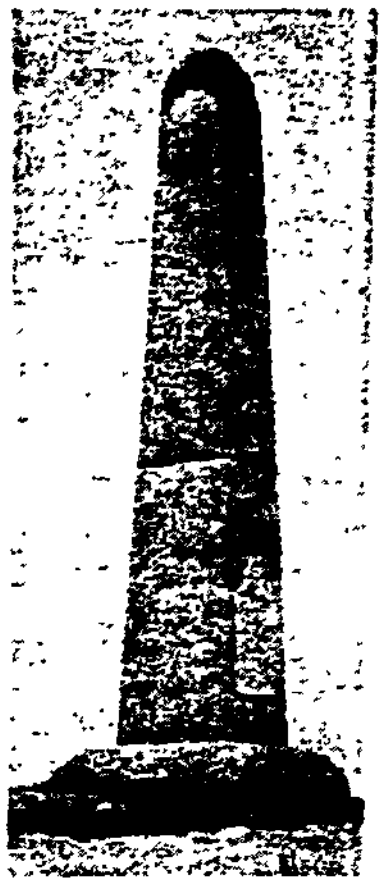
J. W. Williamson, trail agent accompanying the Pawnee, was informed by a hide buyer that a large body of Sioux were camped on the Frenchman River a few miles away, and their chief, John Grass, was accusing the Pawnee of trespassing on Sioux territory.

Williamson, aware of the enmity between the two tribes, urged the Pawnee leaders, Sky Chief and Fighting Bear, to proceed with all possible speed down the canyon to the Republican River where a grove of cottonwoods would give them some protection.

However, the Pawnee, with only 300 fighting men, at first chose to stay their grounds and fight until the 1,000-strong Sioux approached the Pawnee encampment.

Realizing the hopelessness of the situation, the Pawnee instructed Williamson to parley the oncoming Sioux.

Williamson, accompanied by hide agent, Ralph Weeks, rode out carrying a white flag to meet the Sioux. However, the Sioux leader, Snow Flake, grunted a refusal and with a war whoop and a burst of fire, the Sioux swooped down on the Pawnee.



Massacre Momument

Sky Chief fell in the first round of bullets.

Women with their children cut the packs from their ponies and rode for their lives.

As he neared the canyon, Williamson's horse was shot from under him. As the horse went down Williamson leaped from the saddle, caught a riderless mount and hurried down the canyon. Leaning from the saddle he attempted to pick up a small child who had fallen from her mother's back. A Sioux bullet pierced his hand causing him to miss the child who was trampled to death.

As the Pawnee raced down the winding, 150-yard wide canyon, they came to a place where the ravine bottlenecked. Here squaws, children and horses piled on top of each other with the Sioux shooting into the midst.

Only a remnant of the Pawnee reached the protection of the cottonwood grove.

Here they were met by the Cavalry from Ft. McPherson who turned the Sioux, retreating with about 700 Pawnee horses.

The Sioux later returned 11 captured squaws and children and were asked to give $10,000 of their annuity funds to the Pawnee.

Three miles from Trenton is a monument of pink Minnesota granite, placed there on Sept. 26, 1930, to commemorate this . . . the last battle between the Pawnee and the Sioux.

Million Visitors a Year

That's Potential of Fully-Developed Park At Fort Robinson, State-Federal Study Finds

By DEL SNODGRASS

Nebraska's historic Ft. Robinson, if fully developed as a state park, could expect at least one million visitors each year.

That estimate, which was termed "conservative," was made by the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation which coordinated a federal-state study on the best possible future use of the northwest Nebraska Ft. Robinson complex.

The report provided the basis for the State Game Commission's purchase of the 10,300-acre James Ranch lying between the former military reservation and a timber reserve managed by the U.S. Forest Service.

As a result of that $1.3 million purchase, Commission Director Mel Steen disclosed plans to spend $10 million over the next 25 years to develop Ft. Robinson into what he says will be one of the best state or federal parks in the western United States.

Best Use

All state and federal participants in the study agreed the "highest and best use" of Ft. Robinson was for outdoor recreation and that the Nebraska Game Commission was best suited to running the operation.

Although the fort is on U.S. 20 in northern Nebraska rather than on more heavily traveled east-west routes further south, the study noted the highway is a major route to Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park.

In addition, the study noted, Ft. Robinson is within 75 miles of 10 other attractions, including the Scotts Bluff National Monument, Toadstool Park and Chadron State Park in Nebraska and Wind Cave National Park and Custer State Park in South Dakota.

Nearby Attractions

Five other attractions within 150 miles of the fort are the Badlands, Mt. Rushmore, the Black Hills and the Valentine and Ft. Niobrara National Wildlife Refuges.

"As mobility increases," the study said, "more people will travel farther to enjoy outstanding scenic wildlife and wilderness areas . . .

"Increased tourist travel means greatly increased receipts to local merchants. The economy in the area now is stagnant. Non-recreation use of Ft. Robinson, such as agriculture, would benefit the community and state little or none at all".

The study spoke highly of the area's natural beauty, its historical background and its geological, archeological and paleontological values.

"Ft. Robinson," the study said, "is located in a picturesque valley flanked by ridges and plateaus covered with Ponderosa pine, accented with castle-like buttes, and interspersed with open park-like meadows and rolling hills.

Trail ride through the pines . . . Ft. Robinson attraction.

"Spring and fall days are cool and crisp, the three summer months have clear, hot days, cool nights, and low humidity."

Timber Reserve

Definitely, the report said, the timber reserve should be made available for public use as part of the park complex.

Historically, the study continued, the fort is associated with the Indians and fur trading era, the coming of the white man, and settlement by homesteaders and ranchers in the Great Plains.

Fossil Area

The fort opened in 1874 to protect government employes and property at the nearby Red Cloud Indian Agency, became an important military post in the Indian wars of the 1870s and was the largest Quartermaster horse remount station in the world during World War I.

Less known to the public is the area's reputation as the heart of a world-famous fossil-mammal collecting area.

"Geologists, paleontologists and scientists from all parts of the world come to study these deposits," the study said, "for western Nebraska has the most complete geologic section in North America, representing the past 35 million years."

Winter Sports

Steen said the area has all the attributes for outdoor recreation facilities, including winter sports such as skiing on the slopes found in the vicinity.

Houston's Hall One Of Finest

Houston (UPI) — Although dust, nails and lumber now litter floors where plush red carpets will be unrolled, Houston has vowed to open one of the finest music halls in the nation on Oct. 2.

The $6.6 million Jesse H. Jones Hall for the Performing Arts will be the home of the Houston Symphony Orchestra, the Houston Grand Opera Assn. and the Houston Ballet.

The Jones Hall will comprise one of three buildings of a cultural complex. The other two buildings are the new Alley Theater and the Albert Thomas Space Hall of Fame.

The entire construction cost of the new hall was a gift to the city from the Houston Endowment, Inc., a foundation created by the late newspaper publisher, Jesse H. Jones. The building site was donated by the city.

The hall's main entrance is framed by a glass front 66 feet high. Inside, a triple tier of lobbies extends around three sides of the main hall.

The main auditorium will have a maximum seating capacity of 3,000. However, the electronically-controlled ceiling can be lowered to shut off upper sections and limit seating to 2,400, 2,000 or 1,800 patrons.

Backstage, there is a rehearsal room two levels below the stage which is large enough for a full symphony. It also has full wall mirrors with ballet bars and is completely soundproofed so that one group may rehearse while another is onstage performing.

Grand opening week in October will feature "Aida" with Gabriella Tucci and Richard Tucker, as well as the Houston Symphony and a ballet performance.

Road To Caves

New York (UPI) — The Qumran Caves, where the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered, will be more accessible to travelers as result of a new road now being built by the Jordan Tgurism Authority, says the Jordan Tourist Information Center.

Starting at the Dead Sea Hotel at the north end of the Dead Sea, the road terminates at the Qumran Caves where a small rest house and a caretaker's lodge also are under construction.

'Mame' On Record

Angela Lansbury has been a great entertainer since the World War II years and has scored triumphs on both stage and screen.

But Miss Lansbury's finest hour may be in "Mame," the Broadway hit musical based on Patrick Dennis' wacky novel, "Auntie Mame."

She proves she not only can act but can sing and dance. Miss Lansbury has done such a fine job in "Mame" that she should be in demand on Broadway for many years.

Goddard Lieberson has produced an excellent recording by the original cast of "Mame" (Columbia) and it is a top item for collectors of Broadway show music.

The title song from "Mame" is the leadoff number of Satchmo's latest LP, "Louis" (Mercury). Two other show numbers—"So Long Dearie" from "Hello Dolly" and "Faith" from "I Had a Ball"—are included. Dixieland buffs will enjoy "Tin Roof Blues" and "The Saints."

One of the more appealing movie sound track albums is "Paradise, Hawaiian Style" (RCA). Elvis Presley sings nine tunes and there is what is billed as a special bonus song —"Sand Castles."

"Jacqueline Kennedy" (Audio Fidelity) reprises some of the speeches the former First Lady made in the United States and abroad at the side of her husband. The voice of the slain president also is heard.

Selected Singles

"James Brown's Boo-Ga-Lee" by James Brown (Smash), "All My Nights, All My Days" by the Breakers (Jerden), "Tar and Cement" by Verdelle Smith (Capitol), "Most of All" by the Cowsills (Philips.

Tape Deck

"Jazz Dialogue" by the Modern Jazz Quartet and the All-Star Jazz Band (Atlantic-Ampex) features five John Lewis compositions as well as "Ralph's New Blues" by Milt Jackson. This marks the first occasion for the quartet with a big band and it is a good associttion.

Freedom From Security's Snare

Indian Summer. By John Knowles; Random House.

If nothing else, it is refreshing to meet in the pages of a contemporary novel a hero of unexceptional abilities, an average, sturdy ex-GI whose psyche is as healthy as his body, a young man to whom life is neither tragedy nor illusion. But in his latest novel, John Knowles gives us much more.

Knowles

Knowles, whose "A Separate Peace" has become something of a campus classic, strikes a telling blow for personal independence and honesty in "Indian Summer." His hero, Cleet Kinsolving, is a rugged, part-Indian individualist who cannot be bought by wealthy friends although the price he pays is his dream of establishing an air-freight line to Alaska. He jumps, reluctantly, at the lure of money to finance his venture by agreeing to act as aide and stabilizer for his boyhood chum, Neil Reardon, lecturer, writer and scion of the immensely rich Connecticut Reardons. No sooner has he taken the bait than he begins to bleed from the barb. The story is of his escape.

A trusting soul, Cleet inevitably suffers disillusion. He meets it with anger and action, with no hint of the enervating frustration, bitterness and despair so prevalent on today's literary scene.

Cleet's Indian ancestry provides a secondary theme reinforcing the main one of independence. Basically it is the self-sufficient Indian eluding the white man's snare of security. More universally, as the title would suggest, it is the young adult in life's summer spurt of self-realization who falls victim to the fleeting warmth and promise of those lovely but false days we know as Indian summer.

As Knowles puts it, most men live their lives out of season, always a season behind truth, "behaving in a way very appropriate for the phase which has just ended." So it is with the fear dominated life of Neil That some, like Cleet, are able and eager to adjust to life's calendar is the strength of the book.

Knowles' social commentary is withering as it pertains to the Reardons' wealth and religious convictions. It sets the stage for Cleet's savage and devastating reprisal for the Reardons' broken promise to him.

While "A Separate Peace" still probably ranks as Knowles' prime work, "Indian Summer" can hold its own as a well-told and interesting story.

Navy Story Type Cast

The Ninety and Nine. By William Brinkley; Doubleday.

Every now and again, the reviewer and that more important element in our society, the book purchaser, part company. This may be such an instance.

LST (Landing Ship Tank) 1826 has a World War II assignment of transporting mixed cargo into the Anzio beachhead and, usually, dead and wounded out. Nothing glamorous. But necessary. And dangerous.

Shallow of draft, slow of speed, LST 1826 has something of a storybook (naturally) crew among her 90 men and nine officers. Sailor himself, Brinkley has conjured a happy freight hauler. There is not a coward or evil man on board and the skipper is tolerant, competent, much liked and—surprise, Navy!—a very wealthy New York Jew.

LST 1826's band of heroes provide the standard horseplay and inventiveness often found in the light novelistic treatment of good, clean Americans at war—a sea cave where Italian girls may be entertained in gay style, guided war zone tours for hospital ship brass with the price being gallons of ice cream, tasty wine on board and the skilled delivery of a baby by a physician's mate while the LST pounds rough seas.

The treatment is episodic. Two somewhat-less-than-believable love stories counterpoint booming guns of death. Finally the war catches up with the men and the climax is bloodier than Hamlet's final act.

It's all done—or almost all—in the pattern which had had such post-war sales success, a mixture of fraternity high jinks and combat nobility. One has a hunch that the market may have peaked sometime back.

Timing often is a matter of luck in the book trade. But the development of type casts and caricatures for honest characters reflects fully upon the writer. The judgment here is that it reflects rather badly. "The Ninety and Nine" adds nothing, really, to the groaning bookshelf of fictional Yankees at war and play.

Between Baby Books and School Books

It's here: a Grosset and Dunlap series of books designed for the precocious reader and attractively packaged in a gift case. Called Early Start Preschool Readers, seven of the small, colorful books are written in a selected vocabulary of from 11 to 30 words with the word count indicated on each cover. An eighth book, "Poems," experiments with a wider vocabulary of 107 words. To parents caught between the read-at-three theory and that advocating schoolroom instruction, a University of Nebraska elementary education professor says of this set, "It can't do any harm."

First Novel Powerfully Written

This Blessed Shore. By Thomas B. Morgan. Shorecrest.

The epigraph for this first novel could have been a line from Simone de Beauvoir's recent book about her mother's end. "Death," she wrote, "is the ultimate indignity," a cri de coeur wrung from her by the heartbreaking spectacle of her mother's physical disintegration.

Death is hardly an ingratiating theme for a first novel, and it says something for Thomas Morgan's artistic courage that he elected to use it. The spur could have been autobiographical: certainly Morgan writes with a sense of passion and pain that points to personal experience.

The story (it is a novella, really) opens on a deceptively peaceful note—the return of the successful son from the big city to visit his parents in the little Illinois town where he was born.

Up to this point the novel possesses neither originality nor distinctiveness. But that night, Jake, the father, suffers a massive cerebral hemorrhage while playing his weekly poker game.

Instantly the focus of the book shifts, as does the tone of the narrative. What began as a familiar situation swiftly turns into a family tragedy. It doesn't strike as finally or as poetically as in Agee's "A Death in the Family." Here it is protracted and harrowing, on characters and readers alike.

Drawing on wellsprings of feeling not apparent in the early chapters, Morgan contrasts the ebbing of the father's life with the son's regret and helplessness, finally confronting the boy with the most horrifying dilemma a son can be called upon to face.

"This Blessed Shore" is fiction in a minor key. It may not be pleasant reading but it is undeniably powerful writing.

THE RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS
by Carl Bakal

A United States President is felled by shots from his assassin's mail-order rifle; a father, in William Tell pretense, kills his 5 year old daughter with a bullet between the eyes. Magazine editor Bakal presents the case against free ownership and traffic in the vast arsenal of firearms found in thousands of sport shops, mail order houses, and in one out of every two households in the U.S.

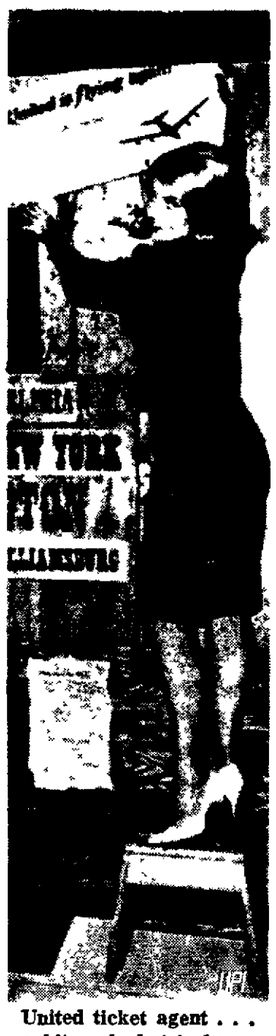
Air Lines To Fly?

Rejection Is Expected



United ticket agent . . . a bit early but in hopeful anticipation.

Washington (AP) — Local leaders representing more than a third of the 35,000 striking airlines mechanics indicated Saturday night the union would reject the White House contract agreement.

It was learned the mechanics had won a whopping 72 cents an hour hike in wages and fringe benefits. The three-year package is an annual increase of 6 to 7 per cent—about double the white house guidelines for curbing wage demands the government considers inflationary

The hefty package, spread over three years, is an annual increase of 6 to 7%—about double the White House guideline for curbing wage demands the government considers inflationary.

But fears remained over whether the 35,000 strikers will approve the contract proposal in voting across the nation Sunday

"This settlement will not be inflationary," President Johnson said.

Wage increases alone total 56 cents an hour over the three years for 19,000 mechanics—three cents more than demanded. But in return the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists gave up its insistence on a cost-of-living wage escalator clause and pension improvements.

The 16,000 other strikers — fuelers, gas-truck drivers, maintenance men, stock cleaners and janitors—will get the same percentage wage hikes but less in money because their pay scales are below the mechanics' current rate of $3.52 an hour.

Some 8,000 flight-line mechanics, inspectors and crew chiefs will get an extra 5-cent an hour pay differential on top of the 56-cent

The 5-cent flight line wage differential is viewed as the most costly fringe benefit in the contract proposal.

All the strikers will get up to $2 a week in added company-paid medical benefits to cover members of their families, virtually wiping out the health-benefit deduction that now comes out of their paycheck.

The union won improved vacations—four weeks after 15 years' service instead of the present 20 years, and three weeks after eight years instead of the current 10 years.

5 Airlines Set to Fly

New York, (AP) — The five struck airlines said Saturday they will have the first planes in the air within a few hours after ratification of a new contract by the machinists union

Members of the striking union vote on the new contract at 70 locations across the country today. Results of the vote should be known late tonight.

The airlines said that full service on all routes, however, could not be restored until at least Tuesday.

The threat of a pilots walkout against Trans World Airlines in a dispute over pay for the time planes were grounded by a machinists strike was averted Saturday night by a court injunction.

The pilots agreed to return to work when the machinists strike against the line is settled.

TWA said it hoped to resume flights on its heavily traveled routes within three to eight hours after union ratification of the contract

Eastern airlines said it expects to be 75% operational Monday and 100% by Tuesday.

Northwest said some passengers could be accommodated on military flights operated during the strike The airline said it would be several days before schedules are normal

United said it planned to dsipatch its first flight early Monday, but did not expect its fleet to be fully operational before 36 hours after ratification.

National reported that it would have some flights on Monday

(The UPI reported that national leaders of the IAM said they had urged the union membership to accept the new pact, but rank-and-file leaders in Washington and San Francisco said they would urge their locals to turn down the settlement).

PARADOX IN THE HOUSE

Open Housing Bill Has Problems

Washington (AP)—The fight over open housing now racking the House paradoxically pits the most important supporters of the bill against the civil rights groups that want it the most

For their allies in a crucial vote due Wednesday, the civil rights groups will have Southern Democrats and anti-civil rights Republicans, but the prospect leaves them undismayed

"If people vote the way we think they should, we don't question their motives," says one civil rights leader.

The proposal to outlaw racial discrimination in housing would have a tough enough time in any case, but a confusing legalistic side issue is compounding the difficulty in the house

President Johnson originally proposed an outright ban covering everybody and every type of housing It had no chance from the day it was offered, and everybody in Congress knew it.

A painfully worked out compromise in the House Judiciary Committee would cover only those in the business of selling or renting housing, leaving the individual owner untouched. There was no confusion in the minds of the majority of the committee that approved it.

But lawyers for the Civil Rights Leadership Conference a lobby representing more than 50 organizations, said the language could be interpreted to mean a homeowner was exempt only if he handled a transaction himself without using a real estate agent That would make it almost as tough as Johnson's original proposal

To clear it up, Rep. Charles M. Mathias Jr., R-Md., author of the compromise, prepared an amendment making his original intent clear — individual owner and his agent both would be exempt. He plans to offer it Wednesday when the House takes up the issue.

But the Leadership Conference calls the amendment a drastic weakening of the bill and is lining up liberals to vote against it The effect of defeating the amendment would be to give House approval to the more sweeping interpretation of the proposal

Trouble Areas Mostly Quiet

Compiled From News Wires

A Negro man was found dead in a wrecked car in a small Bagolusa, La, park Saturday, victim of a gunshot blast at close range

Asst Police Chief L. C. Terrell identified the dead man as Clarence Triggs of Bogalusa and said he died of a gunshot wound in the head.

Police quickly cordoned off the area and ordered an autopsy on the body.

The FBI at New Orleans said it was maintaining a close liaison with Bogalusa authorities to determine whether the death involved a violation of federal law

Terrell said the wrecked car was registered in the name of Mrs Lanell Seal, a white resident of Bogalusa He said the auto had veered off the roadway and had struck a fire hydrant and a highway sign.

In Chicago, civil rights demonstrators demanding equality in renting and buying property marched from a Negro area to a predominantly white neighborhood on the Southwest Side.

About 250 men, women and teen-agers trudged two abreast on the sidewalks.

They carried signs reading "open city now" and "end apartheid in real estate."

Bottles were hurled from a crowd of jeering whites at Negro and white demonstrators. One Negro man was struck by a bottle but did not appear seriously injured. Eight persons were arrested.

The march is part of a drive of Dr Martin Luther King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), for an open city.

Meanwhile, extra police patrols maintained their vigil on East Baltimore streets after a brief street battle between Negroes and whites kept racial tensions high.

The flare up between rock and brick-throwing gangs of Negroes and whites was the second in two nights. Although it was far less serious than the previous one, two persons were injured and one was arrested

The night before hundreds of white youths roared through a Negro section hurling bottles and attacking residents

Militant Negro leaders have been urging residents to "save your dimes and dollars and buy guns" to defend themselves from white attacks.

The racial situation was eased somewhat by the courts Five members of the National States Rights Party (NSRP) were indicted for inciting a riot in the wake of Thursday's violence and the party was enjoined from holding further rallies The NSRP rally immediately preceded the violence in the area

In Cleveland, the National Guard will complete its pullout from the Hough District Sunday when the last 750 troopers on duty return home

The War in Vietnam

American B52 Bombers Hit Demilitarized Zone Again

Saigon (AP)—U.S. B52 bombers pounded the demilitarized zone Sunday for the second straight day. The target was North Vietnamese troops in the neutral area

A U.S. military spokesman reported the raids but said he had no details.

The giant Stratoforts hit the demilitarized zone Saturday for the first time in the Vietnamese war.

As in the Saturday raids, the eight-engine bombers struck Sunday in the southern half of the 6-mile wide demilitarized zone where elements of the North Vietnamese 324B division had been sighted

The ground-breaking American strike, loosed at dawn in the southern half of the six-mile-wide strip along the frontier at the 17th parallel, stirred moderate to heavy antiaircraft fire from clandestinely emplaced enemy guns

A spokesman said the eight-engine Stratofortresses from Guam rained 500-pound and 1,000-pound bombs on enemy installations little more than a half mile south of the border, which splits the zone. He listed an ammunition dump, a weapons storage area, 26 gun positions and extensive fortifications.

In other aspects of the war

—Briefing officers announced that U S Marines and South Vietnamese troops now have killed the equivalent of two battalions of North Vietnam's 324B infantry division in Operation Hastings This is a 15-day-old campaign just south of the demilitarized zone The list of counted enemy dead rose to 830. Though some Marine units have been mauled, over-all allied casualties were called light

—Soldiers of the U S 1st Infantry division probed a longtime Viet Cong stamping ground in Binh Duong province, 50 miles north of Saigon, with no immediate contact. They are involved in a large, new sweep-and-destroy operation code-named Springfield

—A recent visitor to Hanoi said the Russians are providing North Vietnam advanced model Mig21 aircraft to combat American raiders He would not guess at the number The war's dogfights so far have resulted in the destruction of 17 of the Communists' fighters, including three Mig21s, against a loss of five U.S. planes.

—The official Vietnam press agency said some high-ranking Asian Communists including a Red Chinese adviser to the Viet Cong identified as Maj Gen Huyet Deat Trung had a meeting June 20 in the jungles of Tay Ninh province northwest of Saigon There was no mention of its purpose The session was reported to have dissolved in confusion after government troops up a fight with guerrilla guards

A U S spokesman announced the B52 attack was to combat North Vietnamese infiltration specifically by the 324B division, via the demilitarized zone

Mayor Of Town A Victim

Plentywood, Mont (AP) —A burly oil worker, fined on an assault charge, fatally shot the mayor of Plentywood and wounded the judge and a policeman Saturday before the wounded officer killed him with a bullet between the eyes

The gunfight took place in the city courtroom just after Duane Falk 33, of Plentywood, the oil worker, was convicted of assault and fined $50 Sheriff Lyle Medders said Falk stood up and started shooting

Mayor Ludvig Tande, 46, shot in the arm and side, staggered through a door and died on the floor of the fire department garage.

Falk wounded Justice of the Peace William Denikas about 80, who had hobbled into the courtroom on crutches and City Policeman Ole Fiske, 59.

Undersheriff Ben Holt said Fiske, shot in the side, then struggled with Falk until Falk accidentally shot himself in the side. In an ensuing exchange, Fiske shot Falk in the head, Holt said

Fiske was in serious condition in a hospital and Denikas, who normally is confined to a wheelchair was in satisfactory condition

Falk had just been convicted of assaulting Robert Engstrom of Reserve, Mont, in a Plentywood bar in June. Ed Rucker of Plentywood, the defense attorney who represented Falk, said the earlier fight was over $230 Falk contended Engstrom owed him for damage done to his car in an accident last year

"I got the hell out of there in a hurry," Rucker told newsmen. "I hid in the fire garage next door and counted six shots. Then I started to go home for my gun and I saw Falk fighting with Ole Fiske," the policeman Rucker said he could not tell who fired the shot that killed Falk.

Residents of this town of 2,000 in extreme northeastern Montana streamed to city Hall where Falk's body lay on the courtroom floor and Tande's on the floor of the firehouse

"The whole town is stunned," said J. S. Polk, editor of the weekly Plentywood Herald. "The mayor was our leading citizen. People are just standing around stunned"

Rucker said after Denikas convicted Falk and fined him, "I started putting my papers together I didn't see Falk's gun until I heard a shot"

The sheriff said later that Falk got up as if to pay the fine and instead pulled the 22 caliber pistol from a pocket of the jeans he had worn to court

Rucker said Falk apparently fired first at the judge, who threw up his arm and stopped the bullet with his shoulder "Tande was the second one shot" Rucker said

Services Surpass Goal; Buildup Continues

Washington (AP) —The massive buildup of U.S. armed strength has passed its announced goal of 3,093,000 a year ahead of time. There are strong indications the buildup will continue.

Vance

Pentagon officials are reluctant to talk in specific terms about the eventual size of the military forces.

When questioned, Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance has said "we cannot see clearly at this time what will be required."

Vance added that "we do not know yet" what the upper limit on military manpower will be.

Other sources said force planning currently is projected ahead three months at a time.

The course of the war in Vietnam is the major factor that will determine the level to which over-all American armed strength will be raised.

The U.S. force in Vietnam currently totals more than 280,000 men. This total is expected to climb to about 400,000 by the end of this year and probably higher next year.

If conditions should dictate a bigger-than-expected reinforcement in Vietnam, the effects would be felt throughout the military establishment.

For example, the sending of an appreciably greater force to Vietnam would require an increase in the number of recruits and units to fill the holes left in the garrison in the United States.

May Step Up Draft

A larger force in Vietnam, under a one-year tour of duty, would necessitate a step-up in the output of replacements.

The big U.S. buildup was set in motion just one year ago.

Subsequent to that, Congress was asked to provide funds to augment the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force by 452,000 men.

Under the schedule laid out for Congress by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the new level of 3,093,109 men was to be reached by June 30, 1967.

However, the buildup progressed so swiftly that the objective was reached—and surpassed by a little—as of June 30 this year. This was shown in official figures released this week.

Although the total U.S. military force is now beyond the stated goal, two services—the Army and the Marine Corps—are below their objectives. The Navy and Air Force have more men on board than provided for in the projections furnished to Congress last August and January.

Army, Marines Short

As of June 30, the Army stood at 1,199,764 men—some 34,000 short of the immediate goal. The Marine Corps totaled 261,659 as against an objective of 278,184.

The Navy was pegged at 744,626, up about 17,000 from stated goals. The Air Force totaled 887,307—higher by about 34,000.

The draft calls for August and September are at as high a level, relatively, as they have been throughout the buildup year—38,600 for August and 31,200 for September. All will serve in the army.

The continued high level of the draft is still another indicator that the buildup is progressing without letup.

Pentagon officials said there are no legal restrictions which would bar the increase of U.S. armed strength beyond the figures presented to Congress publicly.

S. Vietnamese Stop Red Meet

Capture Documents Naming Top Asian Communists at Conference

Saigon (AP) — The official Vietnam press said Saturday some high-ranking Asian Communists, including a general from Red China, met 10 days ago under an extraordinary security guard in the jungles of Tay Ninh province of South Vietnam.

Without touching on what may have been their subject matter, the government news agency indicated a chance military patrol broke up the session in confusion.

Breaks Up Meeting

The Vietnam press said South Vietnamese army troops infiltrated the area, near the Cambodian frontier about 70 miles northwest of Saigon, and engaged in a firefight with elements of a full regiment of guerrillas posted in the jungles as a security force. By its account:

The Communist representatives broke up the meeting and pulled out, leaving behind a briefcase that was seized by the troops.

Captured documents named one participant, Vo Chi Cong, as counsellor of the Vietnam Peoples Revolutionary party and personal representative of President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam.

VIPs Present

On hand from Red China were Maj. Gen Huyet Deat Trung, military adviser to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, and Maj. Ngu Goang Rang, political adviser to the front.

Both names were spelled phonetically in the Vietnam press account.

They sounded similar to Vietnamese names, but it is common for both the Chinese and Vietnamese Communists to change names. Ho Chi Minh's name, for instance, is one he adopted while hiding out in China from French police years ago.

The Vietnam press story said a colonel named Mot Nang was present as a representative of the Cambodian National Defense Ministry and that a colonel identified only as Chewclani represented the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos.

Top leaders of the South Vietnamese Communist movement were reported on hand.

The party leadership of the Viet Cong has long been known to maintain its headquarters in Tay Ninh province, just across from the Cambodian frontier. The jungle canopy there is two and three layers deep.

American and Vietnamese troops and warplanes have joined in various sweeps that jarred but never fully broke the Red hold on the countryside.

4 Space Rockets Will Gather Scientific Data

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Launch crews here are preparing for a busy 11 days in mid-August, when four space rockets are to dart skyward, reaching from a few hundred to several million miles into space.

Orbit Moon

The fireworks are to start Aug. 9 when an Atlas-Agena rocket is to propel a Lunar Orbiter spacecraft toward an orbit about the moon. The craft carries high-resolution cameras to photograph nine potential astronaut landing sites, in one of which rests the Surveyor 1 vehicle that soft-landed in June.

Two days later, on Aug. 11, an Air Force Titan 3 rocket is to boost a bundle of eight military communications satellites into earth orbit.

They will join seven others launched in June to form a global network for speeding military messages around the world.

Pioneer 7 is set to ride a Delta into the skies on Aug. 17, aiming for a wide-looping orbit about the sun. Its scientific instruments are to study conditions in interplanetary space.

A key shot in the Apollo man-to-the-moon program is scheduled Aug. 20, when a Saturn 1 rocket is to hoist an unmanned Apollo ship 750 miles above the earth and drill it back through the atmosphere. The Apollo is to experience high re-entry heating over a long period and splash to a landing in the Pacific Ocean.

If the shot is successful, the first three-man Apollo crew will ride into earth orbit in November.

The next U.S. man-in-space launching, Gemini 11, is to start here Sept. 9. It will be a three-day rendezvous, docking and space walk mission by two Navy men, Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr.

Officer Evicted As Protest

Finchingfield, England (UPI)—A landlord here has evicted his tenent, an American Air Force officer, as a protest against the Vietnam War.

The landlord, Norman Lewis said he was going to give the home to the Save the Children Fund. The fund is a British organization that cares for injured and homeless Vietnamese children.

Thant Fears War May Become Major

New York (UPI) -- United Nations Secretary General Thant returned from an abortive peace mission to Moscow Saturday warning that the conflict in Vietnam is on the verge of erupting into a "major war."

Thant

Thant, who spent five days conferring with Soviet leaders, said on his arrival at Kennedy International Airport that the visit had "confirmed" his "fears" that Vietnam "will develop into a major war."

"I don't want to go into specifics," he told newsmen, "but my feeling is that the fight might spill over the borders.

The Secretary General made similar statements earlier in the day as he left Moscow.

Thant described his talks with Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin as "very useful and frank" despite his failure to enlist Soviet support for Vietnam peace talks. While the subject of Vietnam "dominated" the talks, he said, the questions of disarmament and U.N. finances also came up.

The Secretary General said he found "a general feeling in Moscow that it is up to those who are fighting to take the initiative" in arranging a truce.

He said any move by the Soviets to join the United States in pressing for peace was unlikely.

"The United States views North Vietnam as the aggressor and the Soviet Union views the United States as the aggressor," he said. "With these very different viewpoints, it is very difficult to reconcile their attitudes."

'Alabama Can't Afford Wallace Dynasty'

Martin Opposes Lurleen in November

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) -- Congressman James D. Martin was named by Alabama Republicans Saturday night to oppose Gov. George Wallace's wife, Lurleen, in the November election.

Can't Afford Lurleen

He told delegates to the GOP state convention that election of Wallace's wife, Lurleen, would establish a "dynasty that we can ill afford, that, indeed, could leave our state bankrupted."

Mrs. Wallace is the Democratic nominee to succeed her husband when his term expires next January. She won her nomination in a statewide primary last May 3.

Martin, the Republicans' top vote-getter, became the GOP nominee after convention delegates shouted down a last-minute attempt to pull him out of that race and run him instead for the U.S. Senate. Martin had said previously he would oppose any such effort if it developed on the convention floor.

Former State Party Chairman John Gremer of Birmingham was nominated for the Senate and will challenge veteran Democratic Senator John Sparkman in the Nov. 8 election.

Martin, outlining his platform in a prepared address, advocated a constitutional amendment to lower the voting age in Alabama from 21 to 18.

Lower Voting Age

"If a young man is old enough to be drafted into the armed services and fight for his country," he said, "he is old enough to vote."

Turning specifically to education, he asked:

"How about the broken down schools? How about the fact that Alabama is 49th in the nation in the amount of money spent on each student? How about the fact that national testing programs conducted by our colleges and universities reveal that Alabama students generally are not competing with students of other sections of the country?

"It's not because they aren't smart," he explained "It's simply because we have not revamped our school system."

The Republican congressman said Wallace has indicated he may run for president in 1968. "I do not believe this would be a good thing for this state," he said. "In all truth, I think it would be a tragedy—a tragedy for Alabama, to the South, and to you and your children."

Wilson Returns Home To Signs of Near-Revolt

London (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned Saturday from talks with President Johnson to find labor and management alike on the verge of revolt over his "dictatorial" wages and prices standstill.

Despite Wilson's assertion that the unprecedented freeze was "essential in the national interest" and has Johnson's complete backing, the already open bitterness could develop into a wide split between the Labor Government on one side and employers and workers on the other.

The Prime Minister already is in trouble with the trade unions for his qualified support of United States' Vietnam policy. He reaffirmed this to Johnson in Washington Friday, although he made it clear Britain would disassociate itself from any new escalation of the war.

The anti-freeze unrest will come to a head next week when the Labor Government's proposals to enforce the crackdown go before Parliament and the main labor and management organizations meet to decide their next steps.

Gold Star Bill

Washington (UPI) — Congress has passed and sent to the White House a bill that would give Gold Star lapel buttons for the next of kin of American servicemen killed in the cold war since July 1, 1958.

Brinks Checks Found

Westboro, Mass. (UPI) — Two farm laborers found three money cases Saturday containing checks taken in last week's $131,000 Brink's armored car robbery in Bedford.

Wendell Hancock and Philip Bailey came across the small suitcases near a stone wall separating the farm of Edward Uhlman from route 30.

FBI agents summoned to the scene told Uhlman the checks had been taken in the July 22 Brink's holdup.

Four bandits carrying submachine guns ambushed three Brink's guards outside the Mitre Corp. in Bedford and escaped with $131,000 in cash and an estimated $17,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John Droney said Friday police knew the identity of the smooth working holdup men but couldn't arrest them because of recent Supreme Court decisions.

FBI agents dusted the suitcases for fingerprints in an effort to provide Droney with the evidence needed to crack the case.

Five days after the Brinks robbery, three bandits shot and wounded two armored car guards outside the Jamaica Plain Veteran's Hospital in Boston and made off with $68,000 in cash and checks.

The Power Merger

When a bill was pending in the Nebraska Legislature last year to force the merger of the state's major electrical power districts, it was frequently pointed out that such a merger could be consummated without legislation.

But the public power districts involved had not made any meaningful move in that direction and there was no indication that they ever would. The Legislature justifiably proceeded to pass the merger bill.

Now two things have happened: the merger bill has been held unconstitutional and recent power failures have succeeded, finally, in awakening the Nebraska public to what a sad state of affairs their public power operation is in today.

Now too, thankfully, there is talk of a voluntary merger of the three power supply districts—Consumers, Loup River and Platte Valley.

It is fervently to be hoped that this talk is for real and not just a smoke screen behind which the districts can continue to hide.

The inadequacy of the Nebraska power system was proven conclusively in the double electrical outage of July 11. While the power officials have blamed mechanical failures—suggesting that "it could happen to anybody"—it is becoming increasingly apparent that the real cause was an overloaded system and an insufficient back-up of power in the event of equipment breakdowns.

Development of a satisfactory system has been hamstrung by having these three major districts all in the power supply business, each warring with the others for special advantage.

One of the greatest single difficulties in the Nebraska power arrangement has been that the directors of the Nebraska Public Power System (NPPS), which supplies power to most of the eastern two-thirds of the state, are chosen from only five Nebraska counties and elected by voters of only those five counties.

NPPS is a partnership of Loup District, which is limited to Platte County, and Platte District, which covers Buffalo, Dawson, Lincoln and Keith Counties.

Loup and Platte over the years have stubbornly resisted proposals that their constituency be broadened to embrace the entire area they serve and in which they exert such a profound economic influence.

This is probably the most blatant case of taxation (through public power rates) without representation that the state has ever known. That the people of Nebraska have permitted such a gross miscarriage of democracy for so many years is nothing short of incredible.

But there are indications that the Nebraska public is being aroused at last, as they can only be aroused when the electricity goes off.

The public agencies engaged in providing electricity for the state are well advised to attempt to reach a voluntary agreement for merger. Should they fail to do so they can expect the full wrath of public indignation upon them.

Sale of a Pioneer

The passing of the Hardy Furniture Co. from the hands of the family which has owned it for nearly a century is bound to touch a nostalgic nerve for all of Lincoln.

Hardy's is Lincoln's oldest retail store, founded in 1871, just four years after Nebraska became a state and Lincoln was founded as its capital.

Throughout the years, Hardy's has grown as Lincoln has grown. The Capital City can be eternally grateful for the many civic and business contributions of the Hardy family throughout this time.

It is heartening that Hardy's has been purchased by a substantial group of Nebraska furniture dealers who have demonstrated their own dedication to the growth and progress of this area. It is reassuring that the store will remain a leading outlet for home furnishings in Lincoln and Nebraska.

Through a unique cooperative buying arrangement with other furniture dealers in the region, the new owners have revealed plans to expand the store's selection of merchandise. They also suggest that Lincoln might become a major distribution center for furniture.

This bodes well for Lincoln's reputation as one of the Midwest's outstanding commercial centers and for the continued prominence of this fine furniture store.

A WORLD OF HUMOR

By ART BUCHWALD

A Myna Incident

Washington—A couple of months ago two myna birds in the Washington zoo were banished from the new million-dollar bird house for using fourletter words in front of two old ladies.

At least, it was charged they did, but five weeks later the zoo officials declared the two old ladies must have misunderstood the language and the two myna birds were restored to their perches.

Buchwald

The incident has caused a great deal of bitterness among the talking birds at the zoo. One of the myna birds told me, "If you think we talk dirty, you should hear the people who come in to look at us."

Another talking myna bird agreed. "Sometimes when a parent is yelling at his child I have to stuff my feathers in my ears."

The first bird said, "It isn't so bad for us, but we're very worried about the effect it will have on our minor myna birds."

"All the publicity stemming from the two old ladies has worked a hardship on us," a third bird said. "Before the people were satisfied if we just said, 'Hello,' or 'So's your old man.' Now they want us to give them two or three lines from 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?' "

"Did the two myna birds really say what they were purported to have said to the old ladies?"

"There's a difference of opinion on that. It was a hot day and one myna bird stepped on the other myna bird's tail and the owner of the tail did say something.

* * *

"The two old ladies complained to the zoo director who then planted a couple of stool pigeons in the cage. It was the stool pigeons who really turned the birds in."

"So the zoo director locked the birds up?"

"He did, but then he had to let them out."

"Why?"

"The zoo director made the stupid mistake of getting a confession out of the myna birds without a lawyer being present."

ROSCOE DRUMMOND'S Opinion

Wasting a Good Idea

Washington — Congressmen raised their eyebrows an extra notch the other day when they discovered that the Pentagon scrapped several thousand brochures because someone had given Secretary Robert S. McNamara a wrong middle initial.

Drummond

Careless, costly, wasteful — yes, all of these things. Nobody was much amused.

But what if the wastefulness is several million dollars, not several hundred? And what if the waste is deliberate, or egregiously heedless, not just the result of a little slip?

If most congressmen don't like waste wherever they find it, then here is an instance in which Congress ought to look straight in the mirror, point an accusing finger — and do something about it.

This is exactly the kind of waste — let alone harm to one of the best federal aids to education — which Congress is at the point of imposing on the National Teachers Corps.

Better Ways

Once the facts are clearly in the open, I believe the House of Repsesentatives will want to rescue the National Teachers Corps from death-at-birth and rescue itself from throwing away several million dollars by bringing a Teachers Corps into being and then disbanding it before it has begun to do its work.

Congress authorized the Teachers Corps, especially conceived to develop new and better ways to educate poor children, with a $9.5 million appropriation in 1965.

Under this authorization the U.S. Office of Education offered college graduates special training for teaching in school districts of great poverty and the chance to use part of their time to work toward a master's degree at a nearby university.

A double boon: more especially qualified teachers for very poor school districts and more potential teachers getting ready to help meet the national deficiency of 100,000 teachers. In competing against such a shortage of teachers, it is inevitable that the schools in poor districts would suffer most and usually end up with the least qualified.

These were some of the compelling reasons why the National Teachers Corps has been praised as well-conceived, urgently needed, and practical by almost every professional educational group in the country—national, state, and local.

But what happened after the Teacher Corps project began to get off the ground?

This spring, when the Office of Education asked Congress to provide $31 million to carry forward the Teachers Corps so that special training could be expanded and a flow of teachers could start into the underprivileged school districts at minimum pay, the requested appropriation was cut to $20 million — perhaps for valid reasons.

Then the House Appropriations Committee wiped it all out.

As a result the Teachers Corps has had to slash its training program from 4,000 to 1,600 and there is now no assurance that the government's commitment to these 1,600 — many of whom will have given up better jobs — can be honored.

Starting, stopping, halting, delaying such valuable special projects as the Teachers Corps is not economy. It is profligacy.

There is still time for Congress to repair its hasty decision. It ought to do so because the best aid to the poor is better education.

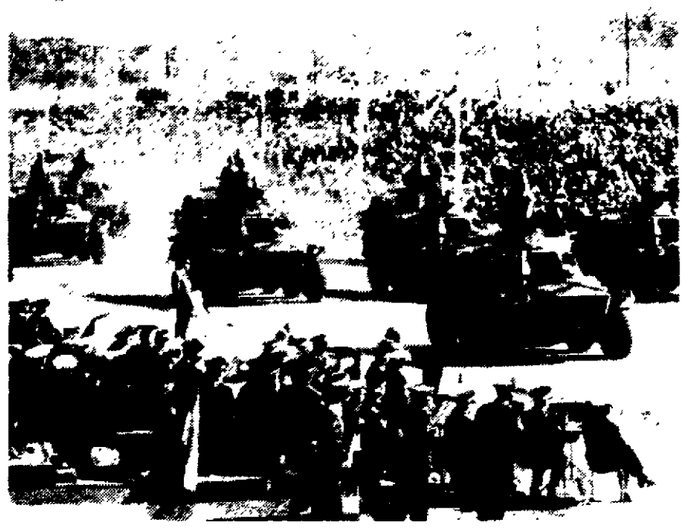
South Africa Arms Against Blacks

Leaders of black Africa dream of wiping out the white South; but South Africa mobilizes to stave off feared invasion.

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE



South African armor parades . . .

. . . as black troops train in Zanzibar.

By DENNIS ROYLE, AP

Johannesburg, South Africa — African leaders dream of the day when a unified black army marches against the white south, wiping out the governments of Rhodesia, Angola, Mozambique and finally coming to grips with the most hated of all white spots, South Africa.

At the moment, it's only a pipe-dream and likely to remain so for many years to come.

African leaders are beginning to discover the blunt fact that untrained, undisciplined armies of the black north are no match against the white south.

But the whites realize that one day, maybe in 20 years these squabbling black nations may put aside their personal differences and combine against the common enemy. And the whites are busily arming themselves with a wary eye to the future.

As a succession of army coups topples the governments of the Congo, Ghana and Nigeria and tribal strife ravages central and eastern Africa the four white-ruled states of southern Africa draw into closer union behind a wall of armor.

Geographically South Africa is well buffered from any direct black military threat. She is protected on her flanks by the Portuguese possessions of Angola and Mozambique and in central Africa by white-ruled Rhodesia, riding out a war of sanctions and threats of armed intervention.

By far the most heavily defended territory south of the Sahara, South Africa publicly displayed her military might during the republic's fifth anniversary.

More than 18,000 precision-trained white troops, backed by heavy armor, jet fighters, bombers and artillery, sounded a warning to any would-be liberation army intent on crushing the white man's domain in southern Africa.

"We will rise as one man to deter any enemy who dares intrude into this bastion of the south," said defense chief Commandant General R. C. Hiemstra.

To ensure the survival of South Africa's 3.5 million whites and deter African extremist threats to one day liberate this country's 12 million blacks is costing the republic plenty.

Budget estimates on defense alone since 1961 total over 400 million pounds ($1.12 billion).

Angola and Mozambique deploy over 80,000 troops, staving off sporadic attacks by African freedom fighters, and the tough, British-trained Rhodesian army of nearly 5,000 men patrols the border with black-ruled Zambia. And South Africa is wasting no time strengthening her defenses.

"South Africa belongs to the white man and will resist with all its might any attempt at aggression," said Prime Minister Hendrik Verwood. "To those who cannot accept South Africa as it is but seek to change it into something new or regard only a black or multiracial country as acceptable, I have nothing to say. I have no patience with them."

Most white South Africans, inextricably involved in this country's complex racial problem, see the republic's massive military build-up as the only sure safeguard for the continuance of white supremacy.

Some view the country's long-term future with uncertainty. They fear the day when the black continent finds unity of purpose and thought and the necessary resources to build a black army.

There are whites in Southern Africa who believe that someday the troubled, unsettled African states may become stabilized, that today's fiery black politicians may be replaced by shrewder, saner-thinking men.

Some fear the growing number of black military leaders, trained in Western or Communist countries and well-qualified in modern warfare.

For these whites in southern Africa, the decades ahead are filled with uncertainty and for some fear—fear that southern Africa's small white minority can do little to stem the turbulent tide of Africa's black mass.

A Bright New Life

When the Lights Go Out

By MARC DROGIN
Chicago Daily News Service

Late on an afternoon, when the wind had come up a little and the trees in our yard had begun to rustle, there was a staccato crack that suddenly resounded out by the highway.

A big tree limb broke from the trunk 30 feet up and plummeted through a veil of power lines. Forty feet away, the top of the pole shivered and the cross beam split. While we all stared out the living room window, the heavy black lines swung idly down to the ground.

The lights were all out, the air conditioner had stopped, the television set went black in mid-commercial — leaving us forever in doubt as to which soap was best — the refrigerator began to warm up, the stove wouldn't work, the washing machine ground to a halt just when it was beginning to get the best of the diapers.

At first it was strange not being able to hear the living room TV with the volume high to be audible over our munching. It was very quiet — too quiet.

So one of the kids explained how his bicycle was a rocket and he'd been to the moon that afternoon, and I delivered a lecture on what I thought I remembered from school about rocket speeds and distances to the planets. And we all got so engrossed that none of us noticed we'd actually been making conversation.

It was such a novelty that we kept it up, and our little girl, who is kind of difficult to understand anyway, discussed the dog with a mouthful of chicken and sounded clear as a bell.

Since the air conditioner was off and we had to breathe normal air after dinner, we discovered the glory of lying down on whatever was flat and closing our eyes and being at peace. Nobody fought about what show to watch, because there wasn't any show.

I hauled down the guitar and my wife got out her dulcimer and we harmonized for 15 minutes in the old refrain of how to get two instruments in tune according to two tin ears, and the kids laughed and decided what we were supposed to sing. Somebody made up a song, somebody else did a disservice to "Jingle Bells" and "Swanee River" and I got voted out of the forum for not knowing six-sevenths of the lines for "John Henry."

By the time it got dark we had the tall tallow candles lit and the two old hurricane lanterns out from the closet and glowing on the sideboard, and we had to explain why there weren't any cords or buttons, and no one would believe that Grandma used to have lights like this and a bathroom in the garden and her own horse to ride to school.

In fact, we were surprised how nice a home can look by candle and lamplight. After the kids went to bed by candlelight parade and we drank sherry in lieu of coffee that couldn't get hot. I beat my wife 11 times at checkers — and when the pieces weren't moving and we weren't talking about silly things, we could hear the trains go by and children breathing and dogs in the kitchen worrying the last of the roast.

I suppose I wasn't really sorry when the power came on, and in the morning the alarm clock rang and the refrigerator hummed and the fan was on and the television working with a weather report. I think the modern marvels of our times are a joy and a help.

Maybe why we enjoy a failure isn't because of what we lose. Maybe it's because its a wonderful time to find a few things.

Like each other.

Respect

Lincoln—On July 23 we laid our son to rest after his drowning at Fremont. We were deeply moved by the respect shown him by our local police force.

At the corner of Cotner and O St., a Negro policeman got out of his police car, removed his hat and stood at attention for the whole procession of almost 100 cars. We will never forget this.

A similar incident occurred at Cotner and Vine with a white policeman. We appreciate our police force.

We will never be able to acknowledge all the cards, calls and acts of kindness that we received following our son's death — especially to his many wonderful friends and fellow-students at Northeast do we say a heartfelt thanks.

We know that God makes no mistakes and that Tom has not died in vain.

Lincoln — A very warm thank-you to the Sunday Journal and Star for the excellent feature and color photo in FOCUS magazine preceding the Civic Singfest Committee's summer opera, Flower Drum Song.

Special appreciation to Gwen Drake who wrote the feature, and to Bob Gorham for his usual fine photography.

Dead Pup

Lincoln — To the guy who on Tuesday night, July 26, was driving down 56th S. north and hit my white Pekingese pup — and didn't even bother to stop — he's dead.

I hope you slept well!

Washington—Red Chinese press agents are finally catching on. Now they're trying to prove that Mao Tze-tung really is in the mainstream.

Next week they're going to put some ice cubes in the Yangtze River and have Mao ride across in a rowboat—standing up.

Aviation doesn't seem to be making much progress. We're having more trouble getting airplanes off the ground than the Wright brothers did.

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Property valuations, or more specifically State Tax Commissioner George Dworak's recent recommendations for revising them, stirred the collective editorial mind of Nebraska's newspapers this week.

Comments on those recommended changes, involving 85 of the state's 93 counties, ranged from sympathetic to critical . . . praise was not the foremost reaction.

The Falls City Journal held the opinion Dworak's new valuations might be challenged and defeated in the Nebraska Courts:

"Viewed from a layman's angle, we'd guess that his action not only will be challenged in the courts but will be set aside as illegal assumption of authority. The action violates all the principles of appraisal and, in addition, appears to be a form of taxation without representation—something highly repugnant to Americans."

Dworak's criteria for arriving at his valuation decisions were discussed in the editorial realm of the Fremont Tribune. "Confusing" is the word they used.

"The whole thing sounds like the same gobbledygook which has been served before. There's one difference. This time, says Dworak, the figures were fed to a computer. Sure, and we'll bet the computer took everything which was fed it, just like the property owners have been doing."

A six word statement summed up the editorial mind of the Nebraska City News-Press on the valuations and how the counties were going to take their new-found equality.

"It looks like civil war, Podner!"

From valuations to vacation, and the Fremont Tribune's remedy for vacation hangover . . . quite a common ailment about this time of year.

Two of the seven suggestions are for the returning vacationer and they advise the patient to stop talking about the vacation as soon as possible, and not to envy those who are just beginning their vacations.

The last suggestion, for those who greet the sufferer, reads:

"Don't rub it in. Speak briefly about it but don't remind the poor fellow that he's just had his break for the year. Be sympathetic. Someday, you also may have a vacation hangover."

Angry Senators

Washington — This venerable old city has been having a lively time of it lately: Myrna Loy on stage, Harry Belafonte in recital, Shakespeare every other night, and a Harem of Eight Belly Dancers revolving at a local bistro. But the best show in town this week was played in the Senate on Tuesday afternoon.

That was the afternoon the Senate erupted — for once, praise God, for once — with an expression of anger and resentment against some of our allies who put profits first and friendship last. For one glorious moment (and that is about all it will amount to), Uncle Sam stopped being

James Kilpatrick on Issues — EDITORIAL FEATURE — Kilpatrick

Aunt Patsy. By a smashing vote of 56-33, the Senate turned upon West Germany the cold and level gaze of a nation whose easy-going patience had temporarily run out. It should have happened years ago.

The drama began quietly, back in March, when Sen. Byrd of Virginia and Sen. Pastore of Rhode Island learned that the West German government had given its official approval and financial support to the formation of a consortium to build a steel mill in Communist China. The two senators made remonstrances, issued statements, telephoned the State Department. Nothing happened.

'A Grave Blow'

Nothing happened, that is, except that American troops continued to stand guard in Europe; and over in Vietnam, in defense of freedom, American men continued to die of munitions provided by the Red Chinese.

With the annual foreign aid appropriations bill coming up, Byrd prepared a one-paragraph amendment. In its final form, it declared the sense of Congress that the action of "any government" in approving and financing a steel plant in Communist China "is a grave blow to the common defense of the free world and to the safety of American troops in Vietnam."

Only a few members were on hand when Byrd began to speak. Looking at him from the gallery, one saw his father 25 years ago — the same hand in pocket, the same choppy gestures, the same stubborn sense of right and wrong.

A small electric current began to flow; and Mike Mansfield, majority leader, sensed it. He stood pensively on the first step of the Senate well, examining the carpet, considering ways to cut the embarrassment off.

Scornful Fury

Arkansas' Sen. Fulbright, chairman of Foreign Relations, sought to reason with Byrd. This was a foreign aid bill, not a foreign policy bill. He thought it a bad mistake to clutter it with irrelevant matters. The Byrd amendment was sure to offend some of America's friends. It would accomplish nothing that could not be better accomplished through quiet diplomacy.

Opinion Analysis Of Author

Abruptly, the debate caught fire. California's Kuchel, his face flushed, angrily denounced the Byrd resolution. Louisiana's Russell Long put his shoulder to the administration's wheel. But the chamber was filling. Colorado's Peter Dominick, Delaware's John Williams, South Dakota's Mundt, South Carolina's Thurmond, all joined the action in Byrd's support.

Nebraska's Hruska put a barb in Kuchel's side: Suppose West Germany were not financing a steel mill, but were financing actual arms shipments to the Viet Cong instead? What was the difference? Kuchel mumbled a poor reply.

Then Pastore came roaring into the fight. He turned on Mansfield and Fulbright the scornful fury of a citizen fed up with diplomatic subtlety. So this was only a rolling mill? Well, Mr. President, a rolling mill could make jackets for bullets and casings for shells. "The time is over to be soft!" Before a rapt chamber, he denounced the sophistries of equivocal men. He was an angry American, and he wanted all of Europe to know it.

Mansfield tried twice to prevent a vote, on a motion to table and a motion to postpone indefinitely. Each time the roll-call votes came crunching down on his head. Under the Constitution, the Senate has a duty to advise and consent, but ordinarily the Senate merely consents. On Tuesday it advised, emphatically, indignantly; and it bespoke the resentment of a heavily burdened nation.

He fastened half a dozen sky rockets to a small wooden wagon and Berlin police took him to the station house for frightening sidewalk strollers.

SUSAN JOHNSON of Baltimore, who was born the same day as Luci Johnson, the President's daughter, will be married Aug. 6, the same day as Luci. Susan's betrothed is Pfc. Curt Nagel, who is stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Nuptials to Reflect Liturgical Changes

Washington (UPI) — Luci Johnson and Patrick Nugent will be married next Saturday in a ceremony reflecting many of the changes in Catholic liturgy authorized by the recent Vatican Council.

Almost all of the service at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception will be in English rather than the the traditional Latin.

The bride and groom will receive communion under both forms of bread and wine, rather than bread alone as is customary for Catholic laity.

Instead of a single priest celebrating the nuptial mass, an archbishop and two priests will act as co-celebrants.

Lay Participation

One of the scripture passage will be read by a layman.

All of these innovations in the Catholic marriage rite are provided for in the historic liturgical reform decree enacted by the Vatican Council.

The service, beginning at noon, will last more than an hour. But the actual wedding ceremony will be only two minutes long.

It will begin with a little lecture on the meaning of marriage, delivered to the bride and groom by Father John A. Kuzinskas of Chicago, a friend of the Nugent family.

He will remind them they are "about to enter into a union which is most sacred and most serious, a union which was established by God himself."

Self-Sacrifice

He will exhort them to rest the security of their marriage on the Christian principle of self-sacrifice, each voluntarily surrendering his own individual wishes for the sake of their common bond.

He will urge them to remember that "sacrifice is usually difficult and irksome". But "love can make it easy, and perfect love can make it a joy".

In Catholic theology, marriage is a sacrament which not only can be but must be administered by laymen. Its minsters are the bride and groom themselves. The officiating priest does not "marry" them: He acts as a witness while they marry each other, and then sanctifies their union with the blessing of the church.

Downed U.S. U2 Plane Identified

Panama, C.Z. (AP) — Wreckage found by farmers in West Central Bolivia was identified positively Saturday as a U.S. air force U2 reconnaissance plane that vanished on a flight out of Louisiana Thursday.

Authorities said the wreckage and remains of the pilot, Capt. Robert D. Hickman, 32, of Alexandria, La., father of six, will be taken to Oruro in Bolivia for shipment to the United States and a detailed investigation of the cause of the crash. Oruro is 52 miles east of the crash site and about 140 miles south of La Paz, the Bolivian capital.

Primary Contests Planned

Major Battle In Kansas

Washington (UPI) — Five more states nominate candidates next week in party primaries featuring major contests for senatorial nominations in Michigan, Tennessee and Kansas.

Williams

These states will carry the 1966 primary season past the halfway point. Twenty-two of the 48 states which nominate candidates in primaries already have held theirs.

Idaho, Kansas, Michigan and Missouri hold primaries Tuesday, while Tennessee's primary is Thursday.

In Michigan, former six-term Gov. G. Mennen Williams, 55, is favored to win the Democratic senatorial nomination from 38-year-old Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit.

Whoever wins will be matched Nov. 8 against Sen. Robert P. Griffin the Republican who will be riding on Gov. George Romney's coattails. Romney appointed Griffin last spring to the vacancy created by the death of Democratic Sen. Pat McNamara.

Cavanagh

Zolton Ferency, former state Democratic chairman, is unopposed in his party's gubernatorial primary.

Tennessee has major contests in both parties for its senatorial nominations. Sen. Ross Bass is being challenged in the Democratic primary by Gov. Frank G. Clement.

The Republican primary pits Howard Baker Jr. against Kenneth Roberts, former GOP state chairman, who is backed by both the state's Republican national committee members.

The Republicans have no candidates for governor in Tennessee this year. In the Democratic primary, former Gov. Buford Ellington is running for the gubernatorial nomination against John J. Hooker of Nashville.

Kansas is providing the only major primary contest for an incumbent Republican senator this year. However, Sen. James B. Pearson is expected to win renomination against Rep. Robert F. Ellsworth, who is giving up a relatively safe House seat for the Senate gamble.

Candidates in the Democratic senatorial primary are former Rep. J. Floyd Breeding and State Sen. Harold Herd.

Gov. William Avery is expected to win renomination in the Kansas GOP primary against Del Crozier of Wichita. Robert Docking, son of the late former Gov. George Docking, is favored to win the Democratic nomination from former State Treasurer George Hart.

In Idaho, Gov. Robert E. Smylie is a candidate for a fourth four-year term which, if completed, would set a modern record for American governors. The opponent in the Republican primary in State Sen. Donald W. Samuelson. The Democrats have five candidates in their gubernatorial primary.

Sen. Len B. Jordan is unopposed in the Idaho Republican primary, and former Rep. Ralph Harding is unopposed for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Missouri does not elect a governor or senator this year. Only three of its 10 incumbent House members face primary opposition.

Sparks Fly at Labor Leader Tax Session with Sen. Bauer

BY LLOYD MacDOWELL

Sparks flew Saturday afternoon as labor leaders questioned State Sen. Hal Bauer of Lincoln on LB797, the flat-rate income tax he guided through the 1965 Legislature.

Bauer explained provisions of the bill to participants in a Labor Leaders' Institute at the Nebraska Center.

He said the tax—probably at a 3% rate—would be paid on the net income, the same figure that goes on line 11d of the No. 1040 federal income tax form.

He also noted that the average taxpayer with a $6,000 gross income would pay about the same amount under LB797 as he would pay under the property tax.

Several objections were raised from the floor to the flat rate.

Leader Objects

One labor leader said "a man who makes four times as much as I do should pay a lot more than four times as much tax as I do."

L. K. Emry, first vice-president of the Mid-West Conference of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, pulled out a copy of his 1965 federal tax return and noted that the net income listed on line 11d was somewhat over $11,000.

It would cost him considerably more under a 3% income tax, he said, than he paid in property tax.

"Of course," he added, "I don't own a $20,000 house."

The rate, Bauer explained would depend on the state's budget. On the last budget, it would have been about ¾%, but "all indications are that taxes are going to continue going up."

Advantages

The advantages of the law, he said, were that it would eliminate the state's part of the property tax, it is based on ability to pay, and the administrative cost would be as low as on any tax.

"It hits everyone to pay some tax if they make more than the amount of the deductions, whether they own property or not," he asserted.

A voice from the floor objected that "a big western farmer with a $50,000 or $60,000 income has enough exemptions so he doesn't pay any income tax."

"There's millionaires that don't pay any income tax," Emry added.

A participant offered the joking suggestion that maybe Bauer should introduce a lottery bill.

Bills Defeated

Bauer noted that a dog-rac-

Mrs. Hazel Abel Dies; State Leader

Mrs. Hazel Abel, 78, of Lincoln, whose successful business and political careers were capped with a term in the U.S. Senate, died Saturday night at a Lincoln hospital.

She had reportedly been at the hospital for several days.

Mrs. Abel was elected at a 1954 general election to fill the two months unexpired Senate term of the late Dwight Griswold, former Nebraska governor.

She was the first Nebraska woman and the third in history to be elected to the U.S. Senate.

Her other political venture was a campaign for governor in 1960, when she finished second in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

Following this defeat, she never became active in Nebraska politics.

Mother of Year

Named American Mother of 1957, Mrs. Abel also received that year the distinguished service award of the Native Sons and Daughters of Nebraska and in 1958 the Nebraska Distinguished Citizen Award from Nebraska Wesleyan.

She was chairman of the board of Abel Investment Co. after serving as secretary of the Abel Construction Co. from 1916 to 1936 and president from 1936 to 1951. She had also been president of the George Philip Abel Memorial Foundation.

In May, 1958, she was elected vice president of the American Mothers Committee.

During that month, she was named to the resolutions committee for the 10th biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican Women. She was Nebraska president at that time.

In July, 1958, she accepted chairmanship of the fund-raising campaign for the construction of the W. K. Kellogg Center at the University of Nebraska.

She was chairman of the 1958 Governor's Committee for Youth and a delegate to the White House Conference on Education.

State Chairman

Mrs. Abel was state chairman of the committee working for the Juvenile Court

Funding Estimate Missed

General Fund Off for Year

During the fiscal year which ended exactly one month ago, Nebraska state government's general fund had $2,745,754 less in receipts, transfers and credits than was anticipated by the State Board of Equalization last summer.

This minus-sign benchmark was made available from data accumulated by the state tax commissioner's office as a preliminary for establishment of the 1966 state property tax levy.

It could be the last state property tax in history. That depends upon decisions made by voters in the November general election.

It might also be a lower levy than the 11.73 mills fixed by the State Board last year. The pivotal factor is what the State Board does to tax values in the 85 counties the tax commissioner has recommended for adjustment.

The cumulative impact of those proposals would be the raising of Nebraska's tangible property tax base by 10%.

As for the history of Fiscal '66, which concluded June 30, there's this capsule picture:

—Amount needed to be raised by the State Board for the general fund to meet legislative appropriations . . . $68,845,623.

—Amount anticipated from non-property tax receipts, transfers and credits, as well

Beaver Crossing's Flowing Wells Are Flowing—Barely

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Beaver Crossing — A long, hot, dry summer is showing its effects in this community.

Beaver Crossing's famed flowing wells are not — or are feeble, at best.

In a strip about 12 miles long and up to two miles wide along the west fork of the Big Blue River, the numerous artesian wells are standard equipment on farms.

Even the local Flowing Well Grange takes its name from them.

But dry weather and the accompanying increased use of pump wells for irrigation had shut off the flow from most of them and slowed the rest. Recent rains have let the mechanized pumps shut down and the natural wells start pouring forth again, but pressure is low.

"They've quit every year since (pump) irrigation started down here, but this is the worst," noted Frank Hansen, who has relied until now upon the six free-flow fixtures on his place.

"We used to have water running out the top of a pipe 20 feet in the air," he said, "but recently it's been six feet below the surface.

"They'll come back after this rain, and we'll have water all right in the winter, but next season it'll probably be worse."

Hansen, who alternates well-installation work with his farming, has irrigated from the artesian wells, but, like others, he's going to be forced to put down a pump well this fall.

Stream is slow from one of Hansen's free-flow irrigation wells.

The artesian well phenomenon is rare in the state, he explained. An underground flow along the river valley through the Beaver Crossing community runs up against rock formations some five miles to the east.

Pressures build up that force the water to the surface when tapped.

All it takes is to drill through a layer of blue clay into the pool some 80 to 150 feet down. A pipe is installed, along with a valve to shut off the continuous flow.

The pure water has been used in most of the farm homes without worry the year around, but most have now put in shallow wells with pumps to carry them through the dry months of summer. Five artesian wells used to feed a large swimming pool in the Beaver Crossing park.

Tapping for pump irrigation has created the present situation, said Hansen, but he expects the flowing wells to continue producing during the low-usage months.

Many, however, have been lost in the last two years by sanding in while their flow was curtailed.

"If it gets down to where the wells won't flow in the winter, the upland boys are going to be completely out," said Hansen.

Shifting Near Ghetto Area Affects Sales

BY DICK HERMAN

Efforts of Omaha Negroes to break out of their residential ghetto and obtain improved housing may have a property tax impact on the entire state, it developed Saturday.

Douglas County assessing officials told the State Board of Equalization that 40% of the real estate sales they wish to exclude from a sales-assessment ratio represent transactions where the property is economically declining or elements of Omaha's population are "shifting."

Developed by the state tax commissioner's office, the Douglas County sales-assessment ratio indicates urban and suburban real estate should have a 14% cut in property tax valuations.

That development would trim the state's wealthiest and most populous county's share of the 1966 state property tax from 20.66% to 17.49%.

Other counties, including Lancaster, would then bear fractionally larger state tax burdens.

Trouble for Omaha

It would also reduce Omaha tax values and cause trouble in continuing financing of the Omaha city government and the University of Omaha. Both subdivisions are at or near statutory mill levy ceilings.

Don Paffenrath, chief appraiser under Douglas County Assessor Joe C. Stolinski, testified he checked approximately 200 of 763 sales used by the tax commissioner in arriving at the state ratio.

Of the 200, Paffenrath said 150 were objectionable for one reason or another.

"Approximately 60 of the 150 are in deteriorating or depressed areas. A lot of this is due to economic conditions and the shifting of certain segments of the population."

Asked later if he was referring to Negroes trying to move out of the Near North Side ghetto, Paffenrath said:

"I'm not going to put that in the record. You use your own judgment."

On North Side

The appraiser did say the 60 sales concern real estate "on the North Side and around the South Omaha packing houses."

To the Board, Paffenrath said he presumes checking of the remaining 563 sales used by the state would show "just about the same" amount of ratio.

Further study by both the county and the tax commissioner's office of the sales will be conducted before Stolinski and his lieutenants return before the Board Thursday morning.

Both Stolinski and Paffenrath made statements Saturday afternoon, saying Douglas County was "not objecting to the reduction." What it protests are "the methods and assessed valuations" used by the tax commisioner to arrive at his conclusion Douglas County urban values should be slimmed down.

Believed Valid

Dwain Radke, real property chief for Tax Commissioner George Dworak, said the 763 Douglas County sales were screened out of a total submission of 5,000-plus. Radke testified he believes the sampling is a valid one.

Paffenrath objected that the 763 sales represent only .58 of 1% of all taxable parcels of Douglas County real estate.

Higher county and school district levies, Paffenrath warned, would mean greater taxes on farm real estate, all personal property and motor vehicles.

Another reason cited by Paffenrath for striking transactions incorporated in the state's ratio was use of 1965 valuations which had been subsequently reduced for the 1966 tax year.

This automatically kited the ratio on the high side.

The exhibit of real estate sales in Omaha which Douglas County would like stricken contain residential situations like the following:

Assessed Value	Sales Price	Sales Assessment Ratio
$5,860	$18,000	49.22
2,940	6,500	45.23
4,005	9,000	44.50
1,780	4,000	44.50
4,860	11,200	43.39
3,040	6,600	46.06
4,760	7,500	63.47

Assessed value represents 35% of actual value, for tax purposes.

A perfect sales assessment ratio would be 35%. Property with ratios above 35% is either assessed too high or is selling under actual value.

Southeast Nebraska county officials joined Douglas authorities in hearings before the State Board Saturday.

Assessors from Gage, Jefferson and Pawnee said they had no objections to Dworak's recommendation, even though all would have higher urban or rural valuations.

More critical testimony came from Johnson, Case, Richardson and Otoe Counties.

Due to testify Monday are spokesmen for Dundy, Lincoln, Hayes, Hitchcock, Fronties, Red Willow, Furnas and Gosper Counties.

Tax Chief Unpopular

George Dworak unquestionably has become Nebraska's most controversial state tax commissioner in years and years.

And because of his recommendations to raise the taxable value of rural real estate in 77 counties and urban values in 56 counties, Dworak may also be one of the state's most unpopular current personalities.

But the tax commissioner isn't universally being condemned.

Witness a letter he received late last week from a York County resident:

"Sometimes I'm sure it must seem to you that everybody is against you on this equalization thing," Dworak was told. "Too often probably, the fellow who agrees with you sits back and says nothing.

"I am sure that there is a strong current of support for your findings and recommended adjustments in York County. (The tax commissioner has proposed a 50% increase in the taxable value of all farm land in York County.)

"Of course blanket adjustments are often erroneous, but the error caused by such adjustments should fall squarely on the shoulders of those creating the original error back at the county level."

Dworak's York County fan concluded: "I appreciate your work and I admire your fortitude."

Nebraska Tot Drowns While On Vacation

Arnolds Park, Iowa (UPI)—A two-year-old Nebraska boy drowned in Lake West Okobojii Saturday when he apparently lost his balance while wading and drifted under a dock.

Authorities said Stephen Stones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry J. Stones, Murray, Neb., was in shallow water with some 100 swimmers in the area, but apparently no one noticed the boy slip.

Big Budget Decision Is Coming

By LEO SCHERER

The reviewing is over and now come the big decisions.

Council members completed their preliminary review of the mayor's budget last week and are expected to meet sometime this week to discuss the addition of $471,979 to the requested $9,573,791 in funds supported wholly or in part by taxes.

If the Council approves the additions, the cost of city government for next fiscal year is bound to increase.

Approval of all the additions would raise the city property tax mill levy about 2.16 mills over the levy suggested by the mayor, which is .89 of a mill higher than the 25.50 mills levied for the present fiscal year.

However, there is a strong possibility the Council won't approve all the additions tentatively authorized within the past two weeks.

Hold Plea

Mayor Dean Petersen told the Council his recommended budget "is a hold-the-line budget" and he feels there shouldn't be a large mill levy increase for city government next fiscal year.

Some of the major items facing the Council are whether or not to include funds in the new budget for additional policemen, a $250,000 recreational center, the city's share of financing the addition to Bennett Martin Library, land acquisition projects and additional key city personnel like the mayor's administrative assistant.

The Council still has the public hearing on the budget facing them before a final decision can be made on the budget.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 16, in the Council chambers at City Hall.

City officials say additions or deletions can be made to the budget after the hearing and this is the time for interested citizens to appear.

"It's almost impossible to finance some of the requested expensive capital improvements with our current revenues," said the mayor.

Going! Going! But When?

"When?" is the title of this picture by George E. Jacobs. It won a $35 prize in The Sunday Journal and Star Photo Contest.

Sagging Barn Near Crete Is Still Life Award Winner

George E. Jacobs of 4025 E St. is the first winner in the 1966 Sunday Journal and Star Photo Contest.

He will receive the first of four $35 prizes to be awarded.

Jacobs

A picture by Jacobs was judged best among the entries in the scenes and still life category, black and white division.

The picture of an old sagging barn, held upright by two props, bears the title "When?"

It was taken on a farm north of Crete.

"My sister pointed it out to me, so I picked out a good angle that would show the lean of the barn and I took it," Jacobs said.

Judges cited the fine quality of the print in addition to the interest of the subject and the technique used. The picture was taken in mid-afternoon and the shadows accentuate the grooves in the boards.

Jacobs has been a frequent entrant in the photo contest in past years but this was his first winner.

Jacobs' picture was the winner in close competition with entries submitted by Mrs. Jeff Broady of 5831 Randolph, Edward H. Svoboda of 4435 South and Bruce B. Watts of 1256 Mulder Drive.

Other top entries in this category were submitted by Mitchell Tebo of Roca, Richard D. Eiser, 3837 Apple; Mrs. E. M. Black of Fullerton, L. H. Cook, 2111 K; Tom Slocum, 3900 Sheridan; Jay Azimzadeh, 3531 No. 11th; George Howard, 3909 Pace; Don Ogelvie of Friend; Don Tremain of Superior; and Vernon W. Baker, 3488 M.

Winners of the $35 prizes in the other three categories will be announced in following weeks.

Senator Addresses Press Assn.

Hruska Hits Administration's 'Ability To Manage the News'

Scottsbluff (UPI)—Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., told a Western District meeting of the Nebraska Press Assn. Saturday the "credibility gap" of the Johnson administration is the result of "an arrogant disdain for the public's right to know and a cynical and highly-developed ability to manage the news."

Unable to reach Scottsbluff because of the airline strike, Hruska spoke to the group by telephone from his Washington office.

He said that typical of the administration attitude was the remark of Asst. Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester to a group of correspondents in Vietnam Hruska quoted Sylvester as saying: "Look, if you think an American official is going to tell you the truth, then you're stupid. Did you hear that? Stupid."

Hruska said this is the same Arthur Sylvester who asserted the government's "right to lie to save itself" during the Cuban missile crisis.

When newsmen write stories displeasing to the administration, they are denounced as "irresponsible," Hruska said, "and it doesn't matter whether it is McNamara calling a story on bomb shortages in Vietnam 'baloney' or the angry denunciation of a paper that dared to print a sketch of Luci's bridesmaids' gowns three days before the White House decreed the readers were entitled to see it."

The senator also recalled "a particularly curious spectacle in Lincoln when the governor heatedly objected to a Sunday Journal and Star story from Washington about the political implications of the First Lady's Nebraska visit."

Hruska said the governor called the story "an insult and one of the worst and most irresponsible pieces of journalism I have ever seen." Hruska said the story "was borne out by similar accounts in other papers and by Mrs. Johnson's press secretary."

Friday, according to the senator, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman advised Democratic candidates for Congress to "slip, slide and duck" questions about inflation.

Hruska said Freeman thought he was talking to a closed meeting but that a Chicago Tribune reporter was present.

"This was just a matter of days after Mr Freeman had traveled throughout Nebraska and the Midwest trying to convince farmers that he and President Johnson really didn't mean it when they had blamed the farmer for inflation."

It Was a Bad Trade

Omaha (AP) — A 19-year-old filling station attendant who agreed to exchange $2 worth of gasoline for a ride home found he had made a bad bargain.

Terry Lee McDonald said he was robbed of about $120 by two young women.

He said the two drove up just as he was closing the station and said they needed gasoline but had no money. He said the y told him they would take him home if he would give them the gas.

McDonald said he gave them the gas, closed the station, climbed into the car and then was offered a drink of whisky. He said he refused at first, but relented when they called him a "sissy."

In a few minutes his head began to spin.

He said the next thing he remembers he was walking No. 16th St.

McDonald told police $40 was taken from his own billfold and $80 from a billfold which held the day's receipts from the station.

One-Way Decision Expected

New Hearings Set Monday

By LEO SCHERER

A decision on one of the three pending one-way street systems for downtown Lincoln is expected Monday by the City Council

The Council agreed to another public hearing last Monday after only two witnesses showed up at the public hearing on the topic.

Some Council members seemed surprised that not more appeared but the mayor said "You have had hearings already on these and now the public is leaving the issue up to you to decide."

Council members seem to be favoring adoption of a full one-way street system, with the exception of O and 15th Sts., as recommended by City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger.

Still in the picture is another one-way system recommended by consultants Barton-Aschmann and the one-way plan outlined in the recent Lincoln Metropolitan Area Transportation Study.

Plans Vary

There are key differences between each of the plans and the viewpoints of the state highway department, the federal government's Bureau of Public Roads and others who are expected at Monday's hearing.

Public hearings before the Council start at 1:30 p.m. and the one-way issue is expected to be one of the first items of Council business.

Even if the Council does act on a one-way system Monday, it is doubtful that any plan can be accomplished before Sept. 1.

Holsinger says it will take some time to converse to a one-way system and the Council feels it would be unwise to make the change during State Fair week or during the Nebraska football season

The Holsinger plan, which has been on the Council's pending list for months, makes every downtown street one-way from 9th through 17th, with the exception of 15th, and from K to Q, with the exception of O St

Difficulties Caused

State Engineer John Hossack has predicted difficulties if the full Holsinger plan is adopted, based upon the conversion of M and N Sts. to a one-way pair but Holsinger disagrees.

The Barton-Aschman plan, supported by the City-County Planning Commission and City Planning Director Douglas Brogden, now doesn't seem to be much in the favor of the Council

This plan, however, survived a motion to indefinitely postpone last Monday and it would add only P and N as a one-way pair to the existing system.

One-Way Street Plan One of 12 Ordinances Facing Final Action

There are 12 ordinances before the City Council for final reading and public hearing Monday.

These include one-way street plan in the central business district, five zoning changes and permission for the University of Nebraska to do construction work near 14th and Avery.

The Council also has scheduled a 11 a.m. meeting to continue its hearings on complaints filed on proposed city property tax assessments.

In other Monday business, the Council has:

Pioneer Eras Are Topics For Bratton Union Picnic

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Humboldt — The end of one pioneer era and the start of another will be the two main topics as Bratton Union alumni picnic over 50th anniversary fried chicken next weekend.

Backgrounding the annual get-together will be the still-proud building which was Nebraska's first consolidated high school. This fall it will serve elementary pupils only — replaced at the upper level by a strange-titled "RN-1."

The merger takes its name from Richardson and Nemaha counties, where five districts are joining forces. Centrally-located Stella will supply the grade 7-12 facilities initially, Shubert and Bratton Union the lower classes. Nemaha and an elementary district north of Stella (Higgins) will be closed.

"I was just out of the eighth grade when I helped haul brick for old Bratton Union just 50 years ago this summer," reminisced Jesse Avery, class of '20 and one of six RN-1 board members. "It's easy to remember the rural high school's exact opening—New Year's Day, 1917."

Certain to provoke comment at the Aug. 7 affair this year is a $610,000 bond issue to be voted upon two days later by the new district. Its approval would mean the start of construction on a new high school for RN-1 just north of Stella. A 20-acre tract has been offered by that town's Andrew McMullen.

Graduating 313 students through the years, Bratton Union would have had one of its largest classes in years (eight seniors) next fall. Twins Virginia and Vivian Avery and classmate Shirley Mathews ("Dad helped Bratton win the state Class C basketball championship in 1938") were in on a pre-picnic session at the old school.

Headed by former Murdock Supt. Stanley Huskey, the consolidated junior-senior high school will have approximately 200 students. The new district claims a valuation of about $5½ million.

Already titling its 11-man football team the Mustangs, RN-1 will take a permanent name for the school itself this fall. Just so the name doesn't clash with the recently-chosen colors — red, white and blue.

Man Injured In Accident

A 70-year-old Lincoln man was injured Saturday when his car struck a parked vehicle and then a tree.

He is Cliffton E. Bloom of 3333 So. 29th, who suffered multiple cuts and a possible broken hip. He was reported in "fairly good" condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Police said Bloom pulled into a service station at 13th and F and asked to have his tires checked.

The throttle apparently stuck, sending the car backward into a parked car, police said.

After hitting the other vehicle, Bloom's car was thrown into forward gear, crossing 13th and striking a tree.

Poverty Analyzed

Washington (UPI) — Phil Vogt, University of Omaha sociology professor and former Douglas County, Neb., welfare director, called Saturday for greater use of existing local programs in the anti-poverty program.

Vogt made the recommendation in a television-radio broadcast with Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb. Vogt is on leave of absence from the university at Hruska's request, to analyze new social and education laws and determine their application in Nebraska, the senator said.

Vogt said the Head Start program, which prepares very young children for school receives the greatest response in Nebraska and apparently makes the greatest contribution. But he said the program should be conducted in the schools.

"The schools should be provided with additional resources to meet this problem rather than to have another layer of administration . . . very often not experienced in this field or even very competent," he said.

Vogt said he has many reservations about the Job Corps program. "About taking young people out of the community and placing them in an artificial environment."

He suggested they should be demonstration projects based on research into whether it is possible to " . remotivate, to restructure the personality, the interest, and the capacity of a youngster who comes from these deprived environments of our cities."

Denney: Public Should Know About Funds' Use

Pierce—Congressional candidate Robert V. Denney of Fairbury said Saturday Americans "have a right" to ask how public funds are being used.

Denney, who opposes Democratic incumbent Clair Callan, told the Pierce County Republican fund raising dinner.

"We want to know if the large expenditures required to operate our federal government is for creating new wealth—or is it simply temporary spending?"

Later, addressing a Wayne State College audience, Denney said Congress should enact guidelines for law officers.

Denney said the rising crime rate in the nation requires that guidelines be set up, particularly since Supreme Court decisions limit what law officers can do with suspects.

On agriculture, he said it would be "silly" to eliminate government controls.

He said farmers should be guaranteed up to 100% parity in income and after that the government should devote its farm program to subsidizing foreign distribution of farm products.

Joe Burger of Pasadena, Calif., recognized for his professional and agricultural talks, will address more than 300 seed men here Monday.

Niteroi, Brazil (AP)—The Rio De Janeiro state Tax Department hasn't paid its rent in a privately owned building for more than a year and its landlord is threatening eviction proceedings.

'Nebraska Shorted On Research Aid'

But Senate Combatants Disagree on Reason Why

Nebraska's Senate race combatants agreed Saturday the state is shortchanged when the federal government awards research and development funds.

Gov. Frank Morrison, a Democrat, blamed a lack of "effective leadership" in the Senate.

Incumbent Sen. Carl Curtis blamed "the present system of a lack of a system for distributing" these funds.

Curtis is supporting a resolution requiring the National Science Foundation to recommend to Congress a formula for equitable distribution of these funds.

The first few days of hearings on the resolution showed "beyond any doubt" that discrimination exists, Curtis said.

"The hearings also established that government officials who administer these funds," he added, "are conscientiously interested in finding ways to eliminate or reduce this discrimination."

New England

Curtis said New England states produced only 10% more top-flight scientists and engineers than the West North Central States region—including Nebraska.

But the New England states received twice as much federal money for research and development, he said.

Morrison furnished in support of his view a compilation of 1964 federal research and development grants to Midwestern states.

These indicate that Nebraska is receiving far fewer funds even within its own region.

Morrison identified these federal grants in 1964:

Nebraska — $5,563,000. Missouri — $385,378,000. Colorado—$264,504,000. Minnesota —$72,474,000. Wyoming — $29,531,000. Iowa — $25,128,000. Kansas — $13,949,000. South Dakota—$12,463,000.

"This situation is in large degree due to the ineffective representation Nebraska has in the Senate," he said.

'Ineffective'

"It basically goes back to what Elmo Roper (national opinion analyst) said, that Carl Curtis is the least effective man in the U.S. Senate."

He said Nebraska's failure to attract more grants is a subject he would like to debate with Curtis in a face-to-face confrontation.

Curtis said he is "concerned" with the present trend in research grants because it will make rich schools richer while schools "with average or below average financing will become poorer."

He noted federal tax dollars being channeled into research and development are increasing.

In a separate statement, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said he also supports the Senate resolution asking the National Science Foundation to draft a research grant formula.

He said its object "is not to take from "the rich universities in order to give to the poorer ones"

Its "crux," he said, is that "universities other than those few receiving the bulk of the research dollar can do the job as well."

'Tax: Top Obstacle'

Lt. Gov. Philip C. Sorensen told a banquet audience of nearly 200 labor leaders that the property tax has been a major obstacle in attracting new industry to Nebraska.

"Our tax structure is outmoded, and has prevented new industry from locating in Nebraska," he said. "We desperately need a new tax system that is fair to all citizens."

"The tax structure is a major factor taken into consideration by industry in location of new centers," he explained.

Sorenson urged labor to aid in the drive for new industry in Nebraska.

"I believe that Nebraska labor will follow its progressive traditions," he said. "The people of the state must be shown that labor will play a part in the development of Nebraska."

Sorenson, who is the Democratic nominee for governor, spoke to the Institute of Nebraska Labor Leaders at the Nebraska Center.

Property Tax Guess Faulty

as levied in property taxes . . . $69,938,674.

—Amount actually received into or credited to the general fund since July 1, 1965, based on tax commissioner figures . . . $67,192,920.

The total is thus $2.7 million under what had been sought and $1.6 million below what theoretically was required to meet legislative appropriations.

A comforting note, however, is the certainty state agencies did not spend their entire first-year entitlement from the general fund.

The Dept. of Administrative Services has not yet distributed its summary of account and fund balances for the 12 months.

Still, it is not anticipated general fund expenditures for the year exceeded $65 million, at the most.

On June 1, the cumulative 11-month bite into the general fund was $58,679,879. Monthly general fund expenditures have been running between $4 and $6 million.

Traditionally, state agencies do not spend their general fund appropriations in equal installments over the 24 months.

Division Uneven

History has shown the division is about 45-46% the first year and the remaining 54-55% the second.

Only by this kind of split is it possible for agencies heavily dependent upon general fund financing to grant salary increases during the middle of the biennium.

Besides the property tax—which constitutes about 40% of total dollar nourishment—the general fund has dozens of revenue sources.

These are usually lumped together under about 40 headings upon the yearly resolution the State Board adopts when it sets the state's general fund property tax levy.

(For 1965-67, there are 4.3 mills of property tax in legislatively-enacted special levies. Over these, the State Board has no control.)

Last August, the State Board anticipated non-property tax and grain tax receipts to the general fund of $41,253,772.

Small Error

Actual collections, transfers and credits hit $40,795,155, or only $458,617 less than expected. The margin of erroneous "guesstimate" was barely more than 1%.

A larger miss came in the property tax—about $2.2 million less in collections than was levied for.

This is not as bad as might be thought, however, when Nebraska's tax collection year is put into the perspective. During any one given state government fiscal year, property tax collections reflect only three-fourths of the current levy and the final one-fourth of the previous year's levy.

Thus in 1965-66, state property tax collections basically represented the last quarter of the previous 9.14 mill state levy and the first three quarters of the 11.73 mill levy.

It is expected that barring any change in the way Nebraskans pay their property taxes, the general fund property tax collections one year from today will exceed what the present State Board will levy for in a matter of days.

Safety Statutes Glaring

State Action Being Forced

By DEL SNODGRASS

Congress is working on highway safety legislation which could pressure the 1967 Nebraska Legislature into enacting certain safety measures the Unicameral has consistently rejected in the past.

One bill recently approved by the House Public Works Committee authorizes a three-year $260 million program to include state grants of $50 million, $75 million and $75 million for the years 1967, 1968 and 1969.

The grants would be used for the development of state highway safety programs which would have to be approved by the U.S. Secretary of Commerce.

States not having acceptable programs by the end of 1967 would lose their highway safety grants as well as 25% of the rest of their federal aid highway money.

Fear of losing that federal cash may well pressure the Legislature into requiring periodic retesting of drivers and vehicle safety checks.

Water Diversion

The Halls of Congress and elsewhere are ringing with debate over proposals to divert water from the water-rich Pacific Northwest to water-scarce Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California.

In the future, Nebraskans may get a taste of the same struggle.

Already, there is talk of legislation which would permit the diversion of water from the Platte River Basin to the Blue River Basin.

Eventually, water resource leaders say, it is inevitable water must be moved from areas where it is plentiful to areas where it is scarce.

The grandiose Colorado River Basin project threatens to divide the West. There is no reason to believe interbasin transfers will prove any less controversial in Nebraska.

Power Choices

The 1967 Legislature probably will have to choose between two courses of action in the public power field.

One route is another attempt to merge the major power districts into a single agency—a method which may prove to be an impossible conflict with the state constitution.

The second route is to give the State Power Review Board additional authority to make it a truly regulatory body.

Angered with continual feuding within the power industry and the resulting lack of joint planning to meet future power demands, the Unicameral may choose the second course as the most expeditious.

Camp Eagle Dedication Is Next Sunday

Omaha (UPI)—Mid-America Council of the Boy Scouts of America, will have a public open house at Camp Eagle from 1 to 7 p.m. next Sunday in a dedication of the completion of the first phase in the development of the camp.

The 312-acre camp is on a bluff overlooking the Platte River three miles east and two miles north of Cedar Bluffs.

Omaha United Community Services and Boy Scout capital campaigns made the camp development possible.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

Among Republicans there is a body of suspicion Gov. Frank Morrison promulgated those ultra-stiff administrative rules against certain state employes running for political office to embarrass Nobby Tiemann, should the Wausa banker be elected governor.

The regulations affect only those code departments and satellites under the governor's direct control. While they forced State Purchasing Agent Willard Wells and Motor Vehicles Dealers Licensing Board fieldman John Wood out of their state jobs, Omahan James E. Donahue apparently is exempted.

Donahue, Democratic nominee for Douglas County assessor, is Nebraska's state athletic commissioner and a gubernatorial appointee. His office technically comes under the Department of Health, not a code agency.

Commenting upon the rules to newsmen last week, Morrison acknowledged they are "very, very strict." Then he said "other people can govern their own administrations."

All-Time Worst?

If he lives long enough, there's a Nebraskan who could very well earn the title of the state's all-time worst driver.

Motor Vehicles Director Jim Dunlevey gulped twice and reported that within five years this particular motorist TWICE has had his operator's license revoked on points for a 12-month period. Moreover, he's one point shy of a third revocation.

All of the points were piled up, Dunlevey says, on such offenses as speeding, negligent driving, stop sign running and others.

The latest addition to the driver's record reflects a new address—Lincoln. And the motorist's age? He's 21.

From the Backs of Envelopes

It's been proposed the Nebraska State Penitentiary dispense with the traditional "hole" for hard customers. Other states have done it easily—through the semantic trick of calling the punishment "therapeutic seclusion."

When they received July electric bills last week, reflecting night and day home air conditioner operation recently, many state workers thought of quick trips to their credit union.

The Department of Administrative Services' budget division is being cursed in some agencies for failing to put printed lines across the complicated budget request forms. Hours have been spent by employes filling in lines with rulers.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh carries a pocket tape recorder. He uses it like a memo pad.

A couple of state authorities are saying things which can be taken at cross purposes. While Resources Division Chief David Osterhout is busting buttons about Nebraska industrial growth, Fire Marshal Joe Divis says times are so hard some property owners are resorting to arson.

Legislative Council executive board members last week complained the interim budget committee gets involved in understandings with agencies, when the executive board is ultimately responsible, but is left in the dark.

Lt. Gov. Philip Sorensen's female rooting corps may not be large. It should be plenty visible. The gals will wear bright orange dresses.

Microfilming Cost Reported to County

By HAROLD SIMMONS

It was estimated this week that $1,500 would more than cover costs of microfilming necessary records in the County Election Commissioner's office if such a step is taken.

One microfilm salesman informed the County Commissioners the estimate included film cost and rental of a machine that can film up to 700 items a minute.

With such a fast machine, he said, it should only take two or three weeks steady work to film the 200,000 to 300,000 voter registration cards on file.

Board Chairman Ralph Harlan had suggested the records be filmed after a recent fire in an elevator shaft of the Terminal Building next to the Election Commissioner's office.

Courthouse Call

Lousy Directions

"Pretty poor tourism promotion," was one person's comment last Monday after taking a look at signs on 10th St. in front of the Courthouse pointing the way to Sheldon Art Gallery, the historical museum and the State Capitol.

The first of the three blue signs directing the way to Sheldon was easy enough to read from a vehicle. But the one for the historical museum was partially obscured by a tree limb.

And the sign pointing the way to the Capitol was pointing the wrong direction.

The top bolt holding the sign to the post apparently came out and the sign had swung upside down so it was directing northbound traffic to turn west (wrong way down a one-way K St.) to the Capitol.

Hearing Preview

Among the first-day spectators — and sometime participants — at the opening hearings of the State Board of Equalization last Tuesday were County Atty. Paul Douglas and Deputy Atty. Floyd Sterns.

They attended the first "show cause" hearings on proposed property valuation hikes to get some idea of what to expect when Lancaster County appears Aug. 5.

Douglas and Sterns will bear the brunt of presenting the county's case for opposing valuation hikes.

Hospital Insurance Cost to Triple

State Insurance Director Frank Barrett said Saturday Nebraska non-profit hospitals will probably pay three times as much for liability insurance next year because of a recent State Supreme Court decision.

Barrett said he has received a letter from the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters—rate-setters for hospital insurance — which plans the increase.

The Bureau, which has not yet established firm figures for the boost, said it would probably set per bed rates from $5 a year to $16 a year for liability insurance.

In April, the high court said the non-profit hospitals—which comprise the majority of Nebraska medical centers—are no longer exempt from liability for negligent injuries to patients.

Reversed Itself

The court reversed itself from a 54-year-old position which had excluded the hospitals from negligence suits.

"If this exemption formerly met a need," wrote Associate Justice Robert Smith, "it has had its day."

In the case, the court ruled that an infant was negligently injured in Omaha's Lutheran Medical Center. It said the child's parents could recover for injuries.

On a motion for rehearing, the high tribunal rejected the medical facility's appeal for reconsideration.

The Underwriter's Bureau quickly took note of the Nebraska law change.

"In recognition of the substantial change in the legal situation resulting from the afore mentioned court decision, we will probably be proposing a rate of $16 per bed," the Bureau said.

Little Price Change

Barrett, however, said the increased costs of liability insurance policies probably would have little effect on the price of hospitalization in Nebraska.

"It will result in an increase in insurance rates, but so small in overall costs, that the individual utilizing hospital facilities will not notice the change," Barrett said.

Mrs. Abel Active in Community

Amendment and vice president of the Lincoln Centennial.

She had been a member of boards of directors for Doane College, Hastings College and Nebraska Wesleyan University.

The Plattsmouth native had also been a former member of the First-Plymouth Congregational Church board of trustees.

She enrolled at the University of Nebraska at the age of 15, graduating in 1908 with a major in mathematics, a B.A. degree and a teacher's certificate.

For 10 years before her marriage to George P. Abel she taught in several Nebraska secondary schools.

After her marriage in 1918, Mr. and Mrs. Abel moved to Lincoln into the house in which Mrs. Abel lived until her death.

For many years Mrs. Abel had been on the board of directors and executive committees of the Community Chest and Red Cross.

Hospital Posts

She also was a director of Lincoln General Hospital, and for one year was president. She also was president of the Hospital's women's auxiliary.

Mrs. Abel has been president of the Lincoln Branch of the American Assn. of University Women, Parent-Teachers Assn. and Native Sons and Daughters of Nebraska.

She was also a key leader in the Nebraska League of Women Voters, the Lincoln YWCA, Lincoln Camp Fire Girls, Lincoln Girl Scout Council, National Board of Camp Fire Girls, and tthe Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Survivors include a son, George P. of Lincoln; four daughters, Miss Alice Abel of Lincoln, Mrs. Gene (Hazel) Tallman of Lincoln, Mrs. Harry (Helen) Ragen of San Diego, Calif., and Miss Ann Abel of Nice, France; a brother, Eugene Hempel of San Bernadino, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Sistek of Omaha; and seven grandchildren.

Services are pending at Roper and Sons' Mortuary.

Escaped Pilot In Hospital

San Diego, Calif. (AP)— Lt. (J. G.) Dieter Dengler, the first U.S. flier to escape from North Vietnam is at Balboa Naval Hospital in good condition, the Navy confirms.

Dengler, 28, of Pacifica, Calif., was admitted Wednesday night for treatment of malnutrition and foot trouble, officials said.

He was rescued July 20 after a 23-day ordeal evading his captors.

Omaha Date Accepted

Gov. Morrison said Saturday he has accepted an invitation to appear before the Omaha Chamber of Commerce in October to present his views of problems facing the state.

Morrison said, however, he regrets Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., will not appear on the same rostrum.

The governor seeks the Senate seat now held by Curtis, a contest to be decided in the Nov. 8 election.

"The Curtis refusal to appear before the Omaha Chamber of Commerce indicates that not only is he unwilling to engage in a free discussion of the issues, but he also is reluctant to present his own program to the people of Nebraska," Morrison said.

The governor, who has persistently challenged Curtis to debate, said he was "extremely disappointed . . . especially when the senator seems to be very willing to attend political rallies, cocktail parties, parades and celebrations."

ing bill and a couple of other gambling bills were offered at the last legislative session but were defeated.

"I voted against the increase in the pari-mutual tax," he said, "because I've lost too much there already."

Dr. Mario Meimaroglou, a University of Nebraska visiting professor from Greece, addressed the labor leaders on the European Common Market.

The communist block, he stated, is putting strong pressure on Greece because of its strategic location.

The country controls access to the Middle East, he noted, and is separated from other Common Market countries by communist satellites and by the sea.

Richar Nisley, state president of the AFL-CIO, summarized the tax-oriented session, saying, "We all want more government services — better police and fire protection, better streets and roads, better schools—and taxes will have to go up to pay for them.

"Property tax has reached the saturation point," he declared, "and this means we need a broadened base."

A year ago today
God called you away
Time recalls sad memories
The days seem so long;
Only God knows how much we miss You
How much we loved you too;
Though your smiles no longer with us
And your little voice is still
We can feel your presence near us
As we sit and talk of you.
And some day when God calls us
We'll meet again in Heaven.
Up there beyond the blue.

Sooners Remain Top Grid Power of Past 25 Years

By BOB HOOBING
Boston Herald
Written for The Associated Press

Streak-bolstered Oklahoma, unable to defeat Texas the past eight seasons, still tops the consistent Longhorns for major college football's 25-year championship.

Notre Dame holds down the third spot hotly pursued by Ohio State, Michigan State and Army in a quarter century survey of gridiron achievments.

The Sooners owe their supremacy for the period 1941 through 1965 to the fact they put together amazing winning streaks of 47 and 31 games. The former is an all-time record for a team against collegiate competition and ran from the third game of 1953 until late '57 when a fourth down gamble carried Notre Dame to a 7-0 triumph.

After losing to Santa Clara in the 1948 opener, the Sooners forged the 31-game chain until Kentucky pulled its famed 13-7 upset in the 1951 Sugar Bowl game.

The pair of big runs helped mightily to amass the record of 189 victories, 61 losses and eight ties which lead the field for the 25-year span. Texas has a 187-67-7 mark.

Ironically, Oklahoma's leaders are 9-16 shortenders to the Longhorns and 1-5 to Notre Dame for the period. More than one-third of the Sooners' losses have been to these two powers.

But the Oklahomans have better than 61 per cent success against all their other opposition.

Without benefit of any exceptionally long unbeaten stretches, the Longhorns have gained number two ranking on sheer steadiness.

Texas has had only two losing seasons in the past quarter century — 4-5-1 in 1954 and 1-9 in '56. It has put together nine straight winning campaigns and in 13 of the last 25 has lost two or less contests during the regular season.

Among teams it has faced more than once, Texas is a loser to only Notre Dame and Southern in California.

The Longhorns will be trying to make it nine straight over Oklahoma in the battle for the Bronze Cowboy Hat trophy in Dallas Oct. 8. And it will again be directed by former Sooner quarterback, Darrell Royal.

Notre Dame, on the ascendancy again after a slump period, put together a 39-game undefeated skein between 1946-50.

The teams rated are those which have held major college status most of the period involved and does not include recently elevated schools.

Geographically, the South has nine representatives in the top 25. The East has seven and the Midwest six.

Wilson, Borner Take Golf Lead

By HAL BROWN

Lincoln's Charlie Borner and Omaha's Dean Wilson Jr. charged in with identical four-under-par 32s on the back nine at Pioneers Park Saturday to take the first round lead at two-under-par 70 in the second annual Governor's Sweepstakes Golf Tournament.

But their lead can hardly be considered a comfortable one as action shifts to Holmes Park today for a final 27 holes in the championship flight.

All 25 golfers in the championship flight are within the 70 to 75 bracket.

A trio of golfers—Phil Breitfelder, Bill Jennings and Jerry Trimble—are only one shot back of Borner and Wilson as 11 golfers matched or bettered par on the par 36-36-72 Pioneers course under ideal weather conditions Saturday.

Both Wilson and Borner made the turn at two-over-par 38 with three bogeys and a birdie, but Wilson played without taking a bogey after he went three-over-par by bogeying the first two holes and three of the first five.

Wilson's 70 included a two-stroke penalty for hitting the wrong ball while putting on the first green.

Borner took a liking to the par-3s and the par-5s on the back side, birdieing all of them.

Wilson shot his back-side 32 by birdieing the par-5 11th, the par-4 14th, the par-43 17th and the par-18th.

Jennings had an eagle-3 on the 15th enroute to his 71 and Sam Beechner, playing in the same foursome with Borner, also eagled the 15th.

Gene Chadwell, playing in the senior flight, eagled the par-4 16th with a five-iron second shot.

All flights other than the championship will play 18 holes today at Holmes. Governor Morrison will present the trophies to flight winners.

The championship flight will begin teeing off on their first 18 at 8:48 a.m. and will begin the final nine holes of the 27-hole round at 3:06 p.m.

Other flight tee times with flight scores in parenthesis are:

Seniors Flight (73-87)—8:12-8:30

Quick-striking Ken Witt's and Gerry's passed opening round tests in the Area Four American Legion Junior baseball tourney at Sherman Field Saturday night.

Witt's exploded for all of its runs in the first two innings in a 6-4 triumph over First National Bank, while defending champion Gerry's gave Mike Delaney an early cushion and took an 8-0 decision from the Optimists.

First National and the Optimists will battle for survival in the double elimination tourney at 5:30 tonight and the winners will tangle at 8. Midget play also opens this afternoon as the entries bid for qualifying spots in next week's state tournament in Omaha.

The big blow in the four-run Witt's first inning was a bases-loaded double by Dan Jablonski, who knocked in Dana Stephenson, Mike Bohaty and John McEniry.

The Pius X-based nine continued its blitz in the second inning, chasing First National Bank starter Steve Mitchell. McEniry, who went the distance for the mound triumph, helped his cause with a two-out, two-run single which ended Mitchell's brief stint.

Reliever Steve Russell then silenced the Ken Witt's bats the rest of the way, allowing just one single through the last seven innings.

Boswell One-Hits Orioles; Cards Continue Rampage

By Associated Press

Minnesota's Dave Boswell held Baltimore to one hit—a seventh-inning single by Russ Snyder—in the Twins' 7-0 victory over the American-League-leading Orioles Saturday.

Rich Allen's two-run homer and Larry Jackson's five-hit pitching led Philadelphia to a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh but the Pirates retained first place in the National League race when Atlanta edged San Francisco 6-5 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader on Dennis Menke's bases-loaded single in the 11th inning.

Boswell struck out 11 Orioles for a league-leading total of 149 en route to his sixth straight victory and 10th in 15 decisions. The 24-year-old right-hander issued a lead-off walk in the first inning, then retired 18 men in order before Snyder singled sharply to right starting the seventh.

Earl Battey's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Harmon Killebrew paced the Twins' attack.

Allen's 24th homer, after a single by John Briggs in the fifth, helped Jackson lift his record to 10-9 as the Phillies snapped a five-game losing string.

Menke, whose ninth inning single Friday night gave Atlanta a 7-6 victory over the Giants, singled on reliever Linday McDaniel's first pitch Saturday, delivering the winning run. Mack Jones' run-scoring single and Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly pulled the Braves even 5-5 in the seventh, ruining Gaylord Perry's bid for victory No. 16.

The Cincinnati Reds whipped Houston 5-1 for their fifth victory in a row on Deron Johnson's three-run homer. Vada Pinson's two-run blast and the six-hit pitching of Sammy Ellis. The Reds have won 10 of their last 12 games while the Astros have dropped seven straight.

Gary Peters pitched a three-hitter as the Chicago White Sox blanked the New York Yankees, 6-0, handing Mel Stottlemyre his 12th loss. Three of Peters' seven victories this season have been over New York.

George Scott drilled a three-run homer and George Smith drove in three runs with a homer and double, leading the Boston Red Sox past Washington, 8-2. Jose Santiago stopped the Senators on six hits.

Larry Elliot's two-run single highlighted a three-run rally in the fifth inning that carried the New York Mets past the Chicago Cubs 6-3.

John (Blue Moon) Odom allowed only two hits in eight innings and drove in both runs in Kansas City's 2-1 victory over Detroit.

The surging St. Louis Cardinals made it six straight victories and 12 in their last 13 games, moving within six games of the National League lead by beating the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Al Jackson.

Tom Satriano drove in the winning run with a single in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving California a 2-1 victory over Cleveland.

Satriano's single was only the fifth off Indian pitcher Gary Bell and scored Jackie Hernandez, who ran for Norm Siebern who had walked. Hernandez had reached second on Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice.

The Braves completed a sweep of the doubleheader with a 15-2 victory in the night game as Gene Oliver drove in seven runs with three homers.

Groth in Youth Swim

Journal and Star's Youth Worker of Year

By HAL BROWN

Wendell Groth is a self-admitted dreamer, who happens to have seen more than his share of dreams realized.

And because most his dreams-come-true have been to the benefit of Lincoln youngsters, Groth is the winner of the third annual Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star Youth Worker of The Year Award.

Groth, a Lincoln father of two girls, thus joins Dick Matthews and Larry Emery as award winners.

Is he an idealist?

"No," he answers. "Id rather think of myself as a dreamer."

Groth's dreams have not been of the minor variety. One of his first dreams that was fulfilled was the building of Woods Pool with its olympic-sized swimming area and olympic-standard diving boards.

And the fulfillment of the dream led to the accomplishment of other dreams coming true, one of which will be staged at Woods Pool Aug. 18-21 when the National AAU Swimming and Diving Championships will unfold in Lincoln.

"It was born of frustration," Groth recalls in discussing the Woods Pool dream. "Gretchen (his daughter who is now 23) and several others in Lincoln had exceptional potential as divers and swimmers.

"But at that time there were no three-meter diving boards and few one-meter boards. And where there were boards, the water was shallow and there was no coaching available."

This was the start of the Woods Pool dream.

"If kids who have potential are to develop, two basic things are needed," Groth continues. "The first thing you need is water and by having the water with proper facilities, you can attract the second necessary item—coaches."

But when Woods Pool became a reality, Groth still was not satisfied to stop there. Now that a pool was available, Groth started dreaming about other things.

"At that time the youngsters were competing only against their friends and others in Lincoln," Groth points out. "I thought if they were to develop their skills further, they needed added competition."

And thus the Great Plains AAU meet was the next step.

"We needed regional competition to provide a purpose for the swimmers to want to improve," he explains. "The only way people are going to improve is to make higher goals that they have to reach for."

But isn't this concept merely one for the competitive swimmer? How about Wendell's interest in swimming for recreation only.

"That (competitive swimming) is a misconception some people have of me," he corrects. "I am just as interested in recreational swimming and in youngsters learning to swim as in the competitive aspects.

"But after they learn to swim, there should be something available that will make them want to work and that will give them something more for which to strive."

It was the learning aspect that first got Groth, a Lincoln insurance executive started in swimming promotion.

"When I was very young, I almost drowned and it took me several years to get over my fear of water," he recalls. "I made up my mind that my children would never have to go through that fear and I don't think any youngster should have to go through it."

Wendell and his wife, Minnie, started their

I May Be Wrong

By Curt Mosher

Since summer time is such a busy time, some of you may have missed some of the current movies, particularly the youngsters who are saved only occasionally by Walt Disney, and otherwise must lie about their age.

But never fear, you can still discuss these film epics with your friends after reading the following brief synopsis:

The Sound of Music—A documentary dealing with the high school band masters and their drive to gain a foothold on Memorial Stadium.

The Spy Who Came in From the Cold—A tear-jerker about a high school football scout who, after working pressboxless fields for the first seven games of the year is finally sent to a modern field.

Boy, Did I Get A Wrong Number—Suspense yarn about an athletic director and a football coach from a rival school who get their wires crossed.

Jolly Musical

Patch of Blue—A jolly musical about a low-budgeted athletic department which had its tattered uniforms saved by the sophomore girls home economics department.

The Agony and the Ecstasy—A simple plot, presenting a study in contrast and featuring Doug Weaver and Bob Devaney.

Cast a Giant Shadow—A sequel to A Boy Ten Feet Tall, relating the problems of a college basketball player who does cast a giant shadow, but who can't cast a basketball.

A Fine Madness—A homespun situation comedy about working parents who attempt to get their young son in Little Chiefs off to the ball games.

The Long Trip

Flower Drum Song—A travelog featuring the colorful recruiting trips to the islands by Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty.

Thunder in Dixie—A drama capturing the disappointment of Alabama fans who were shook to learn that when Bear Bryant was ailing he went to doctors, most noting they thought he could heal himself.

Battle of the Bulge—A training film considered as desired viewing for football players about to report for fall camp.

Time Out for Ginger—Another training film, this one policemen and football officials and starting a mutt named Ginger, which is designed to prepare them to get dogs off the football field in less than a quarter.

The Brutal Climax

And Now Miguel—A sad and upsetting story of a half back named Miguel who has been dating the coach's daughter without permission. The horrible climax comes when the coach, with a smirk on his face, announces two-on-one drills, turns to the back and says: "And now, Miguel, you get yours."

Trouble With Angel—A cowboy epic starring Gene Autry and telling of his many trials in attempting to head off Bo Belinsky at the pass, or more accurately, Belinsky's passes.

The Collector—A fast paced travelog with plot of an athletic director on the fund-raising trail.

The Sleeping Car Murder—A timely mystery of grounded major leaguers. The heavy is a pitcher who slays a shortstop for booting a ground ball in the ninth.

The Dirty Game—The rock 'em, sock 'em, blood curdling experiences of two elderly horseshoe pitchers.

Midwest Races

Flying Farmer Not Discouraged

The weekly "will they catch Lloyd Beckman" event at Midwest Speedway gets underway at 8:30 p.m. tonight and one of those given a good chance of ploughing under the Lincoln leader is George Odvody, the Flying Farmer.

Odvody, who has a 240-acre spread near Morse Bluff, is not discouraged about not being able to overtake Beckman

"I've just got to keep on trying," he says. "He's got a real good machine and they keep it up real good. And Lloyd's a good charger.

"But I think we've got just as good a machine, although it's not quite as fast as it used to be. Maybe we don't keep it up as good."

Odvody, who scored a victory on asphalt his first start in Omaha this year Friday night, has raced on most tracks in the area.

And while he has yet to win the point championship in Lincoln, the 38-year-old pilot has been a consistent performer.

"Last year when I finished second was my best finish," he says. "But I've always managed to finish in the top five. I've led the point standings before, but something always seemed to happen to me down the stretch."

Odvody, who drives for Roger Abbott of Lincoln, is optimistic about the future.

"We're supposed to get a new engine," he says. "If we do, look out."

Odvody said they hoped to have the new equipment in time for the national events at Knoxville, Iowa, scheduled Aug. 11-12-13.

Odvody raises just about everything on his farm and the racing sideline keeps him jumping in the summer time. But he's beginning to get a little help from his 11-year-old son.

But what he wants to raise most right now is a checkered flag at Midwest.

Northeast's Ketterer To Attend Creighton

Omaha — Jack Ketterer playmaker and clutch scorer for Lincoln Northeast High School who led the Rockets to the finals of the State Class A basketball tournament, has accepted a grant-in-aid to attend Creighton University, Bluejay athletic director and coach John J. McManus announced.

Ketterer

Ketterer, six-foot guard, was the keystone of the Northeast attack and trouble-shooter for the Rockets — the player they called on when they needed some clutch points. Northeast Coach Ed Johnson said he was the "best guard he ever coached" at the Lincoln school which is a perennial power in Nebraska athletics.

The Bluejays' McManus labeled the Lincoln all-stater a "great competitor and a heady guard who should fit in real well with our offense. He's an excellent ball-handler, can work the fast break, and can score. Jack is a leader, a real quarterback type of player."

Ketterer averaged 15 points for the Rockets his senior year, generally getting them when the going was toughest. His forte, however, was as a feeder for his taller teammates. He averaged 11 assists a game. Creighton has been loaded with frontline talent the past couple of years but has needed help at guard.

The Lincoln Northeast all-around athlete was in the upper fifth of his senior class of 471. He will enroll in the Creighton University College of Arts and Sciences, majoring either in mathematics or one of the sciences.

Wendell: You Must See Best

daughters, Gretchen and 21-year-old Gaynelle, swimming at the age of 2½.

"You should start them young before they have a chance to become afraid of water," he explains. "At any early age, they haven't had a chance to develop any fears and they will learn so much faster and better."

Wendell also was a leader in extending the Lincoln Swim Club's program into a year-round affair. At a time when the LSC program was a summer project only, Groth was made chairman of the winter program and this led to the full-year program which the Lincoln Swim Club now conducts.

When Groth first started thinking about bringing the national meet to Lincoln as far back as 1957 or 1958, he had Lincoln's young swimmers in mind.

"The least we can do is to allow our youngsters to see the best swimmers in the world,' he explains. "Youngsters are born mimics and after this meet (the National AAU Championships), you'll see youngsters at all the swimming pools doing the Schollander (Don, winner of four 1964 Olympic Gold Medals) kick.

"These youngsters will never improve unless they can see the best and you can't transport 500 or 1,000 Lincoln youngsters to California or Toledo for a national meet."

So Groth did the next best thing. He is bringing the best national swimmers to Lincoln.

Now that he has realized several major dreams, is he ready to quit dreaming?

Nope.

"I think we have a good chance of getting the Olympic tryouts here for the next Olympics in Mexico City," he says with a smile.

"And I'd also like to see Lincoln come up with a public indoor swimming facility," he continues. "I am very satisfied with what we have and I don't want to sound like a complainer, but we do need an indoor plant for the public.

"We have some fine indoor school swimming facilities and the pool at the new Lincoln East school will be excellent, but they are still tied to the school system and thus are not available to the public enough."

Groth may never stop dreaming and as long as he is dreaming, Lincoln's young swimmers are continuing to benefit.

Hi Sugar Captures Handicap

Fred Ecoffey, aboard front-running Little Jetson, surveys the field behind at the start of the fifth race Saturday.

$769.20 Returned In Double

Hi Sugar, track record holder at a mile and 70 yards, found that distance and a heavy track to his liking Saturday in capturing the $5,000 State Fair Board Executive Handicap.

Well placed in the middle of the pack in the early running, the five-year-old winner and second place Stick Shift made a simultaneous move on front-running Strong Salient with three furlongs to go.

Murdock got the Wilber Brown-trained entry on top by a length and the $3,060 first place money went to owner George E. Trumbull of Sioux City. Favored Polo Palm finished fourth behind Flying Harbour.

For the second Saturday in a row, a longshot winner in the first race helped produce a whopping daily double.

Lori Rae, ridden by Tom Osment, was a wire-to-wire winner in the opening race, returning $47.20

Ray also scored with Kin Fly ($40.20), in the fourth race and World Herald in the finale.

Murdock and Ron Alexander each had a pair of wins on a day which saw the nine board favorites fail to produce a victory.

Packers Have Big Investment In College All-Star Gold Mine

Chicago (AP)—The champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, pegged 15-point favorites, meet the last pack of big gold prospectors from the college ranks in the 33rd annual All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The Packers themselves have a heavy investment among the opposing 47 pro football-bound lads, who profited handsomely in the battle of dollars now apparently ended with the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The fast and brawny All-Star array, seeking the first collegiate victory over the NFL champs since the Packers were upended 20-17 in 1963, includes two explosive Packer rookies, Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. They reportedly cost Green Bay $575,000 and $325,000 respectively to sign.

Performing against the Packers also will be such well-heeled rookies as linebacker Frank Emmanuel of Tennessee ($350,000 from the Miami Dolphins) and halfback Mike Garrett of Southern California ($325,000 for the Kansas City Chiefs).

Despite the liberal wealth of the collegiate squad, new All-Star head coach John Sauer regards this as one of the most cooperative, hardest-working units assembled for the mid-summer classic.

Friday night's game, which finds the NFL champs holding a 21-9-2 edge in the series, will be telecast nationally by the American Broadcasting Company, starting at 8 p.m.

The contest, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will pack about 65,000 in arclighted Soldier Field

The All-Stars showed some rough spots in bowing to the Chicago Bears 34-20 in a game type scrimmage Thursday at the Bears' St. Joseph College camp

But the tune-up also indicated the All-Stars may have the best running attack in several years, hubbed around big, but fast ball-carriers.

These include Roy Shivers 200, Utah State; Jim Roland 207, Missouri; Garrett 195, Southern California's Heisman Trophy winner; Walt Garrison 205, Oklahoma State; and Anderson and Grabowski.

The quarterback assignment, probably uncertain until kickoff time, will go to one of a trio including Steve Sloan of Alabama, Bill Anderson of Tulsa and Gary Lane of Missouri.

Walter Barnes, University of Nebraska All-American tackle and now with the Washington Redskins, is the only Husker on the All-Star squad.

Shrine Bowl Players

Class C, D Schools Have Four on South

By DON FORSYTHE

Class C and D high schools contribute 4 of the 33 players on the South Shrine Bowl football team.

Bertrand's Roger Sand and Pawnee City's Bob Mawhiney are the Class C products while Polk's Dennis Sealey and Western's Dennis Bartels come from the Class D ranks.

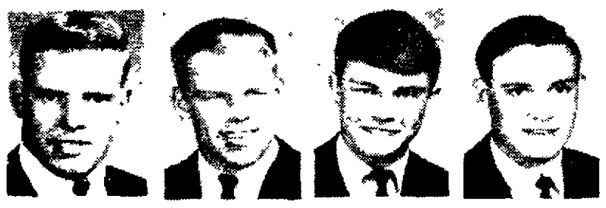
Mawhiney is one of the biggest South lineman at 6-0 and 225 pounds. The all-state choice has excellent mobility for his size, however, as he demonstrated while starting for Pawnee City's state tournament basketball entry.

Bob earned letters in football, basketball, track and golf in his high school career.

Like Sand, Sealey and Bartels, Bob is working on a farm this summer.

Sand, a 5-10, 160-pound athlete, will bid for a backfield berth with the South club.

Like Mawhiney, he played in the state Class C basketball tournament.



Sealey Mawhiney Sand Bartels

The Kearney-born youngster lettered in football, basketball and track at Bertrand and had notable success in the latter sport where he shared the Class C pole vault record for one year and scored in the broad jump and 100-yard dash in the state meet.

Sealey was a football, basketball and track letterman at Polk.

The 5-10, 194-pound competitor's hobbies are swimming and spectator sports.

He served as a class president and was salutatorian of his graduating class.

Bartels is the South's only representative from the eight-man ranks.

The 6-2, 200-pound performer was a letterman in football, basketball and track at Western. He scored in the shot put in the state track meet as a senior.

Although busy in athletics, he had time to post an enviable record in the classroom, being valedictorian of his graduting class. He's looking ahead to a career in engineering.

Dennis is Western's first representative in a Shrine Bowl football game, an honor Sand also claims for Bertrand.

Taber After Third Consecutive Title

By HAL BROWN

Matt Taber, the red-thatched Lincoln southpaw, will attempt this week to become the first Capital City golfer to win three straight titles in the Lincoln Men's City Golf Tournament.

But the three-time champion (his other title came in 1962) has a couple of tough obstacles to overcome in his quest to make Lincoln golf history.

Taber's No. 1 obstacle could be his own game, which has not been as good this summer as the Taber of old.

If that isn't enough of an obstacle, he also must conquer the best field that has entered a city tournament since the turn of the decade

"My game is so bad that I'm lucky to be leading," the defending champion moaned a couple of weeks ago after shooting a 68 to lead the first round of the York Open. Then he shot a final round 81 to prove that he wasn't just crying for effects

Taber, who normally has been bothered by a hook the past couple of years, suddenly came up with a fading ball in the state tournament 10 days ago at Hastings and finished far down the list after taking second in the Nebraska State tourney a year ago.

The Lincoln Country Club golfer can hardly afford to go into this year's city tournament with his game not in top shape.

A number of top contenders will be on hand in an effort to keep Taber from doing what the likes of Don Chapin, Phil Aitken, H. R. Wilson, Dick Spangler Jr., Bill Mowbray and Gary Gruenemeier were unable to accomplish.

Those golfers all won two straight city championships, but were unable to pull off a third in a row. Wilson made a bid for three straight twice, but was thwarted in 1931 by Morris Fisher and in 1934 by Harry Kaufman, an uncle of Charlie Borner, one of those expected to battle Taber for this year's crown.

But Borner, who finished third in the state golf tournament at Hastings, is only one of many who are ready to end Taber's domination of the city tourney.

Hillcrest Country Club will send a host of top challengers after the Lincoln Country Club golfer. With Borner leading the Hillcrest contingent, he will be joined by Nick West, Chuck Sweetman, Scott Brunzell, and Ed Smith.

West, Brunzell and Sweetman all finished high in the state tourney while Smith passed up the Nebraska meet.

A top public links player ready to challenge is Larry Romjue, who had only one bad round at Hastings (79) and still managed to finish in a tie for sixth.

The golfers will continue to use two courses with Hillcrest and Pioneers in use Tuesday and Wednesday and the action shifting to the Lincoln Country Club and Holmes for Thursday and Friday play.

The banquet will be staged at the Lincoln Country Club Friday evening.

City golfers have until 5 p.m. tonight to enter the tournament.

Anita Lambrecht shows how it's done as Judi Brecka awaits her turn.

Jacks' Popularity May Be Growing On Campus

By TOM HENDERSON

Although it might not be one of the area's most popular sports, the game of jacks has gained a considerable following among the campus set recently — "And you go from onesies, to twosies, to threesies . . ."

Henderson

"The object of the game is to see how far you can go," Judi Brecka a senior at the University of Nebraska offers.

Jacks is probably one of the most ignored games on today's sports pages (along with marbles and maybe the world flyswatting championships).

The game is played with a small rubber ball and 10 horny metallic objects known as jacks.

The player first rolls all the jacks onto the floor (preferably not carpeted), then lofts the ball into the air, letting it bounce once while he or she grabs frantically for a jack

The player must pick up all the jacks one at a time without touching another jack in the process. After the jacks have been retrieved one at a time, the player moves on to "twosies", picking up two jacks at a time

Should the ball bounce more than once or should the player touch a jack which isn't being picked up, the turn is finished and he must start over at the beginning of his next turn

After the player has successfully picked up all 10 jacks at once, he moves on to "eggs in the basket" where he goes through the whole thing again only this time picking up the jacks in one hand and placing them in the other before catching the ball.

After that comes "pigs in the pen, horses in the stable, highchairs, around the world, no bounces," and many other equally challenging tests

Where does it all end? "It doesn't," says Anita Lambrecht, Judi's roommate. "It ends when you get tired. You can have marathon jacks tournaments that last for days because people can keep inventing new things to do"

This, along with a lack of spectator interest, seems to be one of the most critical problems which keeps jacks from becoming big-time such as football and golf

The game was revived on campus this spring, and although its popularity won't rival that of the Cornhusker football team for some time, Judi reports that "in sorority houses its the big thing"

U.S. Gals Get 4th Straight Curtis Cup With 13-5 Win

Hot Springs Va (AP) — The United States Curtis Cup team weathered a gathering British storm in the afternoon singles matches Saturday and won the international women's golfing trophy for a fourth straight time by a final score of 13-5.

Continued fine play by Barbara Fay Boddie, Phyllis Tish Preuss, and Carol Sorenson Flenniken, who had a hand in nine of the points scored in the two-day matches, helped the Americans coast to victory after they entered Saturday play with a 7-2 advantage.

It became 9-3 after the United States won two of the three Saturday morning Scotch foursomes. But in the afternoon, the British women finally found the answer to the woods and waters of the Cascades' closing holes and made a fight of it

The Americans, however won three of the six singles—the victories belonging to Mrs Boddie, Miss Preuss and Mrs. Flenniken—and halved two while losing only one.

The clinching half-point came when Anne Quast Welts claimed a half in the No. 2 singles with Mrs I C. Robertson, who had rallied from three down by capturing the 15th, 16th and 18th holes

Mrs. Flenniken had the day's best medal showing in a 2-and-1 victory over Ita Burke in the final singles.

Miss Preuss was two over in a 3-and-2 victory over Elizabeth Chadwick and Mrs. Boddie six over while disposing of Susan Armitage, 3 and 2

Speedway Golf Has Two Tied

Indianapolis, Ind (AP) — National Open champion Billy Casper scored two birdies and an eagle on the last three holes for a 68 Saturday to share the third-round lead of the $92,000 Speedway Golf Festival with R. H. Sikes.

Sikes also had a four-under-par 68 after taking a bogey 6 on the final hole when he wandered into the trees and three-putted

Casper coupled 35-33 for his 68 over the 36-36-72 course. It is such a new layout that winter rules, improving the lie on the fairway, are being enforced.

The conditions were not too conducive for great shotmaking and there was a dropout of 14 players, the most for a PGA—sponsored event this year

Casper said that the greens were so hard that it was difficult to try to read them

"It is a shame that no water has been put on these greens," he said

Defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia and three other pros were disqualified in the big dropout

Crampton, who was among the top runners with a two-under-par 142; Bob Charles of New Zealand, Homero Blancas and Harold Kneece were ousted for failure to comply with the new PGA continuous putting rule.

The regulation was put into the books to help speed play and was in use in the U.S. Open, the Western Open and the National PGA Simply, it requires a player to putt out regardless of his distance from the hole

Left-hander Charles was challenging for the lead with 71-69—140 and Kneece was 146. Blancas was far off the pace with 160

"I just forgot completely about the rule," said Crampton.

Tournament supervisor Jack Tuthill put the blame strictly on the players.

"It is their responsibility to become familiar with the rules under which they play each week," he said.

Others who have dropped out of the tournament include Dudley Wysong, the recent PGA runner-up, who said he had back trouble; Joe Campbell, also with back trouble; Wysong's brother, Charley, who took a 17 on one hole Friday, Jim Ferrier, who said he had an upset stomach; and Bert Yancey, who quit after a first-nine 42

When the Green Bay Packers meet the College All-Stars at Chicago's Soldier Field Friday night, most of the Nebraska allegiance will be with the All-Stars.

Green Bay, by trading ex-Huskers Lloyd Voss and Tony Jeter to Pittsburgh the past week and by losing former Nebraska quarterback Dennis Claridge to Atlanta last winter, has left itself void of Nebraskans.

Couple this with putting Nebraska all-America Walt Barnes in the All-Star roster, and you get only one guess as to where Nebraska football fans will throw their support.

Not The Case 22 Years Ago

But such was not the case 22 years ago when the Packers had ex-Huskers Herm Rohrig and Charlie Brock in their lineup

Rohrig took a brief interruption in his stint with Uncle Sam to lead the Packers to a 19-7 win over the College All-Stars in the 1945 game.

The 22 years have dimmed Rohrig's memories of that game, but old newspaper files which do not fade, recall that it was the former Nebraska halfback who threw a touchdown pass for the first Packer score in the contest.

Not One Of Finest

"It wasn't one of the finest passes ever thrown," Rohrig observed in a telephone conversation from his home in Omaha, where he now runs the Russell Sporting Goods store

"As I recall, it was sort of a knuckleball toss that Roy McKay happened to catch," the ex-Husker, who is now a National Football League official, remembered.

The All-Star game was the only action Rohrig saw with the Packers that season because of his Army duty

Public Service Leave

"I was able to play in that game," Rohrig recalls, "because the government gave me a public service leave that allowed me to work out with the team for two weeks prior to the game"

Newspaper accounts show that Rohrig was flown to the Packers' camp by another ex-Nebraska player, Roy Petsch, who now is living in Phoenix, Ariz. Petsch also took an active part in trying to help NU coach Bob Devaney find practice facilities during the rains that halted Husker practices last December in Phoenix.

Moments after the final whistle blew in the 1925 All-Star game, Rohrig was on his way back to Fort Worth, Tex, to rejoin his Army unit

Won't See 1966 Game

Rohrig won't see Friday's game because he is scheduled to officiate an NFL exhibition game in Louisiana that night

Although serving as an NFL official for several years, Rohrig's only appearance in an All-Star game came as a player. "I'm at the wrong position to officiate in an All-Star game," he explains. "Because I am a field judge and the field judge always comes from the college officials."

What else does Rohrig remember about that 1945 game?

"Not much," he points out, "That was so long ago."

But he does remember that the pro teams in those days had only one thing in mind when they went against the collegians.

"I remember how badly everyone on the team wanted to win that game," he recalls "They certainly didn't want to get beat by a bunch of kids"

A knuckleball by Rohrig helped that cause

Delaney Registers Shutout

had split in two earlier tests with Witt's, made a comeback bid in the sixth inning.

After Dick Henderson had grounded out Tom Tidball and Don Berglund singled and Dennis Beckmann drew a walk. Consecutive singles by Dave McEwen and Tom Hayes produced four runs.

The losers had the winning run at the plate with two out in the ninth, but McEniry ended this threat by getting Berglund to ground out.

Gerry's Mike Delaney, who scattered seven hits, walked just one and struck out 13 in his route-going performance, gave himself an early margin with a run-producing single in the first inning.

Then the big right-hander had to pitch himself out of a bases-loaded, none-out situation in the bottom half of the inning.

Most of the trouble was of his own making, however, as he walked leadoff man Dennis Beranek, then failed in attempts to get the lead man on successive sacrifices by Chris Rosenstock and Jack Ketterer.

Cleanup hitter Bill Fagler grounded to second baseman Doug Loos, whose throw to the plate nipped Beranek by an eyelash. Then Delaney got Jerry Colvert to pop up and fanned Steve Kyles.

The Optimists couldn't stage another major threat. threat.

Wildness on the part of reliever Ron Williams helped the winners add to their early 4-0 lead.

Plan your day so that you will be fishing good territory, hunting good cover during times favorable to you (also to find the best sport that each has to offer). Speedboats At Beach Today

By RICK AKIN

With the word out that the national outboard championships may be held in Lincoln in 1967, the first annual Capitol Beach Pleasure Boat Championshps at Capitol Beach today have stirred considerable interest around the country

An estimated 50-60 of the nation's top boat drivers from as far north as Wisconsin, as far south as Texas and as far east as Georgia are expected to be on hand today for the event which starts at 1 p.m.

For enlightenment's sake, the competing boats and motors must be factory production models and only a minimum amount of adjustments are allowed

Competitors are allowed to use different sparkplugs on the motors for more efficient running and propellors may be raised or lowered to help speed

The idea is to have your propeller at a heighth which will raise the boat out of the water as far as possible to cut down friction, according to Lincoln racer Bob Bardsley.

Engines can't be out of production for more than eight years, Bardsley said This eliminates the possibility of racers putting in non-stock parts when outmoded motors run aground

The classes are determined by the size of motor and type of hull. The classes by motor size in cubic inches 30-40, 40-50, 50-60, 60-70, 70-80, 80-90 and 90-100 Those classes with closed exhausts are B Stock runabouts and D stock runabouts

All of the above classes must have displacement-type hulls—that is the bottoms of the hull is flat or curves downward from the level of the water. Some of the unlimited classes allow tunnel type hulls which curve upward from the water level which is a construction providing for greater speed. The unlimited classes:

—Unlimited I (single engine, displacement hull).
—Unlimited II (dual engines, displacement hull)
—Unlimited III (single engine, tunnel hull).
—Unlimited IV (dual engines, tunnel hull)

The lower class boats will run at about 55 miles an hour while the unlimited IV class will get up to about 85 on the five-lap course (about 1½ miles) which has been set up for today's races

Heats will be run in each class which will probably include up to 14 boats. If there are two few boats in a class, the competitor will have to step up to the next highest class.

A clock start will be used as it is in all championships. A cannon signifies that drivers have five minutes before the race After four minutes a flag is removed and drivers will be disqualified if they cross the starting line before the final minute is up

At Denton Lake

Big Fish Take in Hour

The two bass exploded out of the water at the same time It was the second time in five minutes that both of us had a fish on at the same time

"This one's a little bigger!" Dennis Unruh, my fishing partner exclaimed. "Look there . . . he's coming out again!"

So was mine and I followed him around the end of the boat as he made a last-ditch attempt to foul around the anchor rope He didn't make it and I swung the pound-plus bass in the boat I strung both fish, cast out again, jigged the artificial purple worm twice and had another. So did "Denny"

Spree at 3 P.M.

That's the way it went for 15 minutes and after a slack period, a couple of more fish and another 30 minutes, we had nineteen bass and one crappie The kicker was it occurred in the middle of the summer at 3 p m in the afternoon

It happened over at Denton Lake south of Emerald last Saturday. We didn't leave Lincoln until after 11 a.m. and figured the overcast would keep us from frying out in the lake.

Soon after we got there Denny took the lonesome crappie on a purple worm and had another "peck-peck" strike that didn't prove out We motored up in the woods and I took one immediately He had five strikes on five casts but couldn't connect because of the brush Also, the pound-plus bass were hitting so hard that you didn't have time to let them get the worm in their mouth.

Tricky Fishing

Up in the trees in the creek bed at this lake is about the most exacting fishing I have seen If the lure goes where you throw it you'll still only end up with a fishable cast about one out of five throws The reason is that the fish are right in the brush up there and if you cast near or around it you might as well not have cast and if you cast "in it" often times you are

After I took another bass the same size as the other

Operation Outdoors

By Chuck Roberts

we moved up into more open water where the ski area meets the fishing area. That's when the fun started.

Even though the bass did not strike very long, when they did, they were vicious We went through almost two dozen worms including purple, pink and baby-blue They liked purple best.

Hard to Hook

After the 15-minutes frenzy they settled down and were hard to hook Altogether the two of us either missed on the strike or lost after hooking, more than a dozen and a half bass But any way you look at it, 19 black bass and a crappie in the middle of the summer, during the heat of the day, in four hours and minutes from home is pretty darn good fishing

In the last two trips to this lake I have seen one other boat with fishermen and two groups on the shore While admittedly this lake is not as easy to fish from shore as some it's difficult to figure out why more aren't using the facilities

Skiing is allowed on this lake but the fishing area provided for just the fishermen and off-limits to the skiers is more area than several fishermen could handle in one day. The lake is a year younger than the South Lake at Hickman and consequently the fish are not as large. But the pound-plus bass and one-half pound crappie are nice fish. The water is clear and clean There is a lot of deep water and not much moss.

Any way you look at it whether you catch fish here or not, Denton Lake is a beautiful fishing site with deep water, standing trees, shallow flats and old hedge rows In the years to come it's our opinion this lake will produce some of the largest bass to be caught out of the area reservoirs

As a passing thought: when you find one crappie you find more Night fishing a lantern, deep water and minnows is a good combination

Power Merger, Transmission Line Proposed

Major changes in the Nebraska public power picture were proposed

General managers of Loup River and Platte Valley Power Districts reacted favorably to a proposal by Consumers Public Power District for voluntary merger negotiations

This could accomplish a merger proposed in a law later declared unconstitutional Loup and Platte earlier fought that law, which Consumers supported

In another power development, the Power Review Board urged immediate construction of a multi-million dollar federal power transmission line from Fort Thompson S D to Grand Island.

The board said this is "the only means" to correct Nebraska's internal power instability

Fugate, Parker To Get Review

Statements made in 1958 by convicted murderess Carol Ann Fugate will be reviewed

The action was ordered by the Nebraska Supreme Court, which noted that Miss Fugate was 14 when taken into custody in 1958 near Lusk Wyo

The review will attempt to determine if her statements were voluntary admissions. Miss Fugate who seeks a new trial or release from prison, contends they were made under duress

23 New Officers Are Recommend

The mayor and Police Chief Joe Carroll recommended hiring 23 additional police officers

They told the City Council, now considering the new city budget, this would cost about $172,700

Carroll said City annexation policies and rising crime were behind the request.

New Power Substation Sought

Custer Public Power Dist. has filed for permission to build a new substation connection into a Nebraska Public Power System transmission line near Callaway.

NPPS is expected to oppose Custer's application with the State Power Review Board.

The proposed 115-34.5-kilovolt stepdown substation would serve Custer and Consumers Public Power Dist. customers in Oconto and U.S. Reclamation Bureau customers in Arnold and Callaway.

A Custer spokesman at the district headquarters in Broken Bow estimated cost of the substation and two miles of line at $240,000.

He said work could begin April 1 and end June 15, 1967.

Custer said the substation is needed because the NPPS line near Broken Bow is overloaded.

Custer said it anticipated this situation in 1964 and requested NPPS for an additional delivery point near Callaway.

Visiting Nurse Service Available At Low Cost, If Doctor Orders It

By BESS JENKINS

"I'm going home the first of August and I hope you can help me. I need you," wrote the retired school teacher hospitalized by a stroke.

This request will be answered Monday when a visiting nurse shows up at the teacher's doorstep.

It could be Linda Goffena or Janet Engeman. Both are public health nurses.

They staff Lincoln's still-new visiting nurse service known officially as Tabitha Home Health Care. Director Martha Maseman is also a nurse.

This service is available to all people as long as the doctor has ordered it.

Ability to pay has no bearing if a person asks for help. The service is free if the patient cannot meet a sliding scale fee.

"Most want to pay something, it makes them feel better even if it's only 50 cents a visit," said Miss Goffena, newly-graduated, from Loretta Heights College in Denver.

Medicare Aid

Medicare, since July 1, has made it easier for some patients to have this service without paying for it. About 75% of Tabitha Home Health Care's current patients are under the federal health program.

The retired teacher going home from the hospital still does not have use of her left hand after her left side was paralyzed by a stroke.

So Home Health Care nurses think she will need more physical therapy. Lincoln physical therapists, through a contract, provide this home service upon doctor's orders.

The services given by the visiting nurses are limited only by her professional skills and the doctor's order.

On the current list to visit regularly are cancer patients, stroke victims in wheelchairs, diabetics, coronary cases, fracture victims and adult mentally retarded.

"We think they like our company as much as our services," said Mrs. Engeman, a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

If a person doesn't have a doctor but needs help, Miss Goffena or Mrs. Engeman will visit the patient for an evaluation. This usually results in calling a doctor.

"We know there are many who need the help of a visiting nurse, so we were discouraged the first few months," Mrs. Maseman said.

Five visits were made in March, then 47 in April, 62 in May and a high of 88 in June. July visits numbered 79. But all this involves less than 20 patients per month.

The disappointment disappeared recently when established visiting nurse association officers commended Mrs. Maseman for the "good start; It takes time for this work to become known and grow in any community."

She also is told that this service must turn to organizations and individuals for financial help.

Medicare administration's interest in seeing that communities get financial aid for home health care services is helping the Lincoln organization get on its feet.

The Home Health Care at Tabitha received $15,000 to start its work and will get $18,000 for 1966-67 in public health or "seed" money.

As service calls increase, the nursing staff can be enlarged easily, Mrs. Maseman said.

Product Pricing Post to Frasier

A former Lincoln business executive has been named supervisor of product pricing in the Tulsa, Okla., office of Tuloma Gas Products Co.

Frasier

He is W. E. Fraiser formerly marketing department representative for the American Oil Co. here. Frasier was also manager of American's product pricing in Chicago for four years. He will share responsibility for planning and administering refined and chemical product pricing.

Curtis: Freeman Shouldn't Impose Price Controls

Beemer (UPI)—Sen Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said Saturday that Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman does not have authority to impose price controls on farm products and should not attempt to do so.

Curtis spoke during a campaign swing through northeast Nebraska.

He said that "Mr. Freeman has attempted to explain his actions in getting the Defense Dept. to cut down on servings of pork to our armed forces by saying prices had reached 120% of parity.

"The Congress has not authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to put a ceiling on farm prices."

Noting that farmers take all sorts of risks in producing their products, Curtis said, "when farmers do have a chance to obtain a good price, the Secretary of Agriculture should be the last person to interfere with it."

'No Real (Power) Progress'

Rurals Want 'Buy' Contract

By DEL SNODGRASS

A spokesman for Nebraska's rural power systems said he fears there has been "no real progress" in negotiations with a major wholesaler over the signing of a power purchase contract with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

The rurals, through the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative (G&T), are anxious to sign the contract for the purchase of electricity above the "equity" level.

Dil Blatchford of Columbus, G&T manager, said the rurals have been in a position for several months to sign a contract for the purchase of bureau power through 1971.

But he said the Loup River Public Power District's general manager, John Preston, is attempting to stop the signing of the contract.

As a result of Preston's actions, Blatchford said, the bureau instructed Loup and Platte to attempt to resolve their differences before the contract is signed.

'Unwilling'

Blatchford said G&T representatives held their first negotiating meeting with Loup Wednesday but "no real progress was made."

One of the points of dispute, he said, is Loup's unwillingness to recognize the assignment of the individual rural district's power purchase contracts to G&T.

Loup and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation Dist. of North Platte comprise the Nebraska Public Power System from which the rurals are obligated by contract to purchase most of their electricity.

But under the "equity" agreement, when the rurals' purchases exceed a specified amount, they may purchase the additional power from outside sources such as the bureau.

That equity level was reached in August, 1965, but so far the rurals have been unable to obtain the additional bureau power.

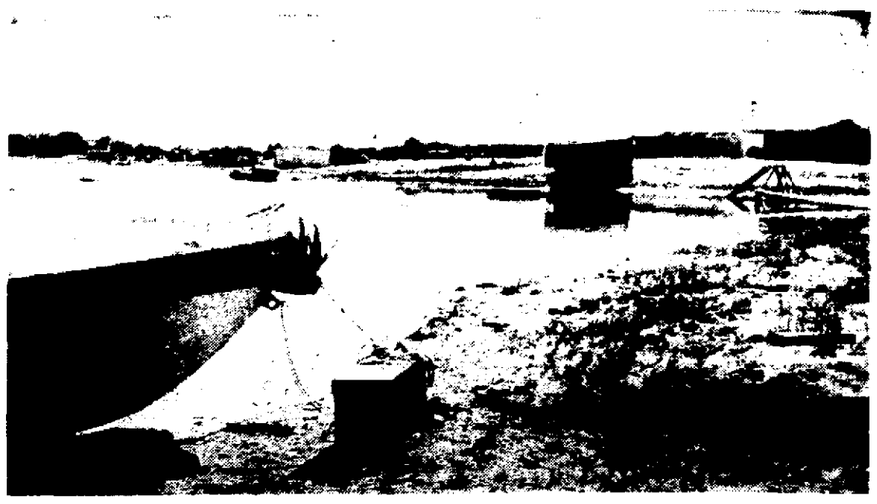
This is what they hope to accomplish in a contract with the bureau.

Less Accidents, Tickets, Miles

Safety Patrolmen drove fewer miles, issued fewer tickets, and had fewer accidents to report in June, 1966 than June, 1965.

Patrolmen issued 900 fewer warning tickets—or 4,457— and 22 less violation tickets—or 9,140, Col. Dan J. Casey, head of the Safety Patrol, reported.

Thirteen fewer accidents were reported. The number of drunken driving cases jumped by 32 from June, 1965, but was down 12 from May, 1966. Minors apprehended in possession of liquor showed an increase of 39.



Moored boats, cabins await weekend rush.

Cedar Creek Area Booms For Big City Commuters

Cedar Creek — Like lemmings, Nebraskans are rushing to water—any water.

Unlike these rodents, whose mass migrations end in suicide drownings, the migrations of humans wind up in lakeside houses with water recreation at the back door.

The aquatic magnet has drawn enough of these recreation seekers from their urban environs to form a new town that — on weekends, anyhow — is a good six times the size the tiny farming village of Cedar Creek northeast of Louisville.

Cedar Creek Lakes, as the development is called, lies just a railroad-track bounce outside of this village. The new population of weekenders lends support to the old general store, cafe and one church, and these, in turn, shun any resentment and cater to the newcomers.

Bob Schneider, president of Cedar Creek Lakes, Inc., has created the residential area, fulfilling "a dream I've had since I was 10."

Wooded Area

Schneider's great-grandfather settled in the community, and his grandfather started buying up the one-time woodlot land as the timber was cut for fuel.

About 600 acres of the sandy bottom land along the Platte River was passed down to Bob's generation. He figured the time was right for making it the recreation area he's dreamed about.

Sand and gravel dredging had cut out several small, sapphire-hued lakes. Dikes and control measures upstream have all but eliminated the possibility of floods.

Now Schneider has his own gravel equipment at work enlarging the water area and construction machines carving new access roads.

Permanent Dwelling

Started on a limited basis about seven years ago, the development has been going full steam the last two or three.

About 150 lots — each with a 100-foot lake frontage — have been sold; houses have been built on about 120. Only modern, permanent houses are allowed, and there will be no commercial enterprises.

Two of the larger lakes are open to boats with a maximum of 80 horsepower, while the other two are restricted to fishing, swimming and boats under five horsepower.

Probably the largest single development of its kind in the state, Cedar Creek Lakes has a conservatively-estimated population of 500 on weekends.

"About 90% are weekenders, and we're just getting started with the people who are going to live here," said the developer. "Four of the new families coming in now intend to make their homes here."

Ex-Lincolnite Heads Office In Minneapolis

A former Lincoln resident, E. Keith Thompson, has been named general manager of New York Life Insurance Co.'s Nicollet general office in Minneapolis, Minn.

Thompson was formerly general manager of the Lincoln general office.

Thompson, who joined the company as a field underwriter in 1955, has been assistant manager of the Topeka, Kan., general office and a management assistant in the company's home office in New York.

He is a member of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters and the General agents and Managers Assn.

Grant L. Mathey, 30, of Sioux City, Ia., has been named general manager of the Imperial Outdoor Advertising, which maintains offices in Sioux City and Lincoln.

Mathey has been in charge of Imperial's Sioux City office.

Airport Authority Running Big Business

BY LEO SCHERER

Don't let anyone tell you that the Lincoln Airport Authority isn't a major unit of local government.

Around City Hall

The Authority now has the far-reaching tasks of operating and developing the deactivated Lincoln Air Force Base and improving the total local aviation picture.

Authority members realize their increased duties and have soon to put into operation a reorganizational plan which will mean more employes.

Controversial Lots

There has been a lot of discussion among city officials and the mayor in the past week about the proposed purchase of two lots at 17th and Q.

The mayor says the city eventually is going to acquire the lots but he doesn't yet know whether it will be by condemnation or direct purchase.

The Council has passed a resolution approving the purchase but the method and other matters remains with the mayor.

The city wants the lots because city officials feel they are in the path of the Northeast Diagonal, for which 15 years of discussion has not established an exact route.

Violators' Urge

You can't say that Police Chief Joe Carroll doesn't personally obey city ordinances.

The chief recently was seen getting out of his chief's car near 10 and O.

He immediately put a coin in the meter and what do you think he had in his right hand? The ignition keys.

It is also interesting to note in the adopted Council ordinance that it requires the ignition to be locked and the key removed but nothing is said about the key having to be removed from the automobile.

Some City Hall observers feel that strong enforcement of the key violation ordinance is going to make many angry at city government and the Council members soon will be getting telephone calls and other messages of protest.

Wall Street Was Hit 'Hard Enough And Often Enough'—and Stocks Fell

Compiled From News Wires

New York — "If you hit someone hard enough and often enough, he's bound to fall." That's not a Wall Street adage but that's what happened last week on Wall Street.

After months of indecision and uncertainty, prices finally penetrated the mid-May lows on Monday and worked lower all week despite several unsuccessful comeback tries.

Penetration of the lows traditionally is a sell signal in the market. Traders, consequently, braced for heavy selling, but the volume never materialized.

Trading maintained the lackluster pace of recent weeks and the decline resulted more from buying disinterest than from any rush to sell.

At fault chiefly, commentators said, were the many economic, military and other fundamental problems which have been chipping away at the market's resistance for the past three months.

Tight money has weighed most heavily on the market during recent declines and last week was no exception.

To illustrate the problem, New York City had to accept a rate of 4.6518% to sell $112 million bonds, the most it has paid in 34 years. Rising prices in the second quarter plus the slowdown in the economy's rate of growth have added to the severity of the situation.

An already jittery market was easily scared by developments in Vietnam and as news flowed in from this front, analysts were kept busy interpreting its impact.

A flood of excellent second quarter earnings reports came out last week but the Big 3 automakers weren't among them.

Oil companies, railroads and manufacturers reported record or near record profits.

This indicated that the economy, spurred by demands of the Vietnam War, was rolling along at a good pace.

While some economic indicators have signified that the business boom has lost some zip, the profits picture was good as the business upturn approached its 66th straight month in August.

Among companies reporting high April-May-June profits were Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Jersey Standard, Shell Oil, New York Central Railroad, Gulf Oil and Pennsylvania Railroad.

But the picture was not so good for the automakers which have seen domestic sales declining from the record 1965 level.

Here is how the Big 3 fared in the second quarter:

	1966	1965
General Motors
Net income	$ 546,035,382	$ 638,460,046
A share	1.90	2.23
Sales	5,501,643,726	5,657,497,124
Ford
Net income	$ 216,900,000	$ 237,300,000
A share	1.97	2.14
Sales	3,311,900,000	3,085,600,000
Chrysler
Net income	$ 54,400,000	$ 61,800,000
A share	1.20	1.47
Sales	1,430,000,000	1,370,000,000

Despite the downturn, 1966 looms as the second best auto sales year in history.

"While the market for automobiles in the second quarter showed some decline from last year's peak level, the outlook remains favorable," said Chairman Frederic C. Donner and President James M. Roche of General Motors.

"The economy continues strong, consumer income is rising and unemployment is at a very low level. Used car prices are firm. The long-term growth factors—the increase in population and multiple-car families, the trend to suburban living and the growth in the replacement market—continue to be favorable."

Another giant of industry, U.S. Steel Corp., also found its earnings lower in the second quarter than a year earlier. Big Steel earned $77,428,706, or $1.43 a share, on sales of $1,194,294,062, compared with $81,042,663, or $1.38 a share, on sales of $1,229,130,354 in the 1965 secnnd quarter.

Livestock Market Is Mostly Stable

Omaha (UPI) — A strong thread of stability ran through the market transactions on all classes of livestock on the Omaha market last week.

A reduction in supplies did an effective job of counter-balancing a rather apathetic dressed meat trade.

Steer top was 26.60, the highest in the past two months. Heifer top was 25.35.

There were some day-to-day ups and downs in the butcher trade but overall there was a market that was mostly steady, instances 25 lower. Butcher top last week was 26.50. Sows sold steady to 75 higher, week's high 24.00.

Good Action

There was good action throughout the week on slaughter lambs with prices steady to 50 higher. Week's top in spring lambs was 24.25.

Average price of slaughter steers figured 25.10, compared with 24.86 the previous week and 25.64 a year ago. Heifer price average was 23.96 against 23.87 the previous week and 24.66 a year ago.

Rain in some range areas resulted in a reduction in cow supplies and the market on these strengthened.

Cows were 75-1.25 higher. Canners and cutters closed at 16.00-17.25, few to 17.75; beef cows 17.00-18.50, a few 19.00. Bologna bulls were steady to 25 higher at 20.00 to 22.00, odd head to 22.75.

Number 2,600

Replacement cattle and calves numbered 2,600. Trade was slow and prices held about steady. Feeder steers weighing 916-1,000 sold from 23.50 to 24.25. Choice 621 to 729 pounders brought 25.85 to 26.75; good and choice 692-707's realized 24.25-25.00.

Business Notes

Winders, Geist Firm Purchases Two Buildings

Two steel and aluminum buildings and a 140 by 550 feet tract at 1821 Yolande, near Cornhusker Highway, have been purchased from J. V. Gunn Enterprises Inc. by Winders & Geist Inc. for $60,000.

Alex Geist said Winders & Geist will move from 2219 No. Cotner to the larger Yolande building about Oct. 1. The other Yolande building is occupied by Lancaster County Weed Co.

Geist said the firm will sell a 5.5-acre piece of the Sias Industrial Tract which was purchased three years ago.

Geist and Rex Winders, retired employes of the Lincoln Telepone and Telegraph Co., formed their company several years ago to sell Flexiduct, a product they invented. The tapered rubber floor duct is manufactured for them at St. Mary's, Ohio, by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Geist said Winders & Geist have become national distributors of an underground sprinkling system manufactured by Goodyear in Los Angeles.

Story of a Fateful Week

VC Attack on Ship Resulted in U.S. Commitment to War

Washington (AP)—Two years ago next Tuesday there began a week of crisis that marked a turning point in the Vietnam war.

The setting: The Gulf of Tonkin, a long, rather shallow arm of the South China Sea curving like a sea horse along the north and south Vietnamese coasts.

In that fateful week (actually eight days):

—North Vietnam challenged the United States openly for the first time, attacking U.S. warships.

—The United States retaliated with its first attack on a Communist country since Korea — a carefully defined bombarding of North Vietnamese patrol boats and their shore bases.

—Congress gave formal, almost unanimous support to President Johnson (who authorized the retaliation). The support was in the form of a resolution Johnson has cited ever since as a legal basis for U.S. operations in the war.

Before the week ended President Johnson was telling the world the story of military confrontation and response in simple fashion:

"On Aug. 2 the United States destroyer Maddox was attacked on the high seas in the Gulf of Tonkin by hostile vessels of the government of North Vietnam.

"On Aug. 4, that attack was repeated in those same waters against two United States destroyers. The attacks were unprovoked. The attacks have been answered."

Forerunner

That answer was the U.S. strike at North Vietnamese bases — a strike which was a forerunner to the expanded air war on the Communist country right up to the present.

But some questions remained unanswered.

Why would North Vietnam with its puny navy try to tangle with the biggest sea power in the world? Were the attacks systematically planned? Were they really unprovoked?

Public information about the Gulf of Tonkin naval battle is based primarily on details provided at the time by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

"I can't explain them," the defense chief said. "They were unprovoked."

Details Asked

But a few weeks ago, Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., wasn't sure he had the full story. He asked for release of full details on Tonkin, including a chronological account of the torpedo boat-destroyer encounter.

Simpson was provided a secret transcript of Senate testimony by John T. McNaughton, assistant secretary of defense.

After studying the transcript, however, Simpson said he found so many deletions that many questions remained unanswered.

The Wyoming Republican said he was inclined to accept the administration's version of Tonkin although "I will certainly acknowledge that utter candor is not a hallmark of this administration."

Administration Account

Here is the administration account of the Gulf incident as supplied by McNamara that week in press conferences and in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees:

The incidents began, McNamara said, when the USS Maddox, on a routine patrol in international waters of the Gulf, was stalked for two hours Aug. 2, 1964, by three torpedo boats.

Suddenly the PT boats closed at high speed. at 3:08 p.m. the Maddox was attacked; two of the PT boats closed to 5,000 yards and fired one torpedo each. The Maddox veered; the torpedoes passed 100 to 200 yards away.

As the Maddox fired at the enemy craft with her five-inch guns, the carrier Ticonderoga in the same general area directed four Crusader jets, already airborne, to the scene.

At 3:21 p.m., the Maddox scored a direct hit on one boat, which managed to drop a third torpedo that apparently failed to run. The jets damaged the other two boats with rockets and cannon fire.

Battle Subsided

Eight minutes later the battle subsided and the aircraft escorted the Maddox southward on its patrol course.

By now the word has flashed to Washington and in a crisis atmosphere in the hours that followed, President Johnson decided to make certain U.S. determination was known.

The patrols were to continue on a redoubled basis (two destroyers), provided with air power and assigned not only to attack but destroy any force which attacked them in international waters, he announced.

On Aug. 4 the Maddox, accompanied now by the USS Joy about 65 miles off North Vietnam, reported they were under "continuous" torpedo attacks—and firing back.

No Casualties

By midnight, "even though many torpedoes had been fired at them," the destroyers suffered no hits or casualties, McNamara said.

With the commander-in-chief calling the shots, the United States launched a precise strike the next day against North Vietnamese PT and gunboats, their bases and support facilities.

On Aug. 10, eight days after the initial attack, the Senate and House overwhelmingly passed a joint resolution supporting the President and authorizing him to "take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

Justified or not, the Tonkin incident accelerated American participation in Vietnam.

Before August Gen. William C. Westmoreland had been given approval to receive several thousand more men to augment the 23,000 American "advisers" in the country.

Buildup Starts

Now, in the aftermath of Tonkin, additional forces were ordered in as a precaution for whatever action Communist China or Russia might take in support of the Hanoi regime. Interceptors and fighter-bomber aircraft flew into Vietnam, other aircraft into Thailand. An antisubmarine force was deployed in the South China Sea, and Army and Marine forces were alerted for movement.

On land the Communists were stepping up infiltration and terrorism, and McNamara soon was to be haunted by a 1963 prediction that "the major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965."

In 1965 the war really only began.

In February, after heavy Viet Cong attacks on the Bien Hoa air base, an American officer's billet in Saigon and at U.S. installations at Pleiku and Qui Nhon, the United States launched the first of the sustained air attacks on Communist staging areas in North Vietnam.

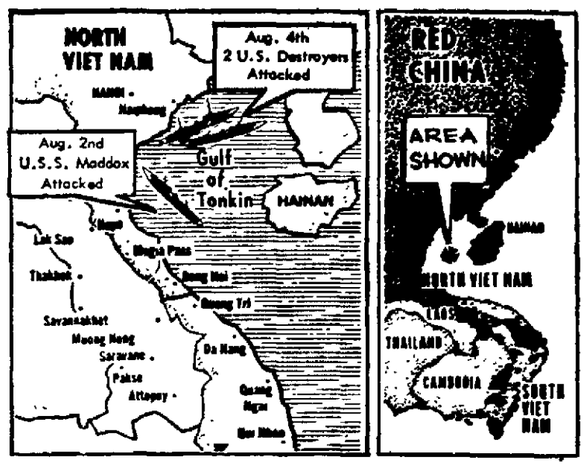
Periodically citing the Aug. 10, 1964, resolution, the President, with the advice of the defense chief, and top military officials, continued the manpower buildup.

From 23,000 at the end of 1964, the total American commitment rose to 51,000 by the summer of 1965, doubled to 100,000 by September, 1965, and doubled yet again to 200,000 by early 1966

The latest count 267,000, with 285,000 the planned level before fall and a reported 400,000 total by the end of 1966.

North Vietnam, meanwhile, continues to send men into South Vietnam at a rate of 4,500 a month, McNamara said The infiltration rate is expected to continue.

"If it does," McNamara said a few weeks ago, "I would expect we would increase our forces."



A new pacification technique is being used around Phu Loi, South Vietnam. It's a village festival, where the Vietnamese are entertained, fed and given presents. Women and children (at left) leave a festival carrying food and propaganda leaflets. Meanwhile, (at right) the men are rounded up to discover Vietnamese army deserters, draft dodgers and the Viet Cong. Here the district chief offers a cigaret to one of the men detained in Hoa Nhut village.

Road Devils In Burma

Chicago Daily News Special

Rangoon, Burma—Burmese strongman Gen. Ne Win, engaged in a unrelenting campaign to wipe out pernicious foreign influences, is having trouble with "Road Devils."

"Road Devils" is Burmese for "Mods" and Rockers" who wear beatle haircuts, western sports shirts, skin-tight trousers and pointed Italian style shoes instead of the traditional sarong, a wrap-around skirt worn by both sexes in Burma.

Children of State High School No. 1 in Rangoon recently held a mass meeting to condemn the "Road Devils" for "un-Burmese" rudeness, vulgarity and vandalism.

Delightful, Fantastic, Unbelievable: The Imagination of Kids

By KAYE OLLENBURG

It isn't the product that makes lemonade stands delightful. It's the youngsters who man the stands; the youngsters who have conned their parents out of equipment to operate these private enterprises.

What matter if the ice is melted, and the original product watered down when it's served with smiles and giggles by the six-year-old?

Mothers remember the lemonade stands they had as children. Fathers, too, reminisce about the past. Because of happy memories of their childhood, adults patronize the youthful merchant.

Usually, other kids in the neighborhood get into the act as do sisters, brothers and cousins.

98-Cent Profit

One Lincoln mother said, "I spent about five dollars getting the children's stand in operation. We had to buy lemons, sugar, ice and poster board. But it was the children who enjoyed the large profit of 98 cents."

Six-year-old Linda Taylor, owner and operator of a small, but thriving one-day lemonade stand told about her venture. "It was lots of fun. Maybe I'll do it again. Many girls and boys came to my stand." How much did she profit? "About a dollar."

Just playing to be playing takes up much of youngsters' time. Using that most wonderful of all gifts, the imagination, and having no damper put on it, children spend endless hours creating their own happiness.

Batman is on the scene and it's not unusual to find 10 to 12 towels-tied-around-the-neck Batmen and Robins on daring adventures.

Sheets, weeds and flowers, bits of lace and other what-not help little girls put on a play wedding. And the wedding is more fun and giggle-filled should a young man or two be roped into the picture and end up getting kissed.

When Rover's Cornered

Wagons covered with sheets and filled with boxes become part of the Old West game. And if Rover's unfortunate enough to be around, he is apt to be harnessed to the wagon tongue and told to "giddy-up."

Custer's last stand will never be the worst of all cavalry versus Indian battles. The whoops and hollers and "bang-bang" of young Indians and riflemen add up to some of the most fantastic of all battles ever fought.

What is worse than a fire siren? Why, a child's version of the siren sound, of course! And you better move out of the way fast when the junior fire department speeds down the sidewalk with sawed-off

Grassland, Trees, Birds, Wildlife Are Dream Come True for Dr. Bennett

By JAN SACK

Grassland, trees, ponds, birds and other wildlife make up a large part of the private and public world of Dr. Esther Bennett.

She is city naturalist in charge of the 40-acre Chet Ager Bird and Wildlife Nature Study Center at Pioneers Park.

For Dr. Bennett this is a dream come true. She always has been interested in biology, but never thought an opportunity like this would arise. Her good fortune materialized on Apr. 23, 1966.

Lincoln is lucky to have a nature center as there are few in the nation, Dr. Bennett said. Another is in Omaha but it has not been developed.

The idea of a nature center was originated by the late Chet Ager who was superintendent of Lincoln city parks from 1931-40. His son Jim held this position and is now acting director of parks and recreation. The senior Mr. Ager dreamed of a bird sanctuary where waterfowl could remain and breed, Dr. Bennett indicated. The area was dedicated in May, 1963.

Lodge, Trails Available

At the present time, a lodge and several trails are available to nature lovers. Another building has been erected but not completed. In the lodge are collections of insects, nests of various birds, turtles and various other exhibits. Dr. Bennett said the insect collection given by Dr. Lewis Schafer, head of the department of biology at Nebraska Wesleyan University, is the star attraction for the 8 and 9-year-olds.

Even more fun is to walk over the trails which total 2½ miles through the woods and around the ponds. The hike around the ponds usually takes a nhour and Dr. Bennett said to add 45 minutes if walking through the woods.

Along the trails are signs pointing out some of the grasses, flowers and trees. A hike with Dr. Bennett is educational—she walks with binoculars in hand and her ears atuned to the surroundings.

It's a matter of course for her to say, "That's a brown thrasher; over there's a goldfinch; do you hear the grackles?" Identification of wildlife is like second nature to her.

Frogs a Symphony

Especially exciting is the spotting of a muskrat making a beeline for his hole in the bank of the pond or the croaking of frogs which at times sounds like a symphony.

Dr. Bennett is proud of the number of families who visit the lodge and make the trip along the trails. "I like to see this kind of interest," she said.

During the five months she's been at the nature center, Dr. Bennett has given 550 youngsters tours.

Luckily this summer she has help with maintenance of the area from Ric Ladine of Sidney, a graduate of Wesleyan.

Aid from the public also is asked in this respect. Dr. Bennett said, "We ask the people not to collect things so the area remains as it is and also we prefer they park on the road."

She also encourages the public to talk with her about possible displays which they have and could be used as additions to the nature center.

Besides her duties as city naturalist, Dr. Bennett is president of the Audubon Naturalist Club of Lincoln and vice president of Sigma Delta Epsilon, women's scientific club.

Dr. Bennett received her bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, her master's from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

American Nurses Stand Up Well To War's Tough Test in Vietnam

By JOHN NANCE, AP

Saigon—The traditional image of the American nurse—a cool professional approach tempered with the warmth that helps mend men's souls—is standing up well to the tough test of the war in Vietnam.

Hundreds of women nurses are assigned to field hospitals, operating rooms and wards from Can Tho in the Mekong Delta to Pleiku in the highlands to Da Nang in the north.

They are at Vung Tau, Cu Chi, Saigon, An Khe, Qui Nhon and a half dozen other places including the U.S. Navy hospital ship Repose off the coast in the South China Sea.

They mostly treat American troops but it is not unusual for them to nurse a Vietnamese child or even a wounded Viet Cong guerrilla who has been captured.

U.S. Army Nurses

The majority of women nurses are in the U.S. Army—about 272 now with more on the way. All are officers.

One of the largest staffs of nurses is at the 500-bed 93rd evacuation hospital at Long Binh, about 15 miles from Saigon.

There are 62 nurses, 51 of them women.

The wards are filled with American wounded brought by helicopter directly from the fields of battle and with men suffering from malaria and other tropical diseases.

When the nurses arrived last October there was no hospital at Long Binh. There was nothing but two cement pads for the foundation of the first building.

"We really started from scratch," says Col. Anne Bauer of Monterey, Ind., chief nurse there. "But it was exciting and challenging. Few of the girls had ever been in on the building of a full-scale hospital from the ground up."

'In the Boondocks'

The nurses lived in tents, "in the boondocks," laughed one bright-eyed lieutenant. "When it was hot we were covered with dust; when it rained we were covered with mud."

The hospital opened in early December and the nurses moved into more permanent quarters.

Now in their quonset hut barracks, a typical nurse has to herself a space about 10x10 feet. It will hold a bed, a foot locker, and if she's lucky and can get it, a chair.

The work is hard and luxuries are rare. But there is little serious complaining.

As one officer put it: "If these women were looking for luxuries, they wouldn't be here." The normal tour is one year.

Col. Marion Tierney, of Brooklyn, N.Y., chief nurse of the U.S. Army in Vietnam, points out that "most of these girls are volunteers. And when their tour is up, many ask to stay longer."

Cradle to Grave Study Approved

Durham, N.C. (UPI)—The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development has approved a five-year, $1 million grant to Duke Medical Center for a research-training program on behavioral processes and their effects on aging from the cradle to the grave.

"The grant is one of the largest ever given by the institute and reflects the concept that aging begins at birth, or even before, and must be studied in this light," a spokesman for the university said.

New Home Is Millard

Waverly — The Methodist Church was the setting for the 4 p.m. Saturday wedding of Miss Ann Marie Peery and Barry Sanford Johnston.

Miss Peery is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Peery. Mr. Johnston's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Finigan of Lincoln. The Rev. Frank H. Kirtley of York performed the ceremony.

Cotton ottoman fashioned the bride's frock in pink ice. A Florentine neckline contoured the sleeveless bodice drawn tautly to a natural waistline where a petite tailleur bow accented the front and decollete back. The skirt was a defined fold-over silhouette.

She wore a veil coif appliqued with silk organza petals in pink ice—and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses.

Miss Barbara Peery was maid of honor. Best man was Dennis Swanstrom of Millard.

After a trip to Estes Park, Colo., the Johnstons will live in Millard.

Orient Influences Lingerie Cases

The quiet elegance of the Orient has worked its magical charm into beautifully designed brocade lingerie set cases.

Sprigs of dainty flower bud designs scattered over a solid satin color background, create the mood of an oriental landscape. A three piece set includes large and small lingerie cases and a two-pocket hosiery case.

For The Bath

Wet nylons and lingerie draped over the shower rod soon may be a thing of the past. Merchandising Week, a trade publication, says a built-in clothes dryer for the bath is on the market. It fits flush to the wall, out of the way. It also serves as room heater, towel warmer and humidifier.

New York Designers Eye Year of the Coat

By HELEN HAGGIE

This may be the year of the horse, according to the Chinese calendar, but for American women, it may well be the year of the coat.

Designers of fall and winter fashions so emphasized the coat, that even dress styles emphasize its lines

And coats this year are as lovely as they have been for many years—there is as great contrast in lines as there is in fabric

Start with the way-out tent coat, voluminous to the extreme. One designer brags that the circumference of the hem of one of his tents is five yards. Contrasted with the huge tents are the slim coats—the tuxedo types.

And in between are coats with inverted pleats at the back, which swing gracefully as the wearer moves, and the belted military coat so important this year.

Fabrics range from wool knit, completely lined and cuffed with fox, to gabardine and worsted And the colors are of the complete rainbow spectrum.

Belted coats are of endless variety—string tied in front, semi-belted in back, three-quarter belted and completely belted. And the belts range up and down the torso—from the high Empire to the low hip lines. Some even have natural waistline belts!

Lengths of coats also are varied Three-quarter, nine-tenth and full-length coats are shown Many, many coats for evening are ankle or floor-length One designer opined that Milady who will be well dressed for an elegant formal party will not wear the little mink stole, but a full-length evening coat.

Certainly, this fall and winter will see women turned out in fabulous coats—if New York designers have their way.

Fashion News

United Press International

Prints once the tradition of spring and summer fashions now go through all seasons. New York designers use splashy print, Op prints, subtle prints, and big and little prints in winter silks for daytime as well as evening

Look for a revival of the so-called classics of the fabric world — silk failles, satins, gabardines, coverts, fleece and melton for fall

Lavish fabrics now get the wear-resistance treatment. Poplins, velvets, corduroys and wools are treated to resist rain, stain and wear.

Now fashion leaders are taking a cue from the jewelers Pins, bejeweled, are appliqued right on the dress. Harvey Berin, New York is one exponent of the beaded applique

Look for a lot of the military touches in feminine clothes Junior Sophisticates, of New York, for instance, makes the "doughboy" pants suit, born in World War I, but now strictly contemporary in red shetland wool with long jacket with epaulette shoulders.

• • •

There's a lot of the muffled throat look coming on. Designers wrap scarf-like collars of suits and coats high around the neck And the turtle neck wool dress is a universal favorite

Perky Topping

The next time you serve Spanish Rice or macaroni and cheese, perk it up by topping with zesty deviled ham.

Hanover, N.J. (UPI) — Practical application of the concept of community mental health treatment centers has been difficult in many areas.

After receiving her doctorate she was at Southern Illinois for several years before becoming associate editor of Wheat Abstracts at the University of Nebraska.

As for future plans at the nature center, Dr. Bennett said she would like to spend more time on the birds and do a banding program which would establish the species and check on the return of the birds.

At the present time she is cooperating as a member of the Nebraska Ornithological Union in collecting data on nesting birds which is being sent to Cornell.

DEAR DIARY

A piece of luggage can cause all sorts of complications for Americans traveling in Europe. And certainly, a suitcase caused complications for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jacobson, who were honeymooning in Europe, after their wedding in London.

But the Jacobsons arrived safely in Lincoln—luggage and all. Mr. Jacobson tells it this way:

"We had been in Paris and Strasbourg and left on a very early plane. As we got off the airport bus, I grabbed our suitcases and we enplaned for London.

In English customs, I took what I thought was my suitcase—then discovered it had a different name tag. And the Air France baggage official told me that all the luggage from the plane was in customs.

My suitcase, after many messages, was—according to the air officials—in Saudi Arabia, and I could see it on a camel off on a desert trek. Actually, it was finally located in Calcutta, India!

Naturally, this delayed all our plans, for the suitcase contained some important papers. Finally, I was told the luggage would be in on a 10:35 a.m. plane and we were to leave for the States at 12:35 p.m.

At Orly I met the plane on which the suitcase was supposed to be—but no suitcase. After persuasion, the airline officials called Frankfort and the explanation came that the suitcase was on another flight, one which would arrive at Building 3 a half hour before our flight which enplaned from Building 1.

I left my wife at Building 1 and ran to Building 3, got a customs official to get my suitcase and then at the end of the taxi line, got a taxi back to Building 1.

We finally got to the gate—and had to be taken to the plane by a bus. After a delightful trip—lunch and all, we arrived in Lisbon. Guess what?

"No luggage!"

However, the luggage did arrive later.

Nephew wanted to know what a date is, and after pondering, Auntie replied:

"It is when you go somewhere special with someone special."

"But you aren't anyone special," nephew commented.

Teacher Corps: Doing Something About the Slums

By PAULA BRANOV, UPI

Washington — "I don't particularly get pleasure out of being in the slums, but I want to do something about those slums."

That, said a young Macon, Ga., woman, is why she wants to join the National Teacher Corps, (NTC) one of the newest in President Johnson's bill of educational and economic rights for the nation's under-privileged.

Some 10,000 other teachers and recent college graduates have volunteered for the corps — a project aimed at helping salvage five million American school children who come from families with incomes below $3,000 a year.

By federal standards, $3,000 is the "poverty line." Children from families with incomes below that are called "deprived" or "disadvantaged" — financially, educationally and culturally.

These 5 million youngsters have been shown to be at least two years behind their more affluent classmates in readiness to learn.

The Teacher Corps will provide special services and programs which local schools have neither the time nor the manpower to take on.

Job to Convince

They must convince the children of poverty — and their parents — that school is good for them.

Specifically, their programs will consist of organizing pre-school classes, as well as giving individual help to gifted, handicapped or disturbed youngsters.

They will operate language laboratories for non-English speaking students and hold after-school programs in reading, creative arts, spelling and other basics.

The U.S. Office of Education estimates that there are "poverty pockets" in 95% of the nation's school districts.

It said the corpsmen are needed because of an annual national shortage of 100,000 teachers. The shortage is most acute in slums and the poorer rural school systems.

Cannot Compete

These schools cannot compete with wealthier urban and suburban schools for experienced teachers attracted by higher salaries and better working conditions, the Office of Education said.

The slum schools, which need good teachers most, end up with new and inexperienced teachers lacking the know-how and the qualifications to cope with their culturally handicapped students.

The corps was established by Congress at Johnson's request in the Higher Education Act of 1965. It received a $9 million appropriation in fiscal year 1966.

Its financial position in fiscal 1967 is shaky, however. The House eliminated NTC funds when it passed the annual appropriation for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

There is hope, however, that the Senate will vote the money and that the House, upon reconsideration, will go along.

There are 1,300 corpsmen in training now at 42 colleges and universities. They are scheduled to go into the schools in September — if the corps gets its money.

Team Leaders

There will be two kinds of teachers working as teams. The government is recruiting experienced teachers with masters degrees or their equivalent in teaching experience to work as "team leaders."

The rest of the corps — three fourths of it — will be made up of "interns," recent college graduates not necessarily trained for teaching but interested in tackling the special educational problems of the disadvantaged.

Of the 1,300 future corpsmen now in training, 300 are experienced teachers.

They have taken leaves of absence from their regular teaching jobs. The government has arranged that the teachers will retain their tenure and retirement and other benefits.

Some will serve for one year, others for two. The government will pay for relocating their families if the are assigned to schools far from their homes.

2 Years of Service

The interns will serve for two years. Most will be sent to the "areas which need them most." They will not get the same consideration as experienced teachers in requests for duty close to home.

All corpsmen will be protected by federal injury, disability and death benefit programs.

Salaries are another matter.

They will be paid by the local school district where they work. The local district will be reimbursed by the federal government which also will pay costs of training the corpsmen. The government will provide "readjustment allowances" for the teachers at the end of their service to make up the money they might lose.

Corpsmen will "supplement" not "supplant" regular teaching staffs, according to the Office of Education.

They will go to the school districts which request them —155 already have — and will be under the direction of local authorities.

Eye Make-up Erases Tired, Busy-day Look

Are you often hesitant about keeping an evening date because your eyes look overly tired after a busy day? There is really no need to be concerned since you can easily regain a fresh, wide-eyed appearance by following a few important make-up tips

Before applying your make-up, dampen a pad of cotton with cool water and a few drops of skin freshener, place over your closed eyelids and relax for a few minutes. Begin your make-up by covering any dark circles under your eyes with an erase stick in a shade to match your skin tones.

To conceal the red-rimmed look, and to make your eyes appear wide-awake, line your upper eyelids along the roots of the eyelashes with black or brown cake or fluid eye liner, and define the bottom lashes with eyebrow pencil. The whites of your eyes will appear sparkling white if a misty blue or green eye shadow is used

To offset the drooped look that is so often a mark of tired eyes, arch your eyebrow slightly higher than normally, and give your eyes a lovely lift by applying artificial eyelashes

Cool First

Let enameled surfaces of the stove cool before washing; otherwise, there's danger of crack.

Splashproof Bowl Designed

A new heatproof glass mixing bowl is a straight-sided vessel designed for use with portable electric mixers The design is said to be splashproof

The clear bowl comes in 1½ and 3-quart sizes, the first for mixing or preparing one-layer cake mixes, dessert toppings and whipped cream and the second, for standard cake mixes, yeast breads and quick breads.

Safe Bleaching

Although fashion features in summer may be confined to bathing suits and play suits, one style note is appropriate for all seasons: it's smart and chic to keep clothes clean. With all the attention being paid to modern fabrics and gay pastels and prints, there's also comfort in the reassurance that it's fashionable to bleach Liquid chlorine bleach, an essential for getting things clean, is safe to use on most man-made fibers and bleach-fast colors.

PRAGMATIC PROTESTANTS

Ten Denominations Test New Pattern for U.S. Churches

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In the brand new city of Columbia, Md 10 Protestant denominations are undertaking a pilot project in ecumenical cooperation that may have far-reaching effects on future patterns of church life in America

Columbia is an ideal laboratory for testing innovations It is a projected community of 125,000 persons which is being built from scratch on a 15,000-acre rural tract halfway between Baltimore and Washington

Developer James W. Rouse a Presbyterian elder invited religious leaders to join in the planning of Columbia while it was still in the drawing-board stage

And he encouraged them to think creatively—to abandon the well-worn ruts of the past and seek better ways of serving the religious needs of a community.

The challenge has been accepted When the first families move into Columbia next year, they'll find a unique church set-up. It is largely the brainchild of Dr. Stanley J Hallett, planning executive of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago

Edifice Complex

Dr Hallett believes that religion in America has suffered greatly from an "edifice complex." Whenever a new suburb opens up, each denomination rushes to erect its own church

Since land and buildings are costly, the new congregations begin life saddled with debt, and are so preoccupied with building fund drives that they have little time or energy left for service to the community around them.

The solution which will be tried in Columbia is for several different congregations to share the same physical facilities.

Each congregation will continue to worship according to its denomination tradition — Episcopalians at Episcopal services, Lutherans at Lutheran services Baptists at Baptist services, etc

They may worship at different hours in the same sanctuary, or maintain separate chapels within the same building complex. Either way, they'll be able to share many common facilities, at a tremendous saving.

"By investing less in bricks and mortar Columbia's churches will be able to spend more on mission and ministry," says the Rev Clarence Sinclair a Presbyterian pastor, formerly of Seattle, Wash, who is coordinating the Columbia experiment as a field representative of the National Council of Churches

Pragmatic Principle

The same pragmatic principle of sharing what can be shared without loss of denominational identity also will be applied to the ministry Columbia's Protestant clergymen will work together as a team

Worship services for each congregation will be conducted by a minister of its own denomination.

But many other pastoral functions, such as counseling, youth work and administration, will be handled cooperatively, with each minister doing what he's best qualified to do

Perhaps the most significant feature of the Columbia experiment is a bold new approach to religious education.

Land is being allocated for construction of a religious education facility adjacent to every elementary school in the community

These interdenominational religious schools conducted by salaried professional teachers will offer classes five days a week

School officials have agreed to work out schedules so that children may be released, at their parent's request, for an hour a day of religious training Thus a child will get five times as much religious education as he would receive in the conventional hour-a-week Sunday school.

Pro Teachers

He will be taught by professionals rather than well-meaning amateurs And there'll be no problem about church-state separation, because the religious schools will be on privately-owned property and will be financed out of church funds

Their cost incidentally, will not be as great as many Protestant leaders initially feared. In fact, Dr. Hallett has calculated that such a religous education program, using classrooms five hours a day five days a week, will actually be less expensive to maintain than the usual Sunday school, whose classrooms are in use only one hour a week

The interest charges on the huge capital investment required to build a Sunday school plant more than offset the salaries of professional teachers in a fully-used weekday religious school.

The Rev. Richard Upsher Smith, an Episcopal clergyman who was one of the pioneers of the "shared time" concept, has joined the Columbia staff to supervise the religious education program

The 10 denominations which already have signed up for Columbia's cooperative ministry are the American Baptists, Quakers, Evangelical United Brethren, Episcopalians, Lutheran Church in America, Missouri Synod Lutherans, Methodists, United Church of Christ, United Presbyterians and Church of the Brethren

It is hoped that Roman Catholics and Jews will also come into the ecumenical experiment, at least to the extent of sharing physical facilities

Jewish bodies have thus far been leery of the idea, but the Catholic archbishop of Baltimore, Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, thinks enough of it to have assigned a member of his personal staff to work with the Protestant planners

Attendance Promoter

In their never-ending battle to higher attendance and keeping of financial pledges ministers often make imaginative use of their church bulletins

In the Trinity Methodist Church bulletin, one recent article was headlined: "More On Sex And Free Love."

The article discussed church members who were behind on their pledges, which "makes financial problems more difficult"

Attached was an editor's note "Pardon the tricky title, friends, but sometimes the end justified the means"

Promoting attendance, the St. Paul Methodist Church published a diagram showing a circle within a square in its bulletin.

Readers were asked to blow on the circle. If it turns yellow, they were to see their physician; brown, their dentist: purple, their phychiatrist; red, their banker; and black, their lawyer "and make a will."

But "if it remains the same color, you are in good health, and there is no reason on earth why you should not be in church this coming Sunday morning."

Episcopal Bishops 'Punished' By Cutback of Parish Donations

Washington — (UPI) — Recent events in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington provide a good example of the tensions which are developing over social action

The suffragan (assistant) bishop of the diocese the Rt Rev. Paul Moore Jr, has been conspicuously identified with the civil rights movement

He is national chairman of the Delta Ministry, which aids Negroes in Mississippi. He also has given strong public support to the "Free D. C. Movement" which seeks home rule for the District of Columbia.

Bishop Moore outraged some conservative Episcopalians a few weeks ago by endorsing a boycott of Washington merchants who refused to support home rule.

A group of business executives spearheaded an effort to have Bishop Moore "disciplined." This maneuver was quietly but firmly squelched by his superior, Bishop William F Creighton, a soft-spoken man of great determination whose commitment to the cause of social justice is less publicized but no less fervent than that of Bishop Moore.

The next move came from the vestry of All Souls' Memorial Church, a wealthy parish in the Connecticut Ave. section which has a substantial number of retired military officers on its rolls.

The vestry of All Souls' voted to cut its annual contribution to the diocese in half—from $11,880 to $6,000

In a resolution sent to all other parishes of the diocese, the All Souls' vestrymen said:

"Our laymen, believing in separation of church and state, do not want our contributions to the Lord's work used to propagandize controversial state subjects such as so-called 'fair employment' sale or rental of private property, and termination of our nuclear defense experiments while other nations proceed with such development.

"Nor do we approve use of church funds or personnel to foster public demonstrations or marches that tend to breed disrespect for law and order and the property rights of others."

Last week, Bishop Creighton and Bishop Moore replied in a letter to all clergymen of the diocese.

"We do not need to belabor the reason for the church's involvement in social matters," they said. "Ever since Moses demanded better labor conditions for the Israelites in Egypt, the people of God have known that justice is a concern of the Almighty, and therefore our concern."

So far, no other parish has followed All Souls' lead. On the contrary, the vestries of four major parishes have passed resolutions condemning the attempt to change diocesan policies by financial pressure.

And two parishes have invited others to join in expanding their usual contributions to the diocese to make up for the All Souls' cut.

A diocesan spokesman said there also has been a sudden and sharp increase in individual contributions made directly to the diocese. Some of the checks are coming from non-Episcopalians.

One of the most highly valued contributions came from the Rev. Gino Baroni of the Archbishop's Committee on Community Relations, Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK: Practicality's the Bonus in A-Frame Endowed With New Profile

This house has an alphabetical air—A-frame and L-shape contour.

By Associated Press

Many varieties of every housing style have come into existence over the years, until sometimes even architectural authorities find it difficult to place a particular residence into a specific category. Some of these hybrid creations have quickly lost favor, others have survived to add new interest and livability to traditional types

The A-frame has stayed close to conventional lines; a kind of inverted V, with the roof extending downwards to serve also as the side walls and with the diagonal beams converging at the roof apex.

While the basic structure must remain within this design concept to retain the distinctive character which has caught the fancy of the public, some changes are beginning to appear Most of them have evolved from the desire of Americans to use A-frames houses for year-around purposes as well as for vacations

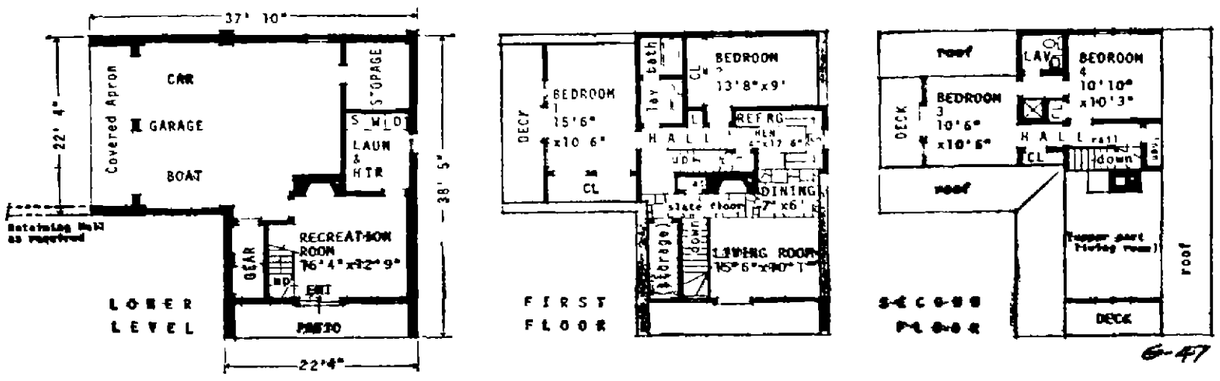
An interesting A-frame variation is this one by architect Herbert C Struppmann By the addition of an L-shaped wing, he not only has given the outside a new profile, but has added to the plan's practicality for use at any time of the year

The lower level has a large garage suitable for the storage of both a car and a boat A side opening permits greater flexibility in placement of the house on its site On the same level are gear and general storage areas, a laundry and heater room—and, at the front, a recreation room with a handsome fireplace This room opens at the front patio and has access to the upper level via an open stair at the side

On the level above are the main rooms of the house—a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and a bath. There's a slate floor in the entry hall as well as the dining room, with another attractive fireplace. Unlike many rustic plans, Design 47's kitchen is a separate room, with a pass-through to the dining room. The kitchen is big enough for regular family housekeeping.

The main bedroom on this level has a full wall of closets and has access to a side deck The other bedroom has an equally generous amount of closet space

Two more bedrooms, one with a private deck, are on the upper level, which also has a lavatory This level can be finished at the time the house is built or completed at a later date when the occasion demands



Two bedrooms on the first floor and two on the second provide space for a large family.

Garden Gossip

Oak Trees Are Victims of Borers

By EMERY W. NELSON
County Extension Agent

It would be well to examine the oaks for borers. This destructive insect appears to be on the increase as many oaks are infested.

The round-headed borers which attack the oak and several other shade trees work beneath the bark and tunnel into the trunk of the tree. They bore holes almost as large as lead pencils and cause extensive damage by riddling the tree trunk.

Once these grubs have entered the tree, the best control is to use a fumigant First, cut away the dead bark near the entrance hole and remove the sawdust-like particles from the burrow. Fumigants such as carbon disulfide or carbon tetrachloride (cleaning fluid) are inserted into the hole and then the opening is plugged with putty or clay. Additional protection is provided by painting the cut-away area with a tree dressing paint.

When the borers are eliminated from the tree, reinfestation can be prevented by spraying the tree trunk. Protection is needed from June through August as the adult borer lays eggs during these months. Applications of Dieldrin, Lindane or DDT at two to three week intervals during the summer will prevent new borers entering the tree.

Young oak trees should be wrapped for additional protection. Regular tree wrapping material should be obtained from the garden store and applied according to the directions which are provided.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

City Forest Grows With Guinan's Care

When the word "forester" is mentioned most people envision a solitary man walking down a lonesome trail pausing, every now and then, to study the trees about him The closest town is miles away His only companions are the wild animals around him. The forester's life would appear tranquil, quiet, almost idyllic.

Yet, when the words "city forester" are mentioned this mental picture evaporates. It is as if someone had remarked about an "atheistic preacher". "City" and "forester" somehow don't seem to fit together.

However, if a person were to get into a helicopter and climb a mile into the sky above Lincoln, he would quickly realize that there is literally a forest beneath him.

Moreover, if he could compare the way the city's forest looked five years ago and the way it looks today, he would be pleasantly surprised

At the southeast edge of the city, corn and milo fields have been converted into a beautiful park with 6,500 newly planted trees This is Holmes Park

On the north edge of the city, raw, bare ground and acres of concrete are being softened by trees, shrubs and grass This is the Interstate Park

On the eastern outskirts, Seacrest Field and new East High School are in a park setting made by newly planted trees. Woods Swimming Pool at 33rd and J is surrounded by new trees and shrubs. Fifteenth Street from the Capitol to the University of Nebraska is now a boulevard lined with oaks.

Moreover, in one year (September, 1964 to August, 1965) the trees along 86 miles of streets within the City of Lincoln were trimmed.

Who is the man most responsible for these improvements?

His name is Donald L. Guinan, city forester

Of course, no one man could have accomplished this alone Don has had an able staff Moreover, Jim Ager, acting director of parks and recreation, and the City Council have given Don the money and tools without which none of this could have been accomplished.

Don Guinan is at work now as city forester in Ann Arbor, Mich , but he has left the forest of Lincoln in much better shape than it was on the day he came to our city.

Thanks, Don, and good luck in your new job

MALE MODES

Swing to the Youthful Look Is Influencing Even the Mature Man

One of the most significant changes that has taken place in the men's apparel business has been the steady and sizable swing to youthfulness in clothing. Now, this is not a fleeting fad — like the very extreme Mod styles from London.

Rather, the trend is found in the distinct changes in fabrication, coloring, styling and modeling of all clothing for men of all ages. The gent of college age, post-grad age and businessman age — all the way up to successful maturity — can now look years younger than his birth certificate attests.

Clothes, along with practices of keeping fit, have created a whole new and flattering "image" for Mr America

Trends: A "permanent press" hat, always in shape, in the "Rex Harrison" style, a man-made synthetic felt hat, that seems imperishable, and a featherweight polyester "pocket hat," that springs back to shape after handling — are headwear innovations now coming into the stores, reports the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. And color is the big thing in felts — with such shades as off-blues, dark greens bronze and whiskey having great appeal to the younger men

Dress Tips. Your name and phone number, written on the inside of the inner leather band of your hat, may get it back to you — if taken by someone else by mistake Nothing will spoil the appearance of a handsome suit quicker than a breast pocket full of pencils, pens or cigars . . . If you have assorted things stored in boxes on the top shelf of your closet, write down the contents on tags and attach the tags with long enough strings to have them hang down where you can read them

Fashion Quotes: Diana (Vogue) Vreeland, "The only real elegance is in the mind If you've got that, the rest really comes from it" Peter Knize, custom tailor and furnisher of New York, Paris and Vienna, "Normally conservative American executives and professional men are getting away from white shirts, and going in for colored ones, often in bold stripes." . . . Designer Janice Wainwright, London, "Men's fashions will see a return to the Beau Brummel, or Al Capone, eras " Which?

Care of Clothes: White buckskin shoes can be cleaned by a scrub with soap and water . . . It may sound strange, but it's important to put a high polish on shoes before storing them Lubrication will keep them in better shape . . . A moistened chamois will remove dog hair from clothes, and will not harm the fabric.

Tips for Job-Seekers: An important personnel manager says, "Look your very best when you apply for a job. It will let the employer visualize how you will create the company's image — and your personal appearance, good or bad, can influence that image." . The Commerce Placement Office of Ohio State University warns students that "Improper appearance or conduct in interviews is reason for discontinuance of placement assistance."

Importance of Fashions: All employes of the Fidelity Bankers Life Insurance Co, Richmond, Va., are supplied by the company with complete summer and winter outfits, in the newest and smartest of styles.

Custom: In France, when relaxing outdoors in all but very cold weather, the Frenchman drapes a sweater over his shoulders — rarely puts it on.

Operator Kept Hamlet in Touch

St. Louis (UPI) — Mrs. Docia Beezley, 80, of Cook Station, Mo., says she never missed a call in her 48 years operating the hamlet's only telephone switchboard

Mrs. Beezley, a recent patient in Barnes Hospital here, reminisced of her years on the switchboard.

"During the war, the boys would call their families 'collect' and I hooked them up," she said Mrs. Beezley said she attached a loud bell to the switchboard so that she could answer a call no matter what time of day or night.

Until 1962, when she sold the switchboard to the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co, she operated it in the dining room of her house.

Helping Hand

If you're a summer sailor, one of the most useful additions to your crew is a jug of liquid chlorine bleach This familiar household aid can turn to in swabbing decks, cleaning canvas, and brightening woodwork. It is also recommended for sprucing up below decks and as a disinfectant for sanitary use.

Play With Message

The University of Nebraska Theater will present "The Physicists," at 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Howell Theater, 12th and R.

The performance, directed by Dr. William R. Morgan, associate professor of drama, is by summer session students.

"The Physicists," by Friedrich Durrenmatt, was first performed in Zurich in 1962. The play has been described as one of provocative ideas and chilling mysteries. It is set in a luxurious sanitarium where three mad scientists are patients. Before the evening is over they will have "played games" that could lead to the extinction of mankind.

Morgan said the play makes the point that it is impossible to withhold information which is vital to all.

The cast includes Robert Hall, Zeff Bernstein, Steve Gaines, Marceine Sweetser, Richard Mahood and Pat Phillips, all of Lincoln.

How Co. C Won War

MOVIES

Opening today at the Varsity is the GI comedy, What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?" starring James Coburn, Dick Shawn, Sergio Fantoni, Giovanna Ralli and Aldo Ray.

The World War II funny involves C Co., assigned to capture the Italian village of Valerno. The invasion is strictly by the book and the Italians' tempers flare immediately, not because their land has been invaded, but because their soccer game has been interrupted.

The Italians are willing to surrender, but only honorably . . . which means a wine festival.

Headquarters has been told that Co. C is meeting heavy resistance . . . but in reality, it's a wild and frantic party . . . until an intelligence officer arrives on the scene.

So a simulated Italian surrender is staged for the intelligence officer's benefit, but everyone seems to arrive in the village . . . bank robbers, communists and a German division.

Combine panic, chaos, comedy, Mancini music and you come up with one of the funniest war films ever. Adult, mature youth audice.

How to Deal With Spies

Loren reminisces with an octogenarian admirer about her preceding 60 adventurous years. Her wild romantic affairs with Newman and Niven keep the situation a puzzler to the end. Adult.

To follow Lady L is another secret agent yarn, "The Glass Bottom Boat," with Doris Day and Rod Taylor.

Day, a conscientious public-relations girl, gets caught up in the world of spacecraft and her electronic genius boss, Taylor, who has invented a rocket device sought by the U S. and Russia.

Their relationship takes a personal turn, his top-secret formula disappears and heroine Day becomes a spy suspect.

A series of slapstick chases are set off in the settings of rocketry and espionage. Adult, mature youth and youth audience.

Spying Doris.

Murder by Two

New York (AP)—A macabre crime that occurred in Australia is the source of "Wonderful Us," a play by Mary Orr and Reginald Denham scheduled for Broadway arrival next fall.

The story, which came to the authors' attention during a downunder visit, concerns two-teenage girls who kill the mother of one of them. The dramatic suspense concerns whether the girls are caught. Denham is to direct for producers Andre Goulston and William Hammerstein.

Housemother!

Hollywood (UPI) — A UCLA fraternity has appointed comedienne Phyllis Diller as its official housemother.

New Fonda Role

Jane Fonda has been signed by Otto Preminger to star in "Hurry Sundown" with Michael Caine.

New Deck's Freak Hand Turns Into Nightmare

By HOWARD SCHENKEN
AND RICHARD L. FREY

According to mathematicians, a 7-6 distribution occurs only once in about 18,000 hands But after today's deal had been played, West felt even this was too often! Would you have done better?

This deal came up in the British Mixed Pairs championship, which — like most of the American Contract Bridge League's (ACBL) blue ribbon events—is played with hands that have been secretly pre-dealt . . . though not prearranged

But whereas the ACBL's hands are produced by a random-dealing computer, those for the British event were manually dealt by officials. And since the officials were using new decks, the proportion of freak deals zoomed way above the mathematical probabilities.

Having introduced his wild hand with a quiet bid of one diamond and been raised to two, West naturally thought he was off to a bright start.

But N-S quickly got to slam even though they held only one ace, and West found that a deal that began as a dream has wound up a nightmare.

Can you blame West for finding the wrong opening lead? Since East had supported diamonds, N-S seemed more likely to be void of that suit than of clubs, but on the lead of the club ace, the slam rolled in. Declarer ruffed, pulled trumps, ditched his diamond loser on the club king and lost only to the spade ace.

Freak new-deck hands like West's support the theory that the A.C.B.L's computer-dealt hands correspond more closely to mathematical probabilities than any other type deal. Hands that are manually dealt with old decks, by contrast, tend to produce too many evenly balanced patterns.

OUR LITTLE TOWN

Time to Think

By GERTRUDE SKINNER
Ruskin

Are you enjoying summer? I sincerely hope so for it is such a delightful time of year and despite troubled times, such a wonderful, wonderful world to be a part of.

Those of us living in the small towns and rural areas are enjoying a lull in the work load of spring and early summer.

At last there is time to look about us, to commune, to identify, to draw purpose and strength into our lives from the world in which we live.

We are grateful for all things: young-young lovers walking hand in hand, colts and calves and kittens chasing butterflies.

We find supreme satisfaction in the tastes of summer—huge slices of watermelon in which the small fry bury their faces from ear to ear; corn on the cob swimming in butter; great slices of tomatoes five minutes away from mother earth's basket; enormous, red strawberries piled high, frosted with sugar and looking for all the world like miniature red snow-capped mountains. And sheepsour—if you've never nibbled it's delightful yellow blossom, you've never lived to the fullest.

And when our overworked or aging muscles ache for relief we take time to relax in a lawn chair (not many patios in our town) and listen to the drone of bees gathering honey from the clover.

Their buzzing drowns out the distant jet plane crossing the soft summer sky. Cotton-puff clouds soon hide the vapor trails and our thoughts drift with the formations. We are suspended in time and space and we grow rested and free from care.

An then at the end of our day there is sunset—always so glorious in Nebraska—in our town unmarred by the shadows of tall buildings, it appears like a great seal of red gold on the distant horizon and another summer day becomes a yesterday.

Stamp Repeats William's Victory

London (UPI) — Nine hundred years after the Battle of Hastings, which made England a French colony and changed history, the English and French are locked in friendly competition to commemorate its anniversary.

With pageants and banquets, a mock battle, sports, fireworks and a new French "invasion" of the English coast by pleasure cruisers, the two sides are now ready for fun and war games up to Oct. 14—date of the famous Norman Conquest.

As in 1066, the French have lavished more money and care on the contest. And, as in 1066, when the English army marched a week to get to the battle ground, the home side has been late onto the field.

It wasn't until January this year that the British government decided officially to remember the battle. So the French commemoration postage stamps are beating Britain's Hastings issue into the post offices by several months.

But note the word commemoration. Even after 900 years, no one is "celebrating" a day of tragedy on which thousands of bowmen and knights were killed and Harold, last Saxon king of England, was slain allegedly by a Norman arrow.

But in the light of what has happened since the English defeat, everyone is happy to commemorate the results of 1066 and all that.

Without a Norman victory at Hastings there would certainly have been no Chaucer, no Joan of Arc, no Agincourt, no English law and democracy as the world knows them—and certainly no English language.

Had King Harold beaten Duke William of Normandy, England today might be a proud Nordic nation untinged by the civilizing influences forced on it by the violent and uncordial entente with the French 900 years ago.

In England, main interest this summer focuses on Pevensey, where Duke William landed with his conquering army; Hastings, a pleasant little holiday resort nearby, and "the place of battle"—a picturesque town appropriately called Battle.

Seven miles northwest of Hastings in a green valley that was the site of the axe-swinging conflict, Battle today is the sort of compact, thriving market center that gets its picture on postcards.

Battle's program is ambitious, including a historical pageant, an arts festival (July 17-31), an old English fair (Aug. 1-6) and, on Oct. 14, an ox roast, bonfire, formal luncheon, a banquet and a ceremony at the Norman stone where King Harold is supposed to have laid when he died.

At Pevensey, Oct. 1 has been chosen for the landing of 200 small craft — an equivalent number to the William's invasion fleet — led by a modern French warship and two Viking long-ships borrowed from Norway for the occasion.

Hastings has commissioned an embroidered, 243-foot tapestry to record in 81 pictures the story of English history since 1066.

Modelled on the famous Bayeux Tapestry—the world's first strip cartoon which told the story of the invasion and conquest in tapestry is being made by the Royal College of Needlework in London and will go on public show in October.

Ballet at Home

New York (AP) — The City Center of Music and Drama will add the City Center Joffrey Ballet as a permanent resident company at the City Center on 55th Street.

The Robert Joffrey Ballet received rave reviews for its previous performances there.

By the Light of Day

By GINNY FISHER

Daytime TV is a homemaker's haven with three basic styles: re-runs, game shows and soap-operas.

Viewers can judge re-runs by past record. However, reports on quizes and soapers usually merely lump together the whole daytime schedule.

Half-a-dozen new daytime shows premiered last month, and one who had just one previous contact with daytime TV (one wintry day in 1965 when she was snowbound at home) selected two, one quiz and one soap-opera to review.

TV DIARY

July 14: Read reviews, can't tell new quizes apart. So, decided on NBC's "Showdown," due to intriguing host Joe Pyne, noted as a rude, brash moderator of Los Angeles radio "talk" show.

July 15: Choose "Dark Shadows," on ABC at 3 p.m., as soap opera experiment in gothic, Jane-Eyre style. Should avoid those morning kaffee-klatches, the mainstays for rehashing gossip (and plots) on most soapers.

July 16: Check out office TV set. Earphones a bit crackly, but will do.

July 18, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne is much too tame, actually polite. No satire and he only razzes his announcer, "Colonel Tonsils," a little. Oh yes, three (that's logical) triplets challenge champion threesome. Triplets seem to have won.

July 18, 3 p.m.: Sort of ridiculous. Eerie voice of heroine Victoria, befuddled girl with long dark hair, opens show, uncheerfully bringing all up to date on the oh-too-dreadful happenings. Heavy footsteps, murky surroundings and "trembling muisc" are too carefully calculated.

July 19, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne is snappier but no match for triplets who show somewhat sassy but engaging personalities. Will return tomorrow.

July 19, 3 p.m.: Show not boring today—just no show. Pre-empted by Gemini-Titan X maneuvers.

July 20, 10:30 a.m.: Pyne almost lives up to his radio reputation when he grills a blonde 26-year-old about her children, who just happen to be 17 and 19. As to the quiz, all triplets guess wrong hand of Statue of Liberty which carries torch. Opponents all answer correctly (by the way, it's the right) but they lose the match. Triplets will be back tomorrow to try for grand prize, a trip to Spain.

July 20, 3 p.m.: Tick-ticking clock replaces heavy footfalls for melodramatic emphasis. These can be a handy reference guide, as show surely seems to need one.

July 21, 10:30 a.m.: Realize best part of whole show is when a contestant misses answer and is popped down, more suddenly than not, behind the counter. Whoosh!

Triplets win, but don't get trip to Spain, so will return.

July 21, 3 p.m.: Great show, all about G-T X reentry and splash-down.

July 22, 10:30 a.m. Interesting how "disinterested" viewer has started pulling for contestants. Last day for triplets (can only stay one week), last chance for bonus trip to Madrid. One may root so hard for a team that she even tries to "think" correct answer to them. Luckily it doesn't work because Triplets are right and viewer is wrong. Boys win the game, but don't manage that trip to Spain.

July 22, 3 p m.: Interesting effect when sound temporarily goes off and on and off. Glass bounces noiselessly across floor. First see, then later hear Maggie, but by then her voice just does not fit her appearance. Sound comes on in time to hear Roger Collins tell heroine Victoria, "You've got to stay here, whether you like it or not. Good night, Miss Winters."

Luckily, viewers don't have to stay here. Week is up. Good night Dark Shadows.

July 25, 10:25 a.m.: Turn on set. Of course it's just out of curiosity about new contestants — a viewer couldn't get hooked on a quiz show in just one week, could she? Almost gave up however, when advertisement of new fall TV show comes on. Have you ever heard Tarzan's ape call via earphones?!

"No, this is not 2547938, this is ALIPW FT!"

Stone Bridge May Disappear

'Combat' on a New Battlefield

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York (AP)—When September rolls around, a tight little band of combat infantrymen will resume its fifth year of fighting its way from the Normandy beachhead into Germany.

The veterans of the realistic ABC series, "Combat," seem to win all their encounters with the Nazis but don't seem to get far except to a comfortable if not peak perch in the Nielsen ratings.

All On 1 Back Lot

Over the seasons, Sergeant Chip Saunders and his squad of three regulars have encountered plenty of weather—those drenching Hollywood rains, snow, blazing heat—and coped with cowards, malcontents, spies, snipers. While occasionally being nicked by bullets, knocked out or, in one case, temporarily blinded, they have run, crept and crawled along without rest or recuperation.

As the series moved forward, the personalities of the regulars have inevitably developed slowly and changes have occurred in the star lineup. Originally, Rick Jason, playing a lieutenant (usually with a two-day beard and looking tired) and Vic Morrow as the sergeant (with dirt on his face and a grubby-looking uniform) were and are the official stars of the show.

As time went on, the scrip writers found it increasingly difficult to turn up plots prominently involving the lieutenant, so that Vic Morrow has carried the heaviest acting responsibilities of the show.

Sgt. Saunders of "Combat"

"The thing is that when an officer—in our case, the lieutenant—says to do something, the men can't argue. They've got to obey. But when an enlisted man, a sergeant, gives an order, they can get some dialogue," Morrow explained.

Sharp-eyed viewers of the series have noted that, no matter how hard the "Combat" squad fought, no matter how many fields, forests and streams it crossed, it seemed to be moving in one giant circle. The series was shot in the back lot of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. After awhile, they ran out of fresh backgrounds, and were back crossing the same stone bridge or were trapped under timbers in the same village church.

New Locations

Next season they will be fighting in brand new terrain:

"They kicked us out of MGM," reported Morrow happily, "because they have so much of their own product—including a war series—shooting there that they don't have room for us any more. Now we're going out to the valley (San Fernando) to a studio that has no back lot—no village set. That means we'll have to go on location, maybe to Canada for exteriors."

"I'd like to see us get into a city street fight," he reflected. "We could show tanks and trucks in the street, barricades and all sorts of things we've never been able to get into before."

Opening Boom

New York (UPI) — The same cannon that boomed the close of the New York's Fair of 1964-65 signaled the opening of EXPO '67, Montreal's World Fair of 1967.

The fair, marking Canada's centennial, is open from now to Oct. 27, 1967. The American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) trade association for travel agents in the United States and Canada, says EXPO '67 expects 30 million admissions.

DOGGIN' IT

By HOLLY SPENCE

And all you add is love! Whether your canine companion be pedigreed or mutt, love will do the trick every time.

Take a girl who loves dogs . . . Diane Sorensen . . . and her dog, Buttercup alias B.C. or Butterball . . . and they prove that you CAN teach an old dog new tricks.

B.C. was a resident of the Humane Society six years ago, but now she's a real 4-H show dog.

Why B.C.? Well, Diane says she may have been a "buttercup" when she was a wee pup, but now it's B.C. because she's "kind of old."

For 4-H'ers interested in dog projects, Diane agrees that a successful training program includes love and "maybe some meat for a reward."

B.C.'s training started early with the first dog project which meant grooming and the first trick . . . sitting.

Diane and B.C. . . . teamed.

Pedigreed or Mutt, Trainer's Love Helps

With barrier No. 1 easily passed, project No. 2 meant additional tricks.

"I've read a lot of books on dog training, but decided I'd develop my own method of teaching B.C. tricks," said Diane, "I guess it was more under the heading of an invention."

One of the tricks for every show dog to know is shaking hands. So shaking hands it was! But that meant a little inventiveness.

B.C. was set on Diane's desk . . . then she tied a cloth around the right foreleg (which she insists is the paw every dog shakes with) . . . then the loose end of the cloth was strung around a shelf bracket above her.

"Then I said "shake!" very distinctively and gave a sharp jerk on the cloth until B.C. would lift the paw by herself," added Diane.

"It took about 10 minutes by my method, where in the books, they say several days of 15 minute periods are needed."

B.C. has gathered nothing but a raft of blue ribbons . . . she's truly a "blue-ribbon winner". Whatever the 4-H project may be, Diane can always work B.C. into it.

She was the object of a 4-H demonstration one year on how to bathe a dog . . . and she was the cleanest dog in town. Twice, B.C. was the topic of discussion for the speech contest.

But all work and no play would make B.C. a dull dog, so there's always time for frolicking.

She seems to have an uncontrollable urge for chasing squirrels . . . and even up trees. One of her seemingly feline climbs got the best of her . . . and she got stuck in the tree.

"But one of our pride and joys is B.C.'s curlicue tail," said Diane, "why she even looks like a little pig."

Even though B.C. is of mixed breed . . . a mutt . . . that doesn't mean she can't learn lots of tricks.

Besides sitting and shaking hands, she begs, rolls over and heels.

"Sometimes I get a little jealous because B.C. follows my younger brother around," says Diane, "but she knows where to come for love and affection . . . and especially when she wants to get fed."

Diane assumes that B.C. still likes her, for every night finds B.C. sawing logs under Diane's bed.

Pawnee Refused To Run

August 5 marks the 93rd anniversary of the Battle of Massacre Canyon, the last and one of the bloodiest battles recorded between the Pawnee and Sioux Indian tribes in Nebraska.

The great Pawnee buffalo hunt had been a success and the tribe was in a jovial mood, dancing and chanting around the fires.

At daybreak, they broke camp and traveled to the head of a canyon just north of Trail City (now Trenton) where Sky Chief spotted a dark splotch on the horizon which he believed to be another herd of buffalo. He halted the march, ordered the squaws to set up camp while he sent hunters galloping across the prairie to take more game.

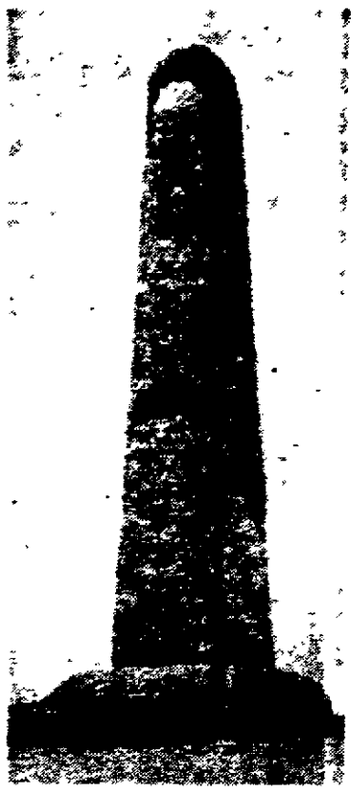
J W Williamson, trail agent accompanying the Pawnee, was informed by a hide buyer that a large body of Sioux were camped on the Frenchman River a few miles away, and their chief, John Grass, was accusing the Pawnee of trespassing on Sioux territory.

Williamson, aware of the enmity between the two tribes, urged the Pawnee leaders, Sky Chief and Fighting Bear, to proceed with all possible speed down the canyon to the Republican River where a grove of cottonwoods would give them some protection

However, the Pawnee, with only 300 fighting men, at first chose to stay their grounds and fight until the 1,000-strong Sioux approached the Pawnee encampment.

Realizing the hopelessness of the situation, the Pawnee instructed Williamson to parley the oncoming Sioux

Williamson, accompanied by hide agent, Ralph Weeks, rode out carrying a white flag to meet the Sioux However, the Sioux leader, Snow Flake, grunted a refusal and with a war whoop and a burst of fire, the Sioux swooped down on the Pawnee



Massacre Momument

Sky Chief fell in the first round of bullets.

Women with their children cut the packs from their ponies and rode for their lives.

As he neared the canyon, Williamson's horse was shot from under him. As the horse went down Williamson leaped from the saddle, caught a riderless mount and hurried down the canyon. Leaning from the saddle he attempted to pick up a small child who had fallen from her mother's back. A Sioux bullet pierced his hand causing him to miss the child who was trampled to death.

As the Pawnee raced down the winding, 150-yard wide canyon, they came to a place where the ravine bottlenecked. Here squaws, children and horses piled on top of each other with the Sioux shooting into the midst

Only a remnant of the Pawnee reached the protection of the cottonwood grove.

Here they were met by the Cavalry from Ft. McPherson who turned the Sioux, retreating with about 700 Pawnee horses.

The Sioux later returned 11 captured squaws and children and were asked to give $10,000 of their annuity funds to the Pawnee.

Three miles from Trenton is a monument of pink Minnesota granite, placed there on Sept. 26, 1930, to commemorate this . . . the last battle between the Pawnee and the Sioux.

Million Visitors a Year

That's Potential of Fully-Developed Park At Fort Robinson, State-Federal Study Finds

By DEL SNODGRASS

Nebraska's historic Ft Robinson, if fully developed as a state park, could expect at least one million visitors each year.

That estimate, which was termed "conservative" was made by the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation which coordinated a federal-state study on the best possible future use of the northwest Nebraska Ft. Robinson complex.

The report provided the basis for the State Game Commission's purchase of the 10,300-acre James Ranch lying between the former military reservation and a timber reserve managed by the U.S. Forest Service.

As a result of that $1 3 million purchase, Commission Director Mel Steen disclosed plans to spend $10 million over the next 25 years to develop Ft. Robinson into what he says will be one of the best state or federal parks in the western United States

Best Use

All state and federal participants in the study agreed the "highest and best use" of Ft Robinson was for outdoor recreation and that the Nebraska Game Commission was best suited to running the operation

Although the fort is on U.S. 20 in northern Nebraska rather than on more heavily traveled east-west routes further south, the study noted the highway is a major route to Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park.

In addition, the study noted, Ft. Robinson is within 75 miles of 10 other attractions, including the Scotts Bluff National Monument, Toadstool Park and Chadron State Park in Nebraska and Wind Cave National Park and Custer State Park in South Dakota

Nearby Attractions

Five other attractions within 150 miles of the fort are the Badlands, Mt. Rushmore the Black Hills and the Valentine and Ft. Niobrara National Wildlife Refuges.

"As mobility increases," the study said, "more people will travel farther to enjoy outstanding scenic wildlife and wilderness areas . . .

"Increased tourist travel means greatly increased receipts to local merchants. The economy in the area now is stagnant. Non-recreation use of Ft. Robinson, such as agriculture, would benefit the community and state little or none at all".

The study spoke highly of the area's natural beauty, its historical background and its geological, archeological and paleontological values.

"Ft. Robinson," the study said, "is located in a picturesque valley flanked by ridges and plateaus covered with Ponderosa pine, accented with castle-like buttes, and interspersed with open park-like meadows and rolling hills

"Spring and fall days are cool and crisp, the three summer months have clear, hot days, cool nights, and low humidity."

Trail ride through the pines . . . Ft. Robinson attraction.

Timber Reserve

Definitely, the report said, the timber reserve should be made available for public use as part of the park complex.

Historically, the study continued, the fort is associated with the Indians and fur trading era, the coming of the white man, and settlement by homesteaders and ranchers in the Great Plains

Fossil Area

The fort opened in 1874 to protect government employes and property at the nearby Red Cloud Indian Agency, became an important military post in the Indian wars of the 1870s and was the largest Quartermaster horse remount station in the world during World War I.

Less known to the public is the area's reputation as the heart of a world-famous fossil-mammal collecting area.

"Geologists, paleontologists and scientists from all parts of the world come to study these deposits," the study said, "for western Nebraska has the most complete geologic section in North America, representing the past 35 million years."

Winter Sports

Steen said the area has all the attributes for outdoor recreation facilities, including winter sports such as skiing on the slopes found in the vicinity.

Houston's Hall One Of Finest

Houston (UPI) — Although dust, nails and lumber now litter floors where plush red carpets will be unrolled, Houston has vowed to open one of the finest music halls in the nation on Oct. 2.

The $6.6 million Jesse H. Jones Hall for the Performing Arts will be the home of the Houston Symphony Orchestra, the Houston Grand Opera Assn. and the Houston Ballet.

The Jones Hall will comprise one of three buildings of a cultural complex. The other two buildings are the new Alley Theater and the Albert Thomas Space Hall of Fame.

The entire construction cost of the new hall was a gift to the city from the Houston Endowment, Inc., a foundation created by the late newspaper publisher, Jesse H. Jones. The building site was donated by the city.

The hall's main entrance is framed by a glass front 66 feet high. Inside, a triple tier of lobbies extends around three sides of the main hall.

The main auditorium will have a maximum seating capacity of 3,000. However, the electronically-controlled ceiling can be lowered to shut off upper sections and limit seating to 2,400, 2,000 or 1,800 patrons.

Backstage, there is a rehearsal room two levels below the stage which is large enough for a full symphony. It also has full wall mirrors with ballet bars and is completely soundproofed so that one group may rehearse while another is onstage performing.

Grand opening week in October will feature "Aida" with Gabriella Tucci and Richard Tucker, as well as the Houston Symphony and a ballet performance

Road To Caves

New York (UPI) — The Qumran Caves, where the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered, will be more accessible to travelers as result of a new road now being built by the Jordan Tgurism Authority, says the Jordan Tourist Information Center.

Starting at the Dead Sea Hotel at the north end of the Dead Sea, the road terminates at the Qumran Caves where a small rest house and a caretaker's lodge also are under construction.

'Mame' On Record

Angela Lansbury has been a great entertainer since the World War II years and has scored triumphs on both stage and screen.

But Miss Lansbury's finest hour may be in "Mame," the Broadway hit musical based on Patrick Dennis' wacky novel, "Auntie Mame."

She proves she not only can act but can sing and dance. Miss Lansbury has done such a fine job in "Mame" that she should be in demand on Broadway for many years.

Goddard Lieberson has produced an excellent recording by the original cast of "Mame" (Columbia) and it is a top item for collectors of Broadway show music.

The title song from "Mame" is the leadoff number of Satchmo's latest LP, "Louis" (Mercury). Two other show numbers—"So Long Dearie" from "Hello Dolly" and "Faith" from "I Had a Ball"—are included. Dixieland buffs will enjoy "Tin Roof Blues" and "The Saints."

One of the more appealing movie sound track albums is "Paradise, Hawaiian Style" (RCA). Elvis Presley sings nine tunes and there is what is billed as a special bonus song —"Sand Castles."

"Jacqueline Kennedy" (Audio Fidelity) reprises some of the speeches the former First Lady made in the United States and abroad at the side of her husband. The voice of the slain president also is heard.

Selected Singles

"James Brown's Boo-Ga-Lee" by James Brown (Smash), "All My Nights, All My Days" by the Breakers (Jerden), "Tar and Cement" by Verdelle Smith (Capitol), "Most of All" by the Cowsills (Philips.

Tape Deck

"Jazz Dialogue" by the Modern Jazz Quartet and the All-Star Jazz Band (Atlantic-Ampex) features five John Lewis compositions as well as "Ralph's New Blues" by Milt Jackson. This marks the first occasion for the quartet with a big band and it is a good associttion.

Freedom From Security's Snare

Indian Summer. By John Knowles; Random House.

If nothing else, it is refreshing to meet in the pages of a contemporary novel a hero of unexceptional abilities, an average, sturdy ex-GI whose psyche is as healthy as his body, a young man to whom life is neither tragedy nor illusion. But in his latest novel, John Knowles gives us much more.

Knowles

Knowles, whose "A Separate Peace" has become something of a campus classic, strikes a telling blow for personal independence and honesty in "Indian Summer." His hero, Cleet Kinsolving, is a rugged, part-Indian individualist who cannot be bought by wealthy friends although the price he pays is his dream of establishing an air-freight line to Alaska. He jumps, reluctantly, at the lure of money to finance his venture by agreeing to act as aide and stabilizer for his boyhood chum, Neil Reardon, lecturer, writer and scion of the immensely rich Connecticut Reardons. No sooner has he taken the bait than he begins to bleed from the barb. The story is of his escape.

A trusting soul, Cleet inevitably suffers disillusion. He meets it with anger and action, with no hint of the enervating frustration, bitterness and despair so prevalent on today's literary scene.

Cleet's Indian ancestry provides a secondary theme reinforcing the main one of independence. Basically it is the self-sufficient Indian eluding the white man's snare of security. More universally, as the title would suggest, it is the young adult in life's summer spurt of self-realization who falls victim to the fleeting warmth and promise of those lovely but false days we know as Indian summer.

As Knowles puts it, most men live their lives out of season, always a season behind truth, "behaving in a way very appropriate for the phase which has just ended." So it is with the fear dominated life of Neil That some, like Cleet, are able and eager to adjust to life's calendar is the strength of the book.

Knowles' social commentary is withering as it pertains to the Reardons' wealth and religious convictions. It sets the stage for Cleet's savage and devastating reprisal for the Reardons' broken promise to him.

While "A Separate Peace" still probably ranks as Knowles' prime work, "Indian Summer" can hold its own as a well-told and interesting story.

Navy Story Type Cast

The Ninety and Nine. By William Brinkley; Doubleday.

Every now and again, the reviewer and that more important element in our society, the book purchaser, part company. This may be such an instance.

LST (Landing Ship Tank) 1826 has a World War II assignment of transporting mixed cargo into the Anzio beachhead and, usually, dead and wounded out. Nothing glamorous. But necessary. And dangerous.

Shallow of draft, slow of speed, LST 1826 has something of a storybook (naturally) crew among her 90 men and nine officers. Sailor himself, Brinkley has conjured a happy freight hauler. There is not a coward or evil man on board and the skipper is tolerant, competent, much liked and—surprise, Navy!—a very wealthy New York Jew.

LST 1826's band of heroes provide the standard horseplay and inventiveness often found in the light novelistic treatment of good, clean Americans at war—a sea cave where Italian girls may be entertained in gay style, guided war zone tours for hospital ship brass with the price being gallons of ice cream, tasty wine on board and the skilled delivery of a baby by a physician's mate while the LST pounds rough seas.

The treatment is episodic. Two somewhat-less-than-believable love stories counterpoint booming guns of death. Finally the war catches up with the men and the climax is bloodier than Hamlet's final act.

It's all done—or almost all—in the pattern which had had such post-war sales success, a mixture of fraternity high jinks and combat nobility. One has a hunch that the market may have peaked sometime back.

Timing often is a matter of luck in the book trade. But the development of type casts and caricatures for honest characters reflects fully upon the writer. The judgment here is that it reflects rather badly. "The Ninety and Nine" adds nothing, really, to the groaning bookshelf of fictional Yankees at war and play.

Between Baby Books and School Books

It's here: a Grosset and Dunlap series of books designed for the precocious reader and attractively packaged in a gift case. Called Early Start Preschool Readers, seven of the small, colorful books are written in a selected vocabulary of from 11 to 30 words with the word count indicated on each cover. An eighth book, "Poems," experiments with a wider vocabulary of 107 words. To parents caught between the read-at-three theory and that advocating schoolroom instruction, a University of Nebraska elementary education professor says of this set, "It can't do any harm."

First Novel Powerfully Written

This Blessed Shore. By Thomas B. Morgan. Shorecrest.

The epigraph for this first novel could have been a line from Simone de Beauvoir's recent book about her mother's end. "Death," she wrote, "is the ultimate indignity," a cri de coeur wrung from her by the heartbreaking spectacle of her mother's physical disintegration.

Death is hardly an ingratiating theme for a first novel, and it says something for Thomas Morgan's artistic courage that he elected to use it. The spur could have been autobiographical: certainly Morgan writes with a sense of passion and pain that points to personal experience.

The story (it is a novella, really) opens on a deceptively peaceful note—the return of the successful son from the big city to visit his parents in the little Illinois town where he was born.

Up to this point the novel possesses neither originality nor distinctiveness. But that night, Jake, the father, suffers a massive cerebral hemorrhage while playing his weekly poker game.

Instantly the focus of the book shifts, as does the tone of the narrative. What began as a familiar situation swiftly turns into a family tragedy. It doesn't strike as finally or as poetically as in Agee's "A Death in the Family." Here it is protracted and harrowing, on characters and readers alike.

Drawing on wellsprings of feeling not apparent in the early chapters, Morgan contrasts the ebbing of the father's life with the son's regret and helplessness, finally confronting the boy with the most horrifying dilemma a son can be called upon to face.

"This Blessed Shore" is fiction in a minor key. It may not be pleasant reading but it is undeniably powerful writing. —SRS
